Kissinger To Go Back To Mideast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon announced after conferring with two Arab foreign ministers today that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would make a new trip to the Middle East to help get troop disengagement talks under way between Israel and Syria.

The President met for nearly an hour and a half with Egypt's Ismail Fahmy and Saudi Arabia's Omar Sakkaf in the Oval Office.

Afterward, while standing in the Rose Garden, Nixon said he had asked Kissinger to go back to the Middle East "where he will meet with Syrian and Israeli officials with the objective of getting talks started" on the disengagement of forces in the Golan Heights area.

Nixon did not mention any discussion during the meeting of the prospect of lifting of the Arab oil embargo against the United States, but said the discussions covered a broad area of mutual concerns.

Sakkaf later told reporters, "We're hopeful something will happen soon for the benefit of the Middle East, the United States and the world as a whole."

He appeared to be hinting of a possible break in the oil boycott in the future.

The president told reporters that his meeting with the Arab foreign ministers was "an extended and very constructive discussion regarding permanent peace" in the Middle East.

There have been numerous clashes along the Golan Heights area between Israeli and Syrian troops since Kissinger helped arrange Israeli-Egyptian disengagement. Syria has made clear it wants to keep Israel off balance by the the military incidents.

A new clash was reported today, with Damascus claiming to have inflicted casualties on an Israeli patrol.

The Arab Big Four disengagement proposal was said to have been agreed to at a meeting in Algiers last week. Without specifying details, Fahmy told reporters, "It was a unanimous decision...We believe it was a very positive decision."

He added that "everything is moving in the right direction ... (with) progress on every front." Fahmy said it was "most probable" that Kissinger would play a role in possible Israeli-Syrian disengagement talks, and an Israeli newspaper speculated that the secretary would be flying to the Mideast again in a few days.

Kissinger sidestepped questions about a new peacemaking trip like the one that preceded Israeli-Egyptian disengagement. "The major problem now is to get the talks started," Kissinger said. "First we have to establish a framework."

Some U. S. officials have been optimistic about an early end to the oil embargo. Vice President Gerald R. Ford said in Chattanooga, Tenn., yesterday "we may —and I emphasize may —be over the hump for the short haul" in the energy crisis.

Legal Error Puts A Cloud On Land Sale

Ordinance Was Needed At Courthouse Square

By NELS JOHNSON

An office building and garage rising on San Rafael's Courthouse Square was enveloped in a legal cloud today as the city administration disclosed the parcel was sold to McKeon Construction Co. without benefit of a municipal ordinance required by city charter.

Consequences of the legal error are uncertain, but one effect might be to pave the way for a possible citizens' referendum testing the development by challenging the city's flawed approval of it, city officials said.

Immediate result of the revelation is that the city council at 8 p.m. today will be confronted by an ordinance "providing for the sale and conveyance of public real property to McKeon Construction," an ordinance that should have received council approval prior to sale of the square in 1972.

The city charter requires that the city approve such an ordinance before selling any property, according to City Clerk Marion A. Grady.

City Atty. Fred C. Robbins said today the ordinance at issue represents so routine an administrative matter that it is not subject to referendum by citizens. Robbins said he bared his opinion on analysis of case law.

City councilmen, however, said it is possible the city is vulnerable to a referendum drive by citizens challenging the city's tardy compliance with the charter, but called such a move unlikely.

"It's one of those unfortunate mistakes," said Mayor C. Paul Bettini. "I'm going to treat it routinely" since the development is "after the fact."

"If anyone chooses to go this referendum route, it would be malicious," Bettini said, adding he does not anticipate such a move.

Mitchell Asks Case Dismissal

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and his codefendant, ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans, at the start of their perjury and conspiracy trial in federal court, today requested that all charges against them be dismissed.

They also sought a change of venue because of pretrial publicity which Stans' attorney, John P. Diuguid, said was created by the government.

"We might even say that the government has orchestrated" this publicity, Diuguid told presiding Judge Lee Gagliardi, who reserved decision.

The attorney also noted that Sen. Sam Ervin postponed further Watergate Committee hearings until a jury in this trial was sequestered.

Diuguid quoted from a number of recent newspaper articles—one of which referred to Stans as "smart and rich, a man with a reputation for unscrupulousness"—and asked: "How can any literate person in New York be impartial as he approaches this trial."

Both Mitchell and Stans were

Meany Says Vote Repudiated Nixon

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — AFL-CIO President George Meany said today that yesterday's congressional election in which a Democrat won Vice President Gerald Ford's old House seat indicates Americans "don't want Watergate to go away, but want President Nixon to go away."

"The best thing for the President to do now is resign," Meany told a news conference.

Meany said since successful Democratic candidate Richard Vander Veen campaigned in Ford's old Michigan district strictly on the issue of Watergate and Nixon's impeachment, the results "look to me like a referendum on Mr. Nixon's own status and his credibility."

The labor leader said the Michigan election "makes Ford look more and more important all the time" as a possible president if Nixon resigns or is impeached.

The President's lone supporter on the AFL-CIO Executive Council, which is holding its winter meeting here, agreed meanwhile, with Nixon's statement that "one year of Watergate is enough" and that the

No Response To Hearst 'Gesture'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Publisher Randolph A. Hearst's "good will gesture" of a $2 million food giveaway plan brought no immediate response today from the kidnapers of his daughter, Patricia.

Hearst planned to reveal more details of the giveaway program for the needy demanded by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army before negotiations can begin for release of Miss Hearst, the granddaughter of William Randolph Hearst, founder of the Hearst publishing empire.

The family waited at their Hillsborough mansion on the eve of their kidnaped daughter's 20th birthday, 15 days after she was taken from her Berkeley apartment, for an indication of whether the SLA would consider the $2 million plan, far short of the $400 million program originally demanded, to be adequate.

"The next move is up to them," Hearst said yesterday after announcing the plan, the largest payment ever offered in a kidnaping in the United States. He said the $2 million would include $500,000 of his own money, which he said was "a substantial part of my personal assets."

Meanwhile, the Hearst family was presented with a petition signed by 6,000 welfare recipients who said they would refuse to accept any food or money offered by Hearst to meet the SLA demand.

The SLA, a small terrorist group which snatched the 19-year-old granddaughter of William Randolph Hearst from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4, had demanded the food distribution as a "gesture of good faith" which would allow the start of negotiations for Miss Hearst's release.

"I consider this a good will gesture, particularly since there is no guarantee that my daughter will be released," Hearst told newsmen at the Hilton Hotel after a five-hour secret meeting with representatives of the American Indian Movement and other activist groups asked by the SLA to monitor the distribution.

He promised a fuller statement on the food plan today.

In its original demand a week ago, the SLA asked Hearst to provide $70 of free food for an estimated 4.7 million needy Californians, which the publisher said would cost about $400 million. Hearst said the demand was "impossible to meet" but he would make a counter proposal before today's SLA deadline for the start of food distribution. The kidnapers said later they would "accept a sincere effort" by Hearst.

The president-editor of the San Francisco Examiner said the money would be available today, but that it would take time to work out the details of the giveaway.

"You're making a mistake in believing that this is a ransom demand," Hearst told reporters. "What they're saying is, you give an expression of good will and show a desire to respond to our needs and our problems and the problems of the poor and hopefully they will respond in the manner they see fit."

Chairman For Ending Watergate Hearings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said today he does not want the Senate Watergate Committee to conduct any more hearings.

The committee was expected to approve Ervin's recommendation at a meeting later today.

Ervin said he would suggest that the committee reserve the right to reopen the hearings later, but only if it could obtain five of President Nixon's Watergate tapes it so far has been denied by the White House and the courts.

Ervin said he favored appealing U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell's decision that denied the committee access to the five tapes.

The committee had voted, 4-to-3 last month — by straight party lines—to go ahead with public hearings into the contribution to President Nixon's campaign from financier Howard Hughes and the dairy industry.

Ervin said at the time that the House Judiciary Committee was not "ready to go forward" with its impeachment inquiry and he had doubts about when —if ever—more indictments would come from the Watergate grand juries.

Since then, Ervin said today, the House committee's investigation has started and he said he has indications that indictments will be handed down soon.

A White House official said meantime that a defect in a tape recording machine, not a deliberate act, was responsible for obliteration of an 18 ½-minute segment of one of the presidential Watergate tapes.

A group of technical experts who examined the tape in question told Judge John J. Sirica a few weeks ago that a series of erasures, each manually done, were detected in the tape. This was interpreted to suggest a deliberate act.

White House lawyers took issue with the finding and said they would have a separate technical examination conducted.

The White House official, who refused to allow his name to be used, told newsmen yesterday:

Betty Forry To Seek Election To Marin Water District Seat

Betty Forry of Marinwood, former chairman of the California State Recreation Commission and local civic leader, today announced that she is seeking the First District seat on the Marin Municipal Water District board.

The seat is presently held by Jack R. Felson, one of the conservationist majority on the board.

In announcing her candidacy, Mrs. Forry said, "I am a candidate for the water board because I believe that the present board is polarized and does not represent the views of those water users who favor a more moderate position.

"The board needs more balanced representation to be effective," she continued, "and I believe that I can provide that balance. I favor growth control and believe that it can best be accomplished by adoption of the Countywide Plan and a strong growth control ordinance."

Mrs. Forry said she believes there should be coordination in water and land use planning, but that planning should be left with planning agencies.

She also said she sees a need for better communication between the water board and the public, saying "public confidence has been lost because the facts dealing with the district's water supply have been confusing and contradictory.

BETTY FORRY
MMWD candidate

"There is a need for objective evaluation of alternative water supply sources. We need a water management program that reflects the needs and best interests of the total community."

Mrs. Forry was born and educated in Sacramento but has lived in Marin County 14 years. During this time she has served on the Marinwood Parks and Recreation Commission, assisting in the development of the community center complex; as a member of Marinwood Guild of Sunny Hills and on the Guild Governing Council; member of board of directors and chairman of the water committee of the Marin Council for Civic Affairs and as a member of the 1972-73 Marin County Grand Jury, Environmental Forum II and the Marin Conservation League.

She also served seven years on the California State Recreation Commission, having been appointed first in 1961.

She and her husband, Dewey, and their three children live at 2615 Heatherstone Drive.

Mrs. Forry is the second person to announce her candidacy for the water district board. Three seats, those of Felson, Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. and Dr. L. Martin Griffin, are expiring. Winifred S. Frederick, who opposes the district's becoming involved in planning, also has announced candidacy.

A fourth seat, that of environmentalist Ronald T. Stafford, will be up for grabs in a special election in June. Stafford has resigned to return to his native Georgia.

Patrolmen Save Man Trapped On Tracks

Two California highway patrolmen may have saved the life of a young Novato man today when they ran a race against time to halt a roaring freight train.

The drama began at 3:01 a.m. when officers Dennis Richards and Gregory Pitcher, assigned to the North Marin County area, were returning to the Corte Madera station at the end of their shift.

They were the only unit available to respond to a report that a car with a man inside was trapped on the railroad tracks on Highway 37 near Sears Point Raceway in Southern Sonoma County.

While the patrolmen sped to the scene, Sgt. James Dukes telephoned the Northwestern Pacific depot in Petaluma. The dispatcher told Dukes he would alert a train, which had left Petaluma about 20 minutes earlier, that there was a car on the tracks.

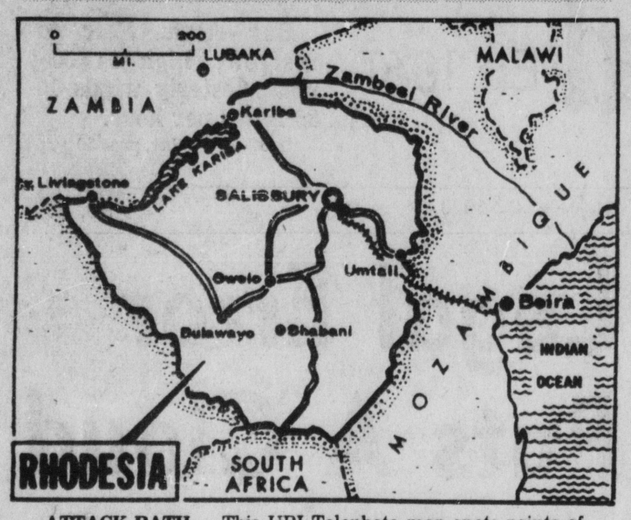
WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere



ATTACK PATH — This UPI Telephoto map spots points of daily attacks against railways and roads linking Rhodesia to the Indian Ocean. Officials fear these attacks may be a prelude to a major new guerrilla drive against the white-ruled nation.

New Violence Seen In Rhodesia

LONDON (UPI) — Daily attacks against railways and roads linking Rhodesia to the Indian Ocean might be a prelude to a major new guerrilla drive against the white-ruled nation in southern Africa, diplomatic sources said today.

The sources said the guerillas were stepping up raids against supply lines running from the port of Beira in Portuguese-held Mozambique to land-locked Rhodesia.

The sources said Rhodesia has doubled the draft of whites into its army, embarked on a military recruiting program to enlist more blacks and formed a cabinet-level, antiguerrilla post to meet the threat.

Arms Talks Resume

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and Soviet Union went back to the negotiating table today in a drive to work out a permanent agreement by the end of the year on limiting the nuclear arms race.

U.S. negotiator U. Alexis Johnson and Soviet delegate Vladimir S. Semenov agreed to resume their discussions today following a three-month lull in the Strategic Arms Limitation talks.

High Rebel Toll

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian infantrymen killed 120 rebel troops in fighting some nine miles southwest of Phnom Penh, the high command said today.

Government forces lost one killed and four wounded in the clash yesterday near Kompong Kantuot, the command reported.

More Patrols

BELFAST (UPI) — The army stepped up patrols today in an Irish Republican Army frontier stronghold following the death of a British soldier in a mine blast.

Authorities said army reinforcements moved into the South Armagh region to assert British control over the 25-square-mile finger of land jutting into the Irish Republic.

Protection Off

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, stripped of his Secret Service protection, will not be offered Maryland state police protection either.

Agnew lost his Secret Service guards while he was on a California golfing vacation yesterday, four months after he resigned and pleaded no contest to a federal income tax evasion charge.

In Annapolis, Md., a spokesman for Gov. Marvin Mandel said Mandel does not plan to reextend an offer of state police protection to Agnew, Maryland governor before he became vice president.

Ignores Threats

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — President Juan D. Peron says he paid little attention to a report from his own police force that leftist guerrillas intended to assassinate him.

"I've been in government for 30 years, and every day they are selling me some plot," Peron said in a statement yesterday.

Federal police said last week they had broken an assassination plot with the arrest of leftist leader Carlos A. Caride. The alleged conspiracy was denounced by Caride as a fraud.

A Rousing Reception For President

Wallace greeted the President at the Redstone Arsenal Airfield when Nixon arrived for an "Honor America Day" ceremony.

"We in Alabama have always honored the office of President of the United States," Wallace said. "We are flag wavers in Alabama, and we don't mind admitting it."

A crowd of about 20,000 turned out in a downtown park to hear Nixon express relief to be out of Washington where "you hear more than anywhere in the world that America is sick.

"Here in the heart of Dixie we find that the heart of America is good, the character of the nation is strong and we're going to continue to be a great nation when we are 200 years old," Nixon said.

"The more difficult the problems, the stronger we become," Nixon said, pointing to the crippled Wallace as an embodiment of this spirit.

The crowd greeting Nixon on the second visit of his presidency to Alabama was overwhelmingly friendly, although some signs demanding his impeachment were displayed.

Most of the signs proclaimed such messages as "God Love Nixon," "We love you, Dick" and "'Bama loves you." Others said "Join Agnew— resign" and "We love USA— Impeach Nixon."

A University of Alabama-Huntsville student, Bud Speake, said he was getting about 20 signatures per hour on a petition calling for Nixon's impeachment and some antagonism.

"Some of the people get a little angry and frown at me, but that's about all," Speake said.

A. C. Bengston of nearby Fayetteville, Tenn., said, "I'm for Nixon all the way.

"I don't believe in impeaching any president, especially President Nixon," Bengston, a middle aged man, said.

Coal Board Backs British Mine Workers In Pay Boost Demands

LONDON (UPI) — The state-run National Coal Board announced today its support for the demand by 269,000 striking coal miners for more pay.

It said they should be treated as a "special case" and that it should be allowed to pay them more than the 16.5 per cent offered so far —the maximum allowed by the government's anti-inflation guidelines.

Coal Board Chairman Derek Ezra said "the mining industry has become vital to Britain as a result of the Middle East oil crisis."

"Improvements in the miners' wages and working conditions are essential," he said.

Ezra was testifying before the government's anti-inflation Pay Board which began hearings yesterday whether the mineworkers should be treated as a "special case" and given more pay.

The miners on Feb. 9 stepped up a 13-week slowdown into a national coal strike to back their demand for more money.

Their walkout plunged the country into what Prime Minister Edward Heath called its worst industrial crisis since World War II. He dissolved Parliament and ordered a general election Feb. 28.

"With the dramatic changes in the need for coal, manpower shortages have begun to appear," Ezra told the coal board.

"The National Coal Board considers it imperative for miners' wages to increase relative to those in other occupations."

More than 2,100 candidates went into the hustings today to do battle in the final 10 days before the general election. Opinion polls made Heath's Conservative party favorites by a narrow margin.

The 2,132 candidates filed for 635 seats in the new House of Commons.

They included 630 Conservatives, 625 Labor, 516 Liberals plus more than 150 others from a grab bag assortment of splinter groups ranging from Communists, National Front, Trotskyites, and Workers Revolutionary party to Welsh and Scottish Nationalists.

New Effort Seen On Mideast Pact

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Israeli press reported today that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger may come to the Middle East in a few days to try to break the deadlock on an Israeli-Syrian troop disengagement agreement.

The reports coincided with statements in Washington by two Arab foreign ministers that they had given "good news" on the Middle East to Kissinger and planned to repeat it to President Nixon today.

Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy of Egypt and Omar Sakkaf of Saudi Arabia told reporters "everything is moving in the right direction" but did not say they were talking about an easing of the oil embargo or the start of Israeli-Syrian talks.

The Arab oil nations have made lifting of the oil embargo contingent on Israeli withdrawal from occupied territories, but Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has urged them to act before final agreement with Israel. Sadat meanwhile ended his feud with Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy in speeches before parliament in Cairo today.

Despite optimism in Israel that Kissinger would soon resume his "commuter diplomacy" between Damascus and Tel Aviv, Syria reported two sharp clashes on the Golan Heights front with Israel today and said the Israelis suffered casualties and lost equipment.

Reports of an imminent Kissinger visit to the Middle East appeared in almost every Tel Aviv newspaper today. An Israeli government source confirmed that Israeli leaders were holding discussions about a Kissinger visit but said there had been no details on timing.

The disengagement accord Kissinger authored for Israel and Egypt was proceeding on schedule toward completion of its fourth phase, the Israeli pullout from the west bank of the Suez Canal. The Israelis must be out of the area by dusk Thursday.

An Israeli military source said units at the frontline positions in the remaining Israeli salient on the west bank will stay in place until the last possible moment in order to cover other withdrawing units.

No figures were available on how many Israeli troops still were on the west bank.

Israeli sappers with dynamite were in a race against time to blow up all useable Egyptian military installations and bunkers on the west bank before the pullout deadline, a military source said. The airfield at Fayid was one of the installations.

"Not everything will be leveled, but only those places that we think can be used by the Egyptians," the source said.

Israeli forces will begin the fifth and final phase of withdrawal Friday from the hole they punched in Sinai in the October war between the Egyptian 2nd and 3rd Armies that are deployed on the east bank of the canal.

They must be behind a new line 13 miles into Sinai, their backs to the Mitla and Giddi passes, by March 5. The soldiers call it the Kissinger Line.

Senator's New Look At Nixon

ATLANTA (UPI) — Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., said yesterday he once considered President Nixon an "astute politican" but that was before the Watergate affair.

Talmadge, a member of the Senate committee investigating Watergate and related matters, said he felt Nixon's handling of the controversy was "incredible...It has been nothing short of inept."

He told an Emory University Law School audience that different versions of the facts were constantly being uncovered "until everyone is confused."

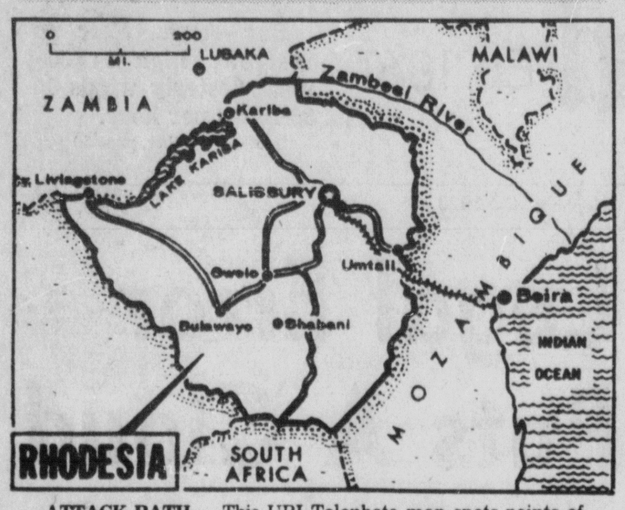
WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere



ATTACK PATH — This UPI Telephoto map spots points of daily attacks against railways and roads linking Rhodesia to the Indian Ocean. Officials fear these attacks may be a prelude to a major new guerrilla drive against the white-ruled nation.

New Violence Seen In Rhodesia

LONDON (UPI) — Daily attacks against railways and roads linking Rhodesia to the Indian Ocean might be a prelude to a major new guerrilla drive against the white-ruled nation in southern Africa, diplomatic sources said today.

The sources said the guerillas were stepping up raids against supply lines running from the port of Beira in Portuguese-held Mozambique to land-locked Rhodesia.

The sources said Rhodesia has doubled the draft of whites into its army, embarked on a military recruiting program to enlist more blacks and formed a cabinet-level, antiguerrilla post to meet the threat.

Arms Talks Resume

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and Soviet Union went back to the negotiating table today in a drive to work out a permanent agreement by the end of the year on limiting the nuclear arms race.

U.S. negotiator U. Alexis Johnson and Soviet delegate Vladimir S. Semenov agreed to resume their discussions today following a three-month lull in the Strategic Arms Limitation talks.

High Rebel Toll

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian infantrymen killed 120 rebel troops in fighting some nine miles southwest of Phnom Penh, the high command said today.

Government forces lost one killed and four wounded in the clash yesterday near Kompong Kantuot, the command reported.

More Patrols

BELFAST (UPI) — The army stepped up patrols today in an Irish Republican Army frontier stronghold following the death of a British soldier in a mine blast.

Authorities said army reinforcements moved into the South Armagh region to assert British control over the 25-square-mile finger of land jutting into the Irish Republic.

Ford Doubts Nixon Will Be Ousted

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — Vice President Gerald Ford defended President Nixon last night and said he doubted the chief executive would be impeached.

"I am proud to defend President Nixon's foreign policy, said Ford, adding the President's programs have "more pluses than minuses."

Ford said he did not believe the House would approve an impeachment resolution against Nixon. He also said he has been "comfortable" defending the President's record since being appointed to the second highest office in the land.

Ford arrived nearly an hour behind schedule following a meeting in Washington with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the foreign ministers of Saudi Arabia and Egypt. He characterized the meeting as "strictly a social gathering" and declined to say what was discussed.

He also praised conservation by individuals and industry and better fuel allocation as helping to ease the energy crunch

"We have made a great deal of progress through the cooperation of the American people in the last three months," Ford told a news conference prior to his address to Chattanooga area engineers.

Mindszenty To Visit The U.S.

VIENNA (AP) — Joszef Cardinal Mindszenty plans to visit the United States later this year.

The 82-year-old cardinal was relieved two weeks ago by Pope Paul VI as archbishop of Estergom and primate of Hungary.

The cardinal's visit was planned "a long time ago" and prior to the Pope's decision, an aide to the cardinal said yesterday.

Msgr. Tibor Mesaros said the visit was "to give courage and confidence" to the many Americans of Hungarian origin.

High School Smoker Bill Is Approved

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Meeting in a holiday session, the Assembly has voted final legislative approval to a bill aimed at creating special student smoking areas in California high schools.

But the measure (SB71) was blocked from going to the governor's desk yesterday by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose, who was granted permission to have the bill reconsidered later this week, probably Thursday.

The bill would permit school districts to set aside special smoking areas in high schools and allow penalties for students who smoke elsewhere. It was authored by Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, and carried in the Assembly by Assemblyman Frank Murphy Jr., R-Santa Cruz.

The Assembly vote was 46-23, five more than the majority needed. It passed the Senate earlier by a bare minimum, 21-18 margin.

By meeting for just over an hour during Washington's Birthday, Assemblymen assured themselves of $120 each in per diem pay they otherwise could not have collected.

Lawmakers are paid $30 per diem for expenses each day of a session, including weekends and days off, as long as no more than three days lapse without a floor meeting.

In the case of the Assembly, which did not convene Friday, four days of per diem pay would have been lost without the holiday session. A total of 71 members appeared for the 11 a.m. roll call.

The Senate did not meet Friday, but had a brief floor session Friday, thus assuring payment of per diem.

Seeks Aiken's Job

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Rep. Richard W. Mallary, R-Vt., has announced he will seek the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate to be vacated by Sen. George D. Aiken.

Balloonist Zipping Along On Flight Across Atlantic Ocean

Gatch was not in contact with the U.S. mainland and knowledge of his position depended on commercial aircraft and land vessels which he might contact by radio.

He was last picked up by radar at John F. Kennedy Airport in New York at 2:44 a.m., EDT, at which time he was about 100 miles eastsoutheast of Bermuda, traveling at speeds between 80 and 130 miles per hour at an altitude of 36,000 feet.

Gatch, 48, of Fairfax County, Va., an Army Reserve colonel and veteran of the Korean War, took off at 7:30 p.m. yesterday from Harrisburg International Airport in a sealed gondola suspended from 10 helium-filled balloons.

The weather at the airport was perfect for the ascent. Strong ground winds had diminished steadily during the day and it was "dead calm" at launch time.

Gatch climbed at a rate of between 400 and 500 feet a minute and at 39,000 feet the balloons were fully inflated and he was in the jet stream, where winds are from 60 to 150 miles per hour.

He was 76 minutes into his flight and over the Atlantic Ocean when he reported hearing a "loud noise." One of the 10 balloons burst and drifted down onto his gandola, draping over one of the three portholes.

At that time, Gatch reported the portholes of the gondola, named "Light Heart," were "slightly iced over." He said the temperature inside the gondola was "comfortable" at 40 degrees, the relative humidity was 68 per cent and "oxygen and life support systems were working properly." His speed was 140 miles per hour, he said.

When the balloon burst, Gatch lost altitude but he compensated by siphoning off liquid ballast and he leveled off at 35,550 feet.

Gatch expected to sleep during the flight on a cot. His 190-pound gondola, six feet in diameter and made of fiberglas reinforced plastic and polyester resin, was expected to draw heat from the sun's rays.

The gondola was equipped with styrofoam flotation devices to keep it upright and floating in the event of a landing in water.

Gatch, a bachelor and West Point graduate who began ballooning three years ago, designed and assembled the "clean energy" balloon system himself, using $60,000 of his own money and working on the gondola for the past year.

If the ocean crossing is successful, Gatch expects to land on the European continent, probably in France or Spain, anytime between tomorrow night and Saturday.

Since the balloons lack the conventional "appendix" to permit gas to escape, Gatch will have to destroy two of the balloons electronically over the European continent to permit a descent.

His gondola carried a parachute and an inflatable raft.

Before leaving on the flight, Gatch said his balloon system was the "most inherently stable" that could be flown.

"Any reasonably alert person could pilot this balloon across the Atlantic," he said.

Ford Doubts Nixon Will Be Ousted

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — Vice President Gerald Ford defended President Nixon last night and said he doubted the chief executive would be impeached.

"I am proud to defend President Nixon's foreign policy, said Ford, adding the President's programs have "more pluses than minuses."

Ford said he did not believe the House would approve an impeachment resolution against Nixon. He also said he has been "comfortable" defending the President's record since being appointed to the second highest office in the land.

Ford arrived nearly an hour behind schedule following a meeting in Washington with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the foreign ministers of Saudi Arabia and Egypt. He characterized the meeting as "strictly a social gathering" and declined to say what was discussed.

But the vice president cited some progress in the Middle East negotiations as part of a brighter energy picture for America.

He also praised conservation by individuals and industry and better fuel allocation as helping to ease the energy crunch.

"We have made a great deal of progress through the cooperation of the American people in the last three months," Ford told a news conference prior to his address to Chattanooga area engineers.

Mindszenty To Visit The U.S.

VIENNA (AP) — Joszef Cardinal Mindszenty plans to visit the United States later this year.

The 82-year-old cardinal was relieved two weeks ago by Pope Paul VI as archbishop of Estergom and primate of Hungary.

The cardinal's visit was planned "a long time ago" and prior to the Pope's decision, an aide to the cardinal said yesterday.

Msgr. Tibor Mesaros said the visit was "to give courage and confidence" to the many Americans of Hungarian origin.

High School Smoker Bill Is Approved

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Meeting in a holiday session, the Assembly has voted final legislative approval to a bill aimed at creating special student smoking areas in California high schools.

But the measure (SB71) was blocked from going to the governor's desk yesterday by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose, who was granted permission to have the bill reconsidered later this week, probably Thursday.

The bill would permit school districts to set aside special smoking areas in high schools and allow penalties for students who smoke elsewhere. It was authored by Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, and carried in the Assembly by Assemblyman Frank Murphy Jr., R-Santa Cruz.

The Assembly vote was 46-23, five more than the majority needed. It passed the Senate earlier by a bare minimum, 21-18 margin.

By meeting for just over an hour during Washington's Birthday, Assemblymen assured themselves of $120 each in per diem pay they otherwise could not have collected.

Lawmakers are paid $30 per diem for expenses each day of a session, including weekends and days off, as long as no more than three days lapse without a floor meeting.

In the case of the Assembly, which did not convene Friday, four days of per diem pay would have been lost without the holiday session. A total of 71 members appeared for the 11 a.m. roll call.

The Senate did not meet Friday, but had a brief floor session Friday, thus assuring payment of per diem.

Seeks Aiken's Job

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Rep. Richard W. Mallary, R-Vt., has announced he will seek the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate to be vacated by Sen. George D. Aiken.

Balloonist Zipping Along On Flight Across Atlantic Ocean

Gatch was not in contact with the U.S. mainland and knowledge of his position depended on commercial aircraft and land vessels which he might contact by radio.

He was last picked up by radar at John F. Kennedy Airport in New York at 2:44 a.m., EDT, at which time he was about 100 miles eastsoutheast of Bermuda, traveling at speeds between 80 and 130 miles per hour at an altitude of 36,000 feet.

Gatch, 48, of Fairfax County, Va., an Army Reserve colonel and veteran of the Korean War, took off at 7:30 p.m. yesterday from Harrisburg International Airport in a sealed gondola suspended from 10 helium-filled balloons.

The weather at the airport was perfect for the ascent. Strong ground winds had diminished steadily during the day and it was "dead calm" at launch time.

Gatch climbed at a rate of between 400 and 500 feet a minute and at 39,000 feet the balloons were fully inflated and he was in the jet stream, where winds are from 60 to 150 miles per hour.

He was 76 minutes into his flight and over the Atlantic Ocean when he reported hearing a "loud noise." One of the 10 balloons burst and drifted down onto his gandola, draping over one of the three portholes.

At that time, Gatch reported the portholes of the gondola, named "Light Heart," were "slightly iced over." He said the temperature inside the gondola was "comfortable" at 40 degrees, the relative humidity was 68 per cent and "oxygen and life support systems were working properly." His speed was 140 miles per hour, he said.

When the balloon burst, Gatch lost altitude but he compensated by siphoning off liquid ballast and he leveled off at 35,550 feet.

Gatch expected to sleep during the flight on a cot. His 190-pound gondola, six feet in diameter and made of fiberglas reinforced plastic and polyester resin, was expected to draw heat from the sun's rays.

The gondola was equipped with styrofoam flotation devices to keep it upright and floating in the event of a landing in water.

Gatch, a bachelor and West Point graduate who began ballooning three years ago, designed and assembled the "clean energy" balloon system himself, using $60,000 of his own money and working on the gondola for the past year.

If the ocean crossing is successful, Gatch expects to land on the European continent, probably in France or Spain, anytime between tomorrow night and Saturday.

Since the balloons lack the conventional "appendix" to permit gas to escape, Gatch will have to destroy two of the balloons electronically over the European continent to permit a descent.

His gondola carried a parachute and an inflatable raft.

Before leaving on the flight, Gatch said his balloon system was the "most inherently stable" that could be flown.

"Any reasonably alert person could pilot this balloon across the Atlantic," he said.

LABOR

country should get on with solving its other problems.

"I think in the present climate, where so much attention is being given to this impeachment issue, the things that are really wrong and need righting are being neglected," President Paul Hall of the Seafarers Union told UPI in an interview.

Hall outlined his views a day after the 35-member AFL-CIO Executive Council reaffirmed its call of last October for the impeachment of President Nixon. Hall in both cases was the only member to dissent.

"I agree precisely with what Nixon said, that one year of Watergate has certainly been enough," Hall said.

He said the main reason he opposed impeachment and supported the President in the 1972 election was that Nixon had made and started delivering a campaign promise to revitalize the American Merchant Marine, manned in part by members of Hall's union.

Critics have charged that Hall may have been influenced by the government's failure to press through on criminal charges against him and other Seafarer officials on charges of improperly raising political funds from members. A federal judge finally dismissed the charges when the government didn't follow through.

The Seafarers' president said it would be a mistake for organized labor to support or oppose congressional candidates in this year's election solely on the basis of their stand on impeaching Nixon.

"A lot of politicians are not going to run on the issues that are important to us, but they're going to run on an anti-Nixon basis," Hall said. "If the labor movement isn't careful, it could well fall into that trap. This would be a great error."

In addition to renewing a call for Nixon's impeachment, AFL-CIO President George Meany said the nation already is in a recession, despite Nixon's declaration last month that there would be no recession this year.

Meany told a news conference yesterday after the opening session of the labor council's winter meeting that economic conditions will get worse before the end of the year, with unemployment rising as high as 6.5 per cent. Joblessness was 5.2 per cent last month.

Dayan Resigning, Radio Reports

TEL AVIV (UPI) — The Israeli national radio said yesterday Moshe Dayan is resigning as defense minister.

The broadcast said he told Labor party colleagues he would not serve in Israel's new cabinet, a statement which means he must resign his post since the new cabinet is to be formed by tomorrow.

23 Flee Blaze In Marina Area

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A three-alarm fire early today swept through a residential flat in the Marina District, sending 23 persons fleeing to the streets before dawn.

Flames spread to two adjoining residential buildings.

Fire Chief Keith Calden estimated damage at $70,000.

Among those escaping the flames was Dante Benedetti, baseball coach at the University of San Francisco and owner of a restaurant.

conductor in the caboose of the freight, rumbling along at about 50 miles per hour, but because of a defective radio in the engine he could not alert engineers Tony Borich and Don Burns, according to Dukes.

"To say the conductor was upset was putting it mildly," the sergeant said.

Meanwhile, officers Richards and Pitcher, with red lights and siren wailing on their patrol car, pulled alongside the train at Lakeville Highway and flashed wildly for it to stop.

Apparently confused, the engineers slowed but did not stop and the patrolmen hurried ahead.

In the rain, Richards ran down the track waving a flare at the oncoming freight train and managed to halt it within a half mile of the car, in which sat Fredric R. Fuller, 22, of 801 South Novato Boulevard.

Fuller, oblivious to the impending danger, told officers that he had driven off the highway to reach a phone booth on a side road and his car got hung up on the rails crossing the track, the patrol said.

Richardson Sorry He Backed Nixon

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson said yesterday he would not have supported President Nixon's reelection in 1972 if he knew then what he knows now about Watergate.

Asked if he would have supported Nixon after Watergate, Richardson paused and then answered, "The only reason I'm hesitating is that he was running against McGovern. But I guess I'd have to say no."

investigation suggests that the five to nine erasure marks within the gap were caused by a defect in the machine rather than by deliberate actions."

President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyers, James D. St. Clair, had said earlier that the gap could have been caused by a defective tape recorder Nixon's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, used in listening to the tape last fall.

The New York Times quoted a Virginia electronics expert today as saying he was "probably the source" of the White House statements about accidental erasure.

Allan D. Bell Jr., president of Dektor Counterintelligence and Security Inc., Springfield, Va., said a defective part was found in the recorder Miss Woods used and that this might have produced tape marks that the other experts concluded were separate erasure.

Building History Lecture Slated

Morgen will discuss San Francisco's European architectural structures and its heritage of Byzantine, Romanesque, Gothic and Renaissance architecture. The event is part of the college's concert-lecture series.

Fire Protection Due Council Study Tonight

The San Rafael City Council will consider an ordinance requiring installation of fire alarm and detection devices in commercial structures when it meets at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

The council will also consider plans for restoration of Boyd House at Mission Avenue and B Street and hear a report on proposed charter amendments.

SQUARE

Mulryan called the matter a tehcnicality, but said there is "always a possibility" someone may file a lawsuit.

Declared Councilman John A. Miskimen: "Obviously, we have another staff error... I don't know what's going to happen."

Councilman Fred E. Jensen, declaring that "all ordinances are subject to referendum," dumped blame for the matter in Robbins' lap and said flatly the mistake could cost the city "millions."

"I guess we would owe McKeon the cost of the land and all improvements... a couple of a million bucks" should a successful referendum drive develop, he said.

"Jesus Christ he (McKeon) could sue us for anything he likes," Jensen declared. "People will think we're a bunch of dumbbells," he added.

Robbins, backed by McKeon attorney Albert Bianchi, said the whole issue is a petty one. "It means really nothing," Robbins said. "It's a typical tempest in a teapot," agreed Bianchi.

Robbins said he was not responsible for the problem. He said he "didn't really know" how the oversight had occurred, saying former City Mgr. James H. McCown "was handling this sale and all administrative matters that went with it."

Robbins said he believes he prepared the ordinance in 1972 and gave it to McCown, never to see the document again.

He said the need for such an ordinance was apparently forgotten when the council approved sale of the square.

"Being such a routine matter, it wouldn't be one of those things to hit me right between the eyes," said Robbins.

Bianchi, meanwhile, said the matter is meaningless since the city can't withdraw its commitment to McKeon. He said the matter may result in a scrap between the "title company and the city . . . We're not going to get near it."

Eugene Hyde, vice president of Marin Title Guaranty Co. which handled title work in connection with the sale, said his firm knew nothing about the ordinance.

"I don't know anything about it," he said in amazement. "No city official has approached us."

City Mgr. William J. Bielser said lack of an ordinance approving the sale first came to light several weeks ago, after a resident requested copies of several city ordinances.

Bielser noted that the city owned the parcel briefly as it passed from the county to McKeon Construction Co. of Sacramento in October, 1972. Th city, he said, acted as an intermediary between the two in carrying out the sale.

The intention was that the builder arrange the purchase with the same party that would regulate what could be built on the Courthouse Square, he said.

The county concurred in this arrangement and sold the parcel to McKeon through the city, he noted.

TRIAL

Stans' attorney also noted that a number of indictments are expected to be filed in Washington once the jury here is sequestered and said Mitchell and Stans reportedly are targets of those indictments.

Gagliardi, in reserving decision on the defense requests, noted that the extent of prejudice caused by Watergate could not be determined until prospective jurors are examined.

Mitchell pushed through scores of spectators and reporters to enter the courthouse for the start of his trial, but his codefendant entered through a side door.

Mitchell, President Nixon's former attorney general, his topcoat draped over his arm despite the chill 36 degree weather, appeared chipper as he arrived for the trial. His wife, Martha, did not accompany him.

Mitchell told waiting newsmen "you'd better believe it" when asked if he was optimistic about the outcome of the trial and also said he was glad the trial finally was under way.

Shortly after the two defendants arrived, jury selection got under way.

The Trial is expected to last at least a month.

Mitchell, 60, and Stans, 65, were charged with perjury, conspiracy and obstruction of justice last May in an indictment accusing each of a total of 10 counts. They could get up to 50 years in prison each if convicted.

Mitchell ran the President's 1968 and 1972 election campaigns, and Stans was Nixon's chief fund-raiser during both campaigns.

The government has accused the two men of trying to influence a federal fraud investigation of financier Robert L. Vesco in return for a $200,000 contribution to the 1972 Nixon campaign.

The two key prosecution witnesses are expected to be Harry Sears and former White House Counsel John W. Dean.

Sears, 53, a New Jersey Republican and Nixon fund raiser, is a codefendant in the case and is portrayed in the indictment as an intermediary between Vesco and Mitchell and Stans. He will be tried later.

LABOR

country should get on with solving its other problems.

"I think in the present climate, where so much attention is being given to this impeachment issue, the things that are really wrong and need righting are being neglected," President Paul Hall of the Seafarers Union told UPI in an interview.

Hall outlined his views a day after the 35-member AFL-CIO Executive Council reaffirmed its call of last October for the impeachment of President Nixon. Hall in both cases was the only member to dissent.

"I agree precisely with what Nixon said, that one year of Watergate has certainly been enough," Hall said.

He said the main reason he opposed impeachment and supported the President in the 1972 election was that Nixon had made and started delivering a campaign promise to revitalize the American Merchant Marine, manned in part by members of Hall's union.

Critics have charged that Hall may have been influenced by the government's failure to press through on criminal charges against him and other Seafarer officials on charges of improperly raising political funds from members. A federal judge finally dismissed the charges when the government didn't follow through.

The Seafarers' president said it would be a mistake for organized labor to support or oppose congressional candidates in this year's election solely on the basis of their stand on impeaching Nixon.

"A lot of politicians are not going to run on the issues that are important to us, but they're going to run on an anti-Nixon basis," Hall said. "If the labor movement isn't careful, it could well fall into that trap. This would be a great error."

In addition to renewing a call for Nixon's impeachment, AFL-CIO President George Meany said the nation already is in a recession, despite Nixon's declaration last month that there would be no recession this year.

Meany told a news conference yesterday after the opening session of the labor council's winter meeting that economic conditions will get worse before the end of the year, with unemployment rising as high as 6.5 per cent. Joblessness was 5.2 per cent last month.

Dayan Resigning, Radio Reports

TEL AVIV (UPI) — The Israeli national radio said yesterday Moshe Dayan is resigning as defense minister.

The broadcast said he told Labor party colleagues he would not serve in Israel's new cabinet, a statement which means he must resign his post since the new cabinet is to be formed by tomorrow.

23 Flee Blaze In Marina Area

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A three-alarm fire early today swept through a residential flat in the Marina District, sending 23 persons fleeing to the streets before dawn.

Flames spread to two adjoining residential buildings.

Fire Chief Keith Calden estimated damage at $70,000.

Among those escaping the flames was Dante Benedetti, baseball coach at the University of San Francisco and owner of a restaurant.

conductor in the caboose of the freight, rumbling along at about 50 miles per hour, but because of a defective radio in the engine he could not alert engineers Tony Borich and Don Burns, according to Dukes.

"To say the conductor was upset was putting it mildly," the sergeant said.

Meanwhile, officers Richards and Pitcher, with red lights and siren wailing on their patrol car, pulled alongside the train at Lakeville Highway and flashed wildly for it to stop.

Apparently confused, the engineers slowed but did not stop and the patrolmen hurried ahead.

In the rain, Richards ran down the track waving a flare at the oncoming freight train and managed to halt it within a half mile of the car, in which sat Fredric R. Fuller, 22, of 801 South Novato Boulevard.

Fuller, oblivious to the impending danger, told officers that he had driven off the highway to reach a phone booth on a side road and his car got hung up on the rails crossing the track, the patrol said.

Richardson Sorry He Backed Nixon

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson said yesterday he would not have supported President Nixon's reelection in 1972 if he knew then what he knows now about Watergate.

Asked if he would have supported Nixon after Watergate, Richardson paused and then answered, "The only reason I'm hesitating is that he was running against McGovern. But I guess I'd have to say no."

investigation suggests that the five to nine erasure marks within the gap were caused by a defect in the machine rather than by deliberate actions."

President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyers, James D. St. Clair, had said earlier that the gap could have been caused by a defective tape recorder Nixon's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, used in listening to the tape last fall.

The New York Times quoted a Virginia electronics expert today as saying he was "probably the source" of the White House statements about accidental erasure.

Allan D. Bell Jr., president of Dektor Counterintelligence and Security Inc., Springfield, Va., said a defective part was found in the recorder Miss Woods used and that this might have produced tape marks that the other experts concluded were separate erasure.

Building History Lecture Slated

Mulryan called the matter a tehcnicality, but said there is "always a possibility" someone may file a lawsuit.

Declared Councilman John A. Miskimen: "Obviously, we have another staff error. . . I don't know what's going to happen."

Councilman Fred E. Jensen, declaring that "all ordinances are subject to referendum," dumped blame for the matter in Robbins' lap and said flatly the mistake could cost the city "millions."

"I guess we would owe McKeon the cost of the land and all improvements. . . a couple of a million bucks" should a successful referendum drive develop, he said.

"Jesus Christ he (McKeon) could sue us for anything he likes," Jensen declared. "People will think we're a bunch of dumbbells," he added.

Robbins, backed by McKeon attorney Albert Bianchi, said the whole issue is a petty one. "It means really nothing," Robbins said. "It's a typical tempest in a teapot," agreed Bianchi.

Robbins said he was not responsible for the problem. He said he "didn't really know" how the oversight had occurred, saying former City Mgr. James H. McCown "was handling this sale and all administrative matters that went with it."

Robbins said he believes he prepared the ordinance in 1972 and gave it to McCown, never to see the document again.

He said the need for such an ordinance was apparently forgotten when the council approved sale of the square.

"Being such a routine matter, it wouldn't be one of those things to hit me right between the eyes," said Robbins.

Bianchi, meanwhile, said the matter is meaningless since the city can't withdraw its commitment to McKeon. He said the matter may result in a scrap between the "title company and the city . . . We're not going to get near it."

Eugene Hyde, vice president of Marin Title Guaranty Co. which handled title work in connection with the sale, said his firm knew nothing about the ordinance.

"I don't know anything about it," he said in amazement. "No city official has approached us."

City Mgr. William J. Bielser said lack of an ordinance approving the sale first came to light several weeks ago, after a resident requested copies of several city ordinances.

Bielser noted that the city owned the parcel briefly as it passed from the county to McKeon Construction Co. of Sacramento in October, 1972. Th city, he said, acted as an intermediary between the two in carrying out the sale.

The intention was that the builder arrange the purchase with the same party that would regulate what could be built on the Courthouse Square, he said.

The county concurred in this arrangement and sold the parcel to McKeon through the city, he noted.

TRIAL

Stans' attorney also noted that a number of indictments are expected to be filed in Washington once the jury here is sequestered and said Mitchell and Stans reportedly are targets of those indictments.

Gagliardi, in reserving decision on the defense requests, noted that the extent of prejudice caused by Watergate could not be determined until prospective jurors are examined.

Mitchell pushed through scores of spectators and reporters to enter the courthouse for the start of his trial, but his codefendant entered through a side door.

Mitchell, President Nixon's former attorney general, his topcoat draped over his arm despite the chill 36 degree weather, appeared chipper as he arrived for the trial. His wife, Martha, did not accompany him.

Mitchell told waiting newsmen "you'd better believe it" when asked if he was optimistic about the outcome of the trial and also said he was glad the trial finally was under way.

Shortly after the two defendants arrived, jury selection got under way.

The Trial is expected to last at least a month.

Mitchell, 60, and Stans, 65, were charged with perjury, conspiracy and obstruction of justice last May in an indictment accusing each of a total of 10 counts. They could get up to 50 years in prison each if convicted.

Mitchell ran the President's 1968 and 1972 election campaigns, and Stans was Nixon's chief fund-raiser during both campaigns.

The government has accused the two men of trying to influence a federal fraud investigation of financier Robert L. Vesco in return for a $200,000 contribution to the 1972 Nixon campaign.

The two key prosecution witnesses are expected to be Harry Sears and former White House Counsel John W. Dean.

Sears, 53, a New Jersey Republican and Nixon fund raiser, is a codefendant in the case and is portrayed in the indictment as an intermediary between Vesco and Mitchell and Stans. He will be tried later.

(UPI Telephoto)

Julie To Rest Up At White House

WASHINGTON(UPI) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower is continuing to recuperate from surgery after her father, President Nixon, detoured Air Force 1 to Indianapolis, Ind., on his flight from Huntsville, Ala., to pick her up.

Nixon stopped off in Indianapolis to pick up Julie yesterday, and to thank the doctors and nurses who helped her recover "extremely well" from emergency surgery five days ago.

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Mrs. Eisenhower will be recuperating at the White House for an indefinite period.

Mrs. Eisenhower was waiting for him in a wheel chair at Indiana University hospital. Her husband, David Eisenhower, pushed the chair past a line of nurses and assistants. They, the President and Mrs. Pat Nixon strolled by, thanking the hospital staff.

Eisenhower and Mrs. Nixon had been staying at the hospital since they flew here last week. Mrs. Eisenhower's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cox, flew in with the President.

Nixon stayed longer than the rest of the family in order to deliver personal thanks to the nurses, dietitians and housekeeping personnel who had cared for his 25-year-old daughter.

"I've always said doctors are important, but nurses are indispensable," Nixon said. "Thank you."

Mrs. Eisenhower moved into the back seat of the presidential limousine while her father stayed outside shaking hands with the crowd which had begun to gather.

Mrs. Eisenhower became ill Wednesday while attending a meeting in Indianapolis with her employers, the publishers of the Saturday Evening Post. She has been making rapid headway since the operation and doctors who examined her yesterday said she was "recuperating extremely well."

Court Will Decide On States' Residency Rules For Divorce

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether it is constitutional for states to impose a one-year residency requirement before a married couple can seek a divorce.

At issue is a lower court ruling upholding Iowa's one-year provision. The case will be argued next fall or winter with a written opinion to follow.

A similar case has been appealed from Rhode Island where a three-judge panel struck down that state's two year residency requirement as unconstitutional. The Supreme Court did not indicate today whether the Rhode Island appeal would be accepted for review.

The court also:

Agreed to rule on the constitutionality of a Louisiana statute that excludes women from jury duty unless they formally declare they wish to serve. Two convicted men claimed the exclusion violated their right to a fair trial.

Let stand a lower court decision that held that former Cook County State's Attorney Edward V. Hanrahan and seven Chicago policemen should stand trial for violating the federal civil rights law in the 1969 raid which resulted in the death of Black Panther leader Fred Hampton and a colleague.

Decided – Decided to review a Georgia law that prohibits using the names of rape victims in news stories or broadcasts.

Agreed to rule in an Ohio case whether the rights of public school students are violated if they are suspended without being first allowed to present their case at an informal hearing.

Agreed to hear an appeal by the Navy from a lower court ruling that the service unconstitutionally favors women officers in connection with promotions and dismissals.

Let stand a California Supreme Court decision that declared that children whose parents are living together in another home are entitled to welfare benefits.

Declined to review an Indiana Supreme Court finding that police are prohibited from obtaining search warrants that compel a suspect to undergo surgery for such evidence as bullet fragments.

The Iowa one-year residence divorce requirement was upheld 2 to 1 by a special three-judge federal panel in Cedar Rapids July 16.

Agreed to decide in a California case if minorities are entitled to bargain or picket on their own behalf on racial matters if they feel a labor union is not operating effectively in the situation.

Let stand a lower court decision granting motion pictures status as tangible property for investment tax credits as the result of a suit filed by Walt Disney Productions.

Judge Older To Have Opponent

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — A deputy district attorney said yesterday he will run against Superior Court Judge Charles Older, who jailed Los Angeles Times reporter William Farr on an open ended contempt sentence in 1972.

Alex Hahanowicz said he was running against Older "not because of any one decision of his in any one case, but because of his conduct" in several cases.

Older jailed Farr on Nov. 27, 1972, for refusing to reveal the sources of a story written in 1970 about the Charles Manson murder trial. Farr, 38, wrote the story while working for the Los Angeles Herald Examiner.

Hahanowicz, who has 21 years experience as a trial deputy, said he was "appalled" by the jailing of Farr.

Station Manager Hires Two Guards

FAIRFIELD (UPI) — Robert Bonser decided that selling gasoline in these days of fuel shortages was getting to be a dangerous business so he hired two armed guards.

He explained that station attendants had been threatened by drivers and that lives had been endangered by the "antics" of drivers maneuvering to get at the pumps.

Romney Urges Full Use Of Removal Powers

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Former Gov. George Romney yesterday urged Congress to make "full use of impeachment procedures" to determine if the President is fit to serve out his term.

However, Romney told Republicans at an Ingham County Lincoln dinner he did not think President Nixon should resign.

Romney warned that the government faces the possibility of a monopolistic economy unless it realigns the wage-price structure.

He said American unions are monopolistic and that wages reflect power, not economic indicators.

Earthquake Hits Island Of Luzon

MANILA (UPI) — An earthquake hit the island of Luzon today, damaging buildings in Manila and causing panic among office workers. There was no immediate report of injuries.

Walls cracked in some tall buildings, display windows shattered and suspended fluorescent lights flew off their sockets. Hundreds of persons rushed into the streets.

Reinecke Says Test Under Study

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, whose gubernatorial campaign has suffered hard sailing through the ITT antitrust storm, says federal investigators are interested in his offer to submit to a lie detector test in the case.

Reinecke made the offer to special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski last week as part of an effort to get "official clearance of my name" from lingering entanglements in the affair.

Asked by newsmen yesterday if he received any response from Jaworski, Reinecke said, "We understand they're interested. They are considering it."

The Republican lieutenant governor said he was "very confident" his involvement in the investigation would be brought to an end soon.

"They're aware of the situation, that I'm a candidate," Reinecke said, expressing hope the matter could be resolved next week.

At issue is when Reinecke told former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell of a $400,000 offer by International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. in 1971 to help underwrite costs of the 1972 Republican National Convention, then scheduled for San Diego.

Mitchell has sworn he knew nothing of the offer until after his Justice Department settled an antitrust suit against ITT on July 31, 1971 on terms favorable to the company.

But Reinecke has given differing accounts of when he notified Mitchell, placing the date both before and after the out-of-court settlement. Most recently, Reinecke said he checked his records and found the correct date was before the suit was resolved.

The varying statements have led to speculation that Reinecke himself could be indicted for perjury in the case, something the lieutenant governor said he doubts.

"I've tried to be as open and as candid and as honest as I can be," he said.

Energy Crunch Doesn't Upset Town In Oregon

STARKEY, Ore. (UPI) — Residents in this remote area of Union County don't worry about the energy crisis. They know they can get along without electricity.

Prior to last May, the Al Wherley family used a gas lantern to supply light at night.

But after California-Pacific utilities installed a 26-mile underground cable, 15 families in the area now have electricity. Before that only Pete Able, who runs a small store just off highway 224 had power, supplied from a noisy gaspowered generator.

"I know people can do without electricity," says Mrs. Wherley. "Because we did."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Sometimes A Nasty Attitude Is Needed For Sounding An Alarm

Part of the equipment you need to play bridge well is a nasty, suspicious nature. This acts as a sort of Geiger counter, sounding the alarm when something fishy is going on.

TO DUMMY

West opened the four of hearts, and South won in his hand with the ace and smoothly led the four of spades toward dummy.

If South went after the diamonds first, an opponent would take the ace of diamonds and knock out the second heart stopper. South would still need a spade trick, but whenever he got around to leading spades an opponent would promptly take the ace of spades and lead hearts to defeat the contract.

BETTER CHANCE

South had a better chance if he tried the spades first. If he could manage to steal just one spade trick South could then switch to diamonds and make sure of nine tricks.

WEST IS TEMPTED

West was tempted to play a low spade at the second trick but he resisted temptation. He looked at dummy's powerful diamonds and wondered what on earth South was doing with the obviously weaker spades. When an expert opponent leaves a strong suit alone and sets to work on a weak suit, you should smell the armoa of fish at a distance of 20 yards.

RIGHT DEFENSE

His suspicions aroused, West found the right defense. West hopped right up with the ace of spades and led another heart. This doomed South. The defenders were sure to get three hearts and their two aces, defeating the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump (16 to 18 points) and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - K 8 7 4
♥ - A 7
♦ - 10 8 3
♣ - A 7 6 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs, the Stayman Convention.

This asks your partner to bid a major suit of four or more cards. If he bids two spades, you will raise to four spades; but if he bids anything else you will bid three no-trump at your next turn.

LACK OF GAS DOESN'T STOP BARGAIN HUNT

Despite, or maybe because of, gasoline shortages, shoppers flocked yesterday to Washington's Birthday sales in Marin County.

"A much better day than last year" was reported by a spokesman for Macy's in San Rafael, one of the few downtown stores to hold a sale yesterday.

"A little increase over last year" in sales was also reported by Ward's in the Corte Madera Shopping Center, but a spokesman at the Emporium in Northgate would only say it "was a successful day."

'Exorcist', 'Sting' Lead Oscar Bidding

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "The Exorcist" and "The Sting" each captured 10 nominations for Academy Awards today as the starting gun sounded for the 46th annual Oscar race.

"The Exorcist", the boxoffice phenomenon of the year which has caused a national preoccupation with the occult, was nominated for best picture in addition to three acting nominations: Jason Miller, best performance by an actor; Ellen Burstyn, best performance by an actress; and Linda Blair, best performance by a supporting actress.

All of the nominees for best supporting actors are newcomers to the Oscar competition:

Vincent Gardenia (Bang the Drum Slowly), Jack Gilford (Save the Tiger), John Houseman (The Paper Chase), Jason Miller (The Exorcist), Randy Quaid (The Last Detail).

Best supporting actress nominations were Linda Blair (The Exorcist), Candy Clark (American Graffiti), Madeline Kahn (Paper Moon), Tatem O'Neal (Paper Moon), and Sylvia Sidney (Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams).

It was the first year in a decade that two juvenile actresses, Miss Blair and Miss O'Neal competed for an acting award.

Nominated for best director were George Lucas (American Graffiti), Ingmar Bergman (Cries and Whispers), William Friedkin (The Exorcist), Bernardo Betolucci (Last Tango in Paris), and George Roy Hill (The Sting).

The last time two youngsters found themselves in the running was in 1962 when Mary Badham (To Kill a Mockingbird) and Patty Duke (The Miracle Worker) were nominated. Miss Duke won the Oscar that year.

The academy membership nominated the following songs as the best of 1973: "All That Love Went to Waste" from "A Touch of Class;""Live and Let Die" from the picture of the same name; "Love" from "Robin Hood;" "You're So Nice to be Around" from "Cinderella Liberty;" and "The Way We Were" from the picture by the same name.

Presentations of award winners will be made April 2 at the 46th annual awards gala in a nationally telecast ceremony.

All pictures including nominated actors and technicians will be screened for members of the academy before final ballots are mailed to the membership.

Universal Pictures led the major studios with 17 nominations for four pictures. It was followed by Paramount with 14 nominations and Columbia and Warner Bros. with 11 each.

Communists Mount Vietnam Offensive

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops pushed ahead today with their heaviest drive in a year, moving 50 tanks across the Cambodia border to within 75 miles of Saigon, military authorities said.

The South Vietnamese command recorded 289 Communist cease-fire violations in the 48 hours ending at dawn today, the highest two-day total in the last year.

In Cambodia, rebel gunners fired on a seven-ship convoy along a 20-mile stretch of the Mekong River yesterday, destroying two ammunition barges and killing or wounding seven seamen, Phnom Penh port police said.

Two other ammunition barges in the convoy reportedly returned to South Vietnam. One petroleum tanker and a cargo ship arrived in Phnom Penh last night while another tanker was scheduled to arrive today.

The Cambodian command said infantry units killed 120 insurgent troops in heavy fighting yesterday near the town of Kompong Kantuot, nine miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

South Vietnamese military sources reported 99 Communist cease-fire violations during the past 24 hours in the Mekong Delta, the hot spot of the latest upsurge in fighting.

Saigon military sources said North Vietnamese armored troops drove 50 assault tanks across the Cambodian border to the de facto Viet Cong capital of Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon.

The sources said the Soviet-built tanks would be used during an expected offensive in two provinces northwest of Saigon already partially controlled by Communist forces.

South Vietnamese officers predicted a tank-led offensive in Tay Ninh province, 55 miles northwest of Saigon, and adjoining Hau Nghia province, 23 miles northwest of the capital.

The sources said the Communists also could conceivably launch a drive on Saigon from Loc Ninh, although such an assault was not expected in the near future.

UFW Moves Strike To Asparagus

CALEXICO (AP) — The United Farm Workers of America struck Imperial Valley asparagus fields today, claiming between 800 and 1,000 workers stayed out to protest Teamsters Union contracts.

But by mid-morning Sheriff Oren Fox said a maximum of 250 men and women were picketing. No violence was reported.

Manuel Chavez, the UFW's organizing director, said lettuce workers who staged "a show of force" yesterday were mostly back in the fields.

"This is a strike," said Chavez, brother of union leader Cesar Chavez. who is mounting a jurisdictional battle against the Teamsters' newly won contracts in the lush Imperial Valley.

"The Teamsters claim to represent all workers in the Imperial Valley, but they got there through fraudulent means. The workers don't want to be represented by the Teamsters."

In two separate meetings early today, Chavez said, a mass strike was authorized by the asparagus workers by a show of hands.

The UFW plans "some strikes in the Yuma area in cantaloupe season" and to picket as well in California's Coachella Valley grape fields in a few weeks, he said. Meanwhile, Cesar Chavez vowed the lettuce walkout "won't be the last one."

Democrat Wins Ford's Seat To End Long Domination By GOP

Vander Veen's victory over favored Republican candidate Robert Vander Laan yesterday was seen as a serious blow to the political fortunes of President Nixon and the GOP Congressional delegation.

"Everything went our way except one thing—Watergate," said State Republican Chairman William McLaughlin. "That killed us."

Vander Veen, the first Democrat elected to Congress from Michigan's traditionally conservative Fifth District since 1910, collected 53,008 votes, 50.9 per cent of the total cast, according to final unofficial tabulations.

Vander Laan, 43, a state senator since 1963, received 46,159 votes, or 44.2 per cent of the total. The remainder was split between American Independent party candidate Dwight Johnson and Socialist Labor party candidate Frank Girard.

A 51-year-old attorney defeated handily by Ford in 1958, Vander Veen had built his campaign around Watergate and other political and economic woes of the Nixon administration.

Having described the election repeatedly as "a referendum on the moral bankruptcy of Richard Nixon," Vander Veen said his victory showed clearly that "Nixon should resign."

At his victory party, he was frequently drowned out by chants of "Nixon Must Go."

"We're sending a message to Washington tonight," Vander Veen told hundreds of cheering supporters. "We're sending that message to two different addresses. One is to Congress. The other is to 1600 Pennsylvania."

Republicans had predicted an easy victory, expecting Vander Laan, a former high school civic teacher, to pick up at least 55 per cent of the vote.

Vander Laan, who had resigned from his leadership post in the senate after winning the GOP primary Jan. 15, declined to assess his defeat. Depicting himself as his own man throughout his campaign, he had kept his distance both from Watergate and Nixon.

"I've had 15 good elections and one bad one," said Vander Laan, who had outdistanced three opponents in his primary win. "That's not a bad record."

White House Copter Caper Leads To Security Review

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army has ordered aviation commands to review security measures because of the stolen helicopter incident that led to a crash-landing at the White House, the Pentagon announced today.

At the same time, police disclosed they have filed two counts of assault on policemen against Pfc. Robert K. Preston, the 20-year-old Fort Meade, Md., helicopter mechanic who buzzed police cars and highway traffic in the stolen chopper Sunday before making a run at the White House.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim, announcing the security review, said Preston remained under psychiatric observation at Walter Reed Army Hospital and no decision had been made on whether court-martial charges will be filed against him.

"The director of Army Aviation has reminded all people under his command to double-check their facilities and aircraft," to preclude aircraft theft, Friedheim said. "I think the other services will be doing the same thing."

Federal prosecutors dropped charges of violating protected White House airspace.

Yes, there's plenty to dislike about the way the world is now.

But dislike doesn't make it better. Helping American Red Cross—The Good Neighbor—does.

Red Cross is more than blood drives. It's more than helping the thousands of victims of disasters. In fact, American Red Cross tackles over 100 different kinds of "Helping People" jobs—in the city, the suburbs, wherever you are. From teaching blind kids to swim... to helping old people get to the clinic.

We need money, it's true, so we can go on offering all our free services. And blood we need. But we also need hearts. And hands. And conviction.

LACK OF GAS DOESN'T STOP BARGAIN HUNT

Despite, or maybe because of, gasoline shortages, shoppers flocked yesterday to Washington's Birthday sales in Marin County.

"A much better day than last year" was reported by a spokesman for Macy's in San Rafael, one of the few downtown stores to hold a sale yesterday.

"A little increase over last year" in sales was also reported by Ward's in the Corte Madera Shopping Center, but a spokesman at the Emporium in Northgate would only say it "was a successful day."

'Exorcist', 'Sting' Lead Oscar Bidding

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "The Exorcist" and "The Sting" each captured 10 nominations for Academy Awards today as the starting gun sounded for the 46th annual Oscar race.

"The Exorcist", the boxoffice phenomenon of the year which has caused a national preoccupation with the occult, was nominated for best picture in addition to three acting nominations: Jason Miller, best performance by an actor; Ellen Burstyn, best performance by an actress; and Linda Blair, best performance by a supporting actress.

All of the nominees for best supporting actors are newcomers to the Oscar competition:

Vincent Gardenia (Bang the Drum Slowly), Jack Gilford (Save the Tiger), John Houseman (The Paper Chase), Jason Miller (The Exorcist), Randy Quaid (The Last Detail).

Best supporting actress nominations were Linda Blair (The Exorcist), Candy Clark (American Graffiti), Madeline Kahn (Paper Moon), Tatem O'Neal (Paper Moon), and Sylvia Sidney (Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams).

It was the first year in a decade that two juvenile actresses, Miss Blair and Miss O'Neal competed for an acting award.

Nominated for best director were George Lucas (American Graffiti), Ingmar Bergman (Cries and Whispers), William Friedkin (The Exorcist), Bernardo Betolucci (Last Tango in Paris), and George Roy Hill (The Sting).

The last time two youngsters found themselves in the running was in 1962 when Mary Badham (To Kill a Mockingbird) and Patty Duke (The Miracle Worker) were nominated. Miss Duke won the Oscar that year.

The academy membership nominated the following songs as the best of 1973: "All That Love Went to Waste" from "A Touch of Class;""Live and Let Die" from the picture of the same name; "Love" from "Robin Hood;" "You're So Nice to be Around" from "Cinderella Liberty;" and "The Way We Were" from the picture by the same name.

Presentations of award winners will be made April 2 at the 46th annual awards gala in a nationally telecast ceremony.

All pictures including nominated actors and technicians will be screened for members of the academy before final ballots are mailed to the membership.

Universal Pictures led the major studios with 17 nominations for four pictures. It was followed by Paramount with 14 nominations and Columbia and Warner Bros. with 11 each.

Star Of Canceled 'Sex Symbol' Movie Offers To Purchase Film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Connie Stevens has offered to buy an American Broadcasting Corp. Movie of the Week, "The Sex Symbol," following the network's decision not to air it as scheduled on March 5.

An ABC spokesman said yesterday that the movie, depicting an actress who is driven to drugs and drink, was being withdrawn because it needed more work.

Other reports, however, indicated that ABC's decision could have been influenced by political overtones raised by scenes in the film recounting a romance between the actress and a U.S. senator.

Miss Stevens said: "I thought the movie was ready and I waited a long time for this. It's the finest thing I have ever done."

Interviewed by phone, Miss Stevens, who is currently appearing in Lake Tahoe, Nev., said she had heard the film would not be aired for at least a year. "If it's a year, I'd like to buy it myself," she commented.

One reason for Miss Stevens' disappointment was said to be that if the film is not aired by March 16, she would not be eligible for an Emmy nomination.

Asked if the scenes involving a U.S. senator were a factor in the decision to withdraw the film, an ABC spokesman said: "I don't know. All I know is that we want to do additional work on the film. We intend to schedule it in the future."

A spokesman for Screen Gems, which produced the movie, said it had to be edited down to 90 minutes from two hours. He said his firm was not aware of any pressure which led to the film being withdrawn.

DELTA IS READY WHEN YOU ARE!®

CHECKING THE blood pressure of Leonard Wilgenbush (right) is Elizabeth Valentinson, who volunteers on weekends in a pilot project of checking for hypertension at a station set up in the Sausalito Pharmacy on Bridgeway. University of California School of Nursing staff who live in Marin originated the project, which will continue next weekend.

NURSES START FREE PROGRAM

A Search For Hypertension

Two Marin nurses on the staff at the University of California School of Nursing have set up a free blood pressure testing program Saturdays and Sundays through February in Sausalito.

Ruth P. Fleshman and Sara Archer of Mill Valley, the nurses, have set up the blood pressure testing station for the public at the Sausalito Pharmacy each Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., with a wholly volunteer professional staff.

A pilot project during Heart Month, the program has already had good response from the public, according to Miss Fleshman, a nurse educator at U.C. in San Francisco. The nurses have donated their time and money to the project of detecting hypertension, and have been joined by other nurse volunteers such as home care nurses to help answer minor health questions.

When high pressure is detected, the patient is strongly urged to see his doctor, they said. Records and statistics are being kept on the incidence of hypertension. They have found several cases.

The nurses hope to obtain funding to set up other blood pressure testing stations in the Bay Area, especially in areas where many black persons live, as black persons are found to have a high incidence of hypertension.

The blood pressure testing is a very quick, simple and painless procedure, and the nurses have a chart there showing what normal blood pressure rates are for the person's age and sex.

The testing will continue next weekend in Sausalito.

ON THE AGENDA

Skipper Will Tell Of Two-Year Journey Of The Yawl Santana

The two-year voyage of the yawl Santana will be the subject of slide-lecture by the yacht's skipper, Charles Peet, at 7:30 p.m., Friday at Campbell Hall in Sausalito.

The program is sponsored by St. Brigid's Guild of Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito. Mrs. Rosemary Seal, guild president, is chairman; and Mmes. George Chapman and Bernard Gratama are hospitality chairmen.

Mr. and Mrs. Peet sailed from Sausalito and back, with stops in New Zealand, Australia and other South Pacific islands. They were joined by their children, Callie, 19, Charles, 17, and Georgie, 15, at ports along the way as school vacations permitted.

The evening is a benefit for St. Brigid's Guild.

MARIN CATHOLIC High School Women's Club will hold its annual father-daughter dinner on Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Kentfield school's cafeteria.

Chairmen are Mmes. Anthony Perez and Lee Grover, assisted by Mmes. George Lino and Paul Vogelheim, both of Mill Valley.

MRS. PAUL WINSLOW, Palo Alto youth counselor, will be the guest speaker tomorrow at the noon meeting of the Santa Rosa Christian Women's Club at Los Robles Lodge in Santa Rosa.

Spring fashions will be shown by Julie Nation of the Empire School of Fashions and music will be performed by Carmelita Canevari and Les Koonce.

Reservations chairmen are Mmes. William Slyker and Herbert Louden. Nursery care will be provided from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Christian Life Center, 415 Steele Lane.

"EVERYTHING YOU Always Wanted to Know About Dogs, but Were Afraid to Ask", is the topic of the program to be presented at the Sausalito Woman's Club at 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

A discussion of leash laws, spaying of female dogs, every day obedience methods, the responsibilities of owners, and dog care will be given. Demonstration of obedience will be conducted with Chows, Old English sheep dogs, Golden Retrievers and Poodles.

Prudence Baxter, Dorothy Carter, Perry Grey, and Kay Courtland will conduct the demonstration with their dogs. All belong to the Sir Francis Drake Kennel Club, and Mmes. Baxter and Carter are also members of the Marin County Dog Training Club.

Committee members are Mrs. Kenneth Logan, program chairman; Mrs. John Kirby, tea; and Mrs. Ricahrd Cruikshank, flowers.

THE AUXILIARY of Sonoma State Hospital will hold its third anniversary coffee on Thursday at 10 a.m. in the supervisors house on the hospital grounds in Eldridge.

A demonstration of musical instruments, used in programs for the sensory deprived, will be given. The instruments were donated by the auxiliary last year.

Mrs. John Scuitto of Novato is in charge of transportation and car pools.

STANLEY H. WESTLUND will speak on "Salesmanship — Friend or Foe" at a public luncheon meeting of the Christian Business and Professional Women's Council Tuesday (Feb. 19) at 6:30 p.m. at the Flamingo Hotel, Santa Rosa.

Westlund has been with a California manufacturing company for 11 years and was awarded the Hardware Industry Salesman of the Year in 1969. He is also midwest district superintendent of the Evangelical Free Church of America, the first layman to serve in this position.

A special feature at the meeting will be a fashion demonstration by Cynthia Bohnker, "Every Woman Should Look her Best."

Music will be performed by soprano soloist Carolyn Boone accompanied by pianist Mrs. Watson Argue.

DR. JAY Leopold will discuss "Lying, Cheating and Stealing . . . Things You Never Taught Your Children" Thursday at the 9:45 a.m. meeting of the Planned Parenthood Auxilary of Marin at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo.

Dr. Leopold practices psychiatry and family therapy in Kentfield.

Plans for the auxiliary's annual Stitchery Faire will be discussed at the meeting. Chairman of the fair to be held May 4, 5 and 6 at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley are Mmes. Peter Van Alyea and Robert Settle, both of Greenbrae.

Committee chairmen are Mmes. Phillip Lamoreaux, exhibits; F. Gentry Harris, Planned Parenthood booth; Jerold Green, display; Robert H. Women Are Sought For Management

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The help-wanted sign is out for more women in management.

There's room at the top, but climbing up there calls for women in business and industry to get out of their specialization rut and for men to assess women's abilities in a new light.

Two women, who have left behind the specialization syndrome, examine the problems of women moving ahead. They report that, in working with many companies who want to find more women managers, "again and again we find that women tend to get trapped within a narrow, specialized hierarchy...we've begun to see that specialization represents not just a skill but a psychological investment.

"THEY EQUATE their own security and value to the company with their particular specialist skills, and they fear the risks involved in giving up those skills to learn a new job—even at a higher level.

"...Men sort of feel that women are more competent, more productive in a specialized field. Women find that's where they find their security, their recognition. They reinforce each others assumptions."

The two who have written "Women in Management; What Needs to be Done?" are Drs. Margaret Henning and Anne Jardim. Both have served on the faculty of the Harvard Business School and have done extensive consulting work with corporations in the area of educating and upgrading women managers.

Their dual writing appears in the current issue of Context, DuPont's house publication.

The two say they're not talking about the five per cent who are the "stars" and will blaze through anything. "We're referring to the average, competent woman...who could be successful at the middle management level in the same way that the average competent man is."

"WHEN MEN look at women in management, they tend to see the best of the women as the average. When they look at men, they do not look at them in the same way.

"For the average woman to make it, she is expected to be as much like a man as she can. Yet..to bring out her real skills and abilities, she can hardly afford to spend the time it takes to be like a man.

"A woman manager has to have the most incredible sources of energy. She not only has to manage the job; she has to summon up enough energy to be superior in the job just to be called average."

She also has to deal with the conflict of other women around her who are "still caught in the specialist bind and who still feel they have been successful and are doing quite well 'for a woman.'"

The Drs. Henning and Jardim say that any male manager who wants to get more women into similar jobs is going to have "to re-evaluate his own way of thinking."

In any company, where there's a woman who's really "initiating, who's doing all the things like a really hot-shot man, a very good, decent manager is goingto believe she's the kind...he wants in his department."

BUT IF he's going to continue to equate most women with that one "star", he isn't "going to open his mind enough nor is he going to take time to uncover other women who have potential."

As more women come into management, the two consultants see a better organization "in terms of productivity, work environment, creativity."

It goes beyond the cliche of women as a vast talent resource—"It's that their presence will allow both men and women to be more creative."

DESIGN FOR PEOPLE

Awkward, Odd-Sized Rooms Can Be Made Into Attractive Areas

By EMILY MALINO
Distributed by United Feature Syndicate

I often hear people complain that they can't do anything with a room or space. To a designer these are fighting words. This is because designers are trained to look at any space as a given, a fixed quantity, to be maximized — or minimized — as needed.

The measurements of any room can be crucial; space is measurable. A good designer always measures first and plans later, taking the physical limitations of any space into account in the basic planning phase of his design.

So if you have an awkward or misproportioned space, take heart. Get out your yardstick and commit the measurements to a scale you can manage on standard-size paper or use graph paper, which you can buy all measured out in neat little boxes, each quarter-inch box equalling one square foot.

I recently worked on just such a badly-proportioned room. Because it was a rebuilt city apartment where a narrow slice of the large living room has been partitioned off to make a master bedroom, a large window dominated this short and narrow space.

There seemed little room for anything, especially a double bed, which the owner wanted. But when I measured and drew the space to scale, it turned out to be 8½ feet wide by 17 feet long; strange, to be sure but wide enought for a double or queen-size bed, which is approximately 6½ feet long.

I placed the bed at the far end of the room, at right angles to the window wall; this left about 2 feet of space at the foot of the bed. Not enough for any furniture, ture, but enough to squeeze by and to make up the bed, which is on casters and easily swings away from the window on the smooth floor.

I used the near part, or foreground, of the room for the usual bedroom furniture. A double bureau is wall-hung, giving a light look to a normally cumbersome piece, and the opposite wall supports a handsome steel shelf system, which comfortably contains hi-fi, books and even a portable television.

An upholstered cube on wheels becomes a convenient prop for clothes, bedding or any of the other things that clutter the average room.

I used a rich medium grey suede-like vinyl on all the walls, like a soft wrapping, accented by white accents in the painted shelves, the white tile floor and the bureau.

The sheets and pillow covers are hyacinth blue, and the fur spread and leather cube combine with the Navajo rug for a rich and natural look that makes sparks of interest and texture in this narrow nest.

Nearly Half Of Brides In Austria Pregnant

By WERNER VOLLMANN

VIENNA (AP) — Forty-six per cent of the Austrians marry when their first child is already on the way, a research institute noted in a recent survey. Fifteen per cent marry after the child is born.

In 1915, the percentage of babies born out of wedlock or shortly after the wedding ceremony was only 27.

The research institute drew no conclusions from these findings, nor did it try to determine whether the babies born before or shortly after the wedding ceremony were unwanted.

THE SURVEY was made amid a heated debate on whether or not to legalize abortions. The Austraian parliament recently adopted a bill which legalizes abortions if they are carried out within three months after conception.

This ran into bitter criticism from the two opposition parties and from the Catholic church.

All parties agreed, on the other hand, that a campaign on methods of contraception should minimize the need for abortion.

The purpose of the research institute was to investigate the attitude of Austrians regarding children generally.

The Viennese were found to love children, which contradicted the more pessimistic view of Vienna's mayor, Leopold Gratz, a father of two himself. He felt the Viennese were hostile toward children.

More than two-thirds of the people polled said they thought two children would be an ideal number to have. One-fifth favored three, and two per cent four and more children. Only a tenth of all Viennese who already have two children want another.

HOWEVER, IF the majority of the Viennese mean what they say and had two children, this city of 1.6 million people would not have to rely on an influx from other provinces to keep the number constant.

Each year more people die in Vienna than are born. In 1971, for instance, the ratio was 17,198 births to 28,516 deaths, but, as Vienna still attracts newcomers, the population level is maintained by arrivals from rural districts.

The average family in Vienna has 1.4 children, not enough to fill the gap.

Most children are in families where the husbands are from one to five years older than the wives. In families higher up on the social ladder, the wish for three and more children was also more pronounced, the report said.

WHEN THE husband is more than five years older, or in families where the wife is older than the husband, the number of children drops below the average.

Younger couples have their children at shorter intervals and after five years of marriage have all the children they want. Family planning was considered a good idea by 88 per cent of the Viennese.

CHECKING THE blood pressure of Leonard Wilgenbush (right) is Elizabeth Valentinson, who volunteers on weekends in a pilot project of checking for hypertension at a station set up in the Sausalito Pharmacy on Bridgeway. University of California School of Nursing staff who live in Marin originated the project, which will continue next weekend.

NURSES START FREE PROGRAM

A Search For Hypertension

Two Marin nurses on the staff at the University of California School of Nursing have set up a free blood pressure testing program Saturdays and Sundays through February in Sausalito.

Ruth P. Fleshman and Sara Archer of Mill Valley, the nurses, have set up the blood pressure testing station for the public at the Sausalito Pharmacy each Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., with a wholly volunteer professional staff.

A pilot project during Heart Month, the program has already had good response from the public, according to Miss Fleshman, a nurse educator at U.C. in San Francisco. The nurses have donated their time and money to the project of detecting hypertension, and have been joined by other nurse volunteers such as home care nurses to help answer minor health questions.

When high pressure is detected, the patient is strongly urged to see his doctor, they said. Records and statistics are being kept on the incidence of hypertension. They have found several cases.

The nurses hope to obtain funding to set up other blood pressure testing stations in the Bay Area, especially in areas where many black persons live, as black persons are found to have a high incidence of hypertension.

The blood pressure testing is a very quick, simple and painless procedure, and the nurses have a chart there showing what normal blood pressure rates are for the person's age and sex.

The testing will continue next weekend in Sausalito.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Schoolgirl's Letter Inspires A Rehabilitated Drug Addict

RAP:

This is written by a 26-year-old rehabilitated drug addict. He was imprisoned three years ago. Soon after, his wife — the only strength he had — divorced him. This experience left him lonely, cold and hurt.

He recently visited a high school with a group of fellow prisoners. Three days later he received his first letter in three years. It was from a student who told him she admired his courage.

Her letter brought him so much happiness that he wrote a poem about a subject a lonely person knows only in his hopes and dreams: Love.

It's dedicated a A Girl Who Cared, even though he couldn't share it with her personally.

I love you freely, Without restrictions.

I love your understanding, Without doubt.

I love you honestly, Without deceit.

I love you creatively, Without conditioning.

I love you now, Without reservations.

I love you physically, Without pretending.

I love your soul, Without wishing.

I love you. By Leroy Brooks, No. 52375.

DEAR RAP:

In college last year I got friendly with a girl I saw occasionally.

We have no classes together this semester and I will be transferring schools in the fall, so we'll probably drift apart.

But she has asked me to be her only bridesmaid at her small June wedding. I don't feel close enough to her to spend $65 for a dress I'll never wear again, plus matching dyed shoes at around $15. She has chosen a frilly, fancy party dress for the attendant; that isn't "me at all.

I don't know her family, or even her fiance. How do I gracefully get out of this? — SHARON

DEAR SHARON:

Why not tell your friend the truth — or anyway half the truth? Admit you can't afford college-money on a dress that will just hang in your closet and remind you of the three or four books you could have bought instead. — SUE

DEAR SHARON:

Your letter raises a point which needs stressing: only very lcose friends or relatives of the engaged pair are asked to pariticpate in a wedding. And a refusal should not be taken as a personal affront.

The cost in money and time are often more than young people can afford, especially when so many of them these days aren't too keen on big, expensive ceremonies. — HELEN

RAP:

I'd like to travel on a shoestring overseas this year. What's a good free booklet I can get to tell me all I want to know about summer trips overseas? — JO

DEAR JO:

A free Student Travel Catalog is now available on request from The Council on International Educational Exchange, 777 U.N. Plaza, New York, N.Y., 10017. The 34-page booklet includes applications and order forms, describes everything from international student identity cards and charter flights to a "summer jobs in Britain" program. Happy traveling. — HELEN AND SUE

Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel —or both, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.

Couple Sets July Date For Wedding

Mary Ann Theresa Caiati of San Anselmo and Robert Vaughan Nelson of Fresno have set a July 6 wedding date. The couple's engagement has been announced by her mother, Mrs. William H. Caiati of San Anselmo.

Mary Ann is also the daughter of the late Mr. Caiati, and she is the sister of James P. Caiati of Novato and Helen Caiati of San Anselmo.

She is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and attended Healds Business College in San Francisco. She is employed by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway in San Francisco.

Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence V. Nelson of San Anselmo and the brother of Laurence A. Nelson of Mill Valley.

He is a graduate of Susan Miller Dorsey High School in Baldwin Hills and California State University, Long Beach. Robert is employed with Sears, Roebuck and Co. in Fresno.

Children To Learn The Performing Arts

A performance-oriented school for young boys and girls has opened in Petaluma and plans to present children's productions during the year.

The Petaluma Children's Theater, started by Mr. and Mrs. Lou Casazza and Marie Boyland, will hold classes each Saturday from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. in the Lan Mart Theater, 29 Petaluma Boulevard North, to introduce children to the performing arts of dance and dialogue to increase awareness of the art of form and encourage self-esteem, said the coordinators.

Courses planned are classical ballet, Royal Academy method; gymnastic movement, involving floor exercise, limbering, ballet technique and acrobatics; jazz and tap dancing; and musical comedy and acting technique; the art of stage presence, dialogue and improvisation.

A boys class will include dance movement, tap and tumbling combination.

Evening adult classes planned, will include exerjazz, a combination of jazz dance and exercise for fun and relaxation, and musical comedy for adults interested in local theatrical performance.

Mrs. Casazza, a native of England and a student of the Cecchetti and Royal Academy methods of classical ballet, lived and taught an adult class in movement and exercise in Mill Valley before she moved to Petaluma. She has taught ballet for the Petaluma Park and Recreation Department and is working for a teaching credential at Sonoma State College.

Her husband teaches drama, acting playwrighting and stagecraft at Sir Francis Drake High School. He has acted in the Shakespeare Festival in Stratford, Conn., and in the "World of Arthur Hoppe," for Dennis Percy productions of San Francisco.

He has directed musical productions including "Oliver," "My Fair Lady" and "Threepenny Opera" and was apprentice master at the Festival Theater in San Anselmo in 1969.

Casazza is also a masters degree candidate at Sonoma State College.

Marie Boland specializes in ballet, tap, jazz, acrobatic and Hawaiian dance. She studied in Washington, D.C., and performed professionally for three years in the Washington-Virginia area. She taught tap, jazz and acrobatics in San Bernardino at a private studio and chorographed musical productions in high schools there.

Since moving to Petaluma she has taught tap dancing for the Park and Recreation Department and Petaluma Girls Club.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Schoolgirl's Letter Inspires A Rehabilitated Drug Addict

RAP:

This is written by a 26-year-old rehabilitated drug addict. He was imprisoned three years ago. Soon after, his wife — the only strength he had — divorced him. This experience left him lonely, cold and hurt.

He recently visited a high school with a group of fellow prisoners. Three days later he received his first letter in three years. It was from a student who told him she admired his courage.

Her letter brought him so much happiness that he wrote a poem about a subject a lonely person knows only in his hopes and dreams: Love.

It's dedicated a A Girl Who Cared, even though he couldn't share it with her personally.

I love you freely, Without restrictions.

I love your understanding, Without doubt.

I love you honestly, Without deceit.

I love you creatively, Without conditioning.

I love you now, Without reservations.

I love you physically, Without pretending.

I love your soul, Without wishing.

I love you. By Leroy Brooks, No. 52375.

DEAR RAP:

In college last year I got friendly with a girl I saw occasionally.

We have no classes together this semester and I will be transferring schools in the fall, so we'll probably drift apart.

But she has asked me to be her only bridesmaid at her small June wedding. I don't feel close enough to her to spend $65 for a dress I'll never wear again, plus matching dyed shoes at around $15. She has chosen a frilly, fancy party dress for the attendant; that isn't "me at all.

I don't know her family, or even her fiance. How do I gracefully get out of this? — SHARON

DEAR SHARON:

Why not tell your friend the truth — or anyway half the truth? Admit you can't afford college-money on a dress that will just hang in your closet and remind you of the three or four books you could have bought instead. — SUE

DEAR SHARON:

Your letter raises a point which needs stressing: only very lcose friends or relatives of the engaged pair are asked to pariticpate in a wedding. And a refusal should not be taken as a personal affront.

The cost in money and time are often more than young people can afford, especially when so many of them these days aren't too keen on big, expensive ceremonies. — HELEN

RAP:

I'd like to travel on a shoestring overseas this year. What's a good free booklet I can get to tell me all I want to know about summer trips overseas? — JO

DEAR JO:

A free Student Travel Catalog is now available on request from The Council on International Educational Exchange, 777 U.N. Plaza, New York, N.Y., 10017. The 34-page booklet includes applications and order forms, describes everything from international student identity cards and charter flights to a "summer jobs in Britain" program. Happy traveling. — HELEN AND SUE

Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel —or both, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.

Couple Sets July Date For Wedding

Mary Ann Theresa Caiati of San Anselmo and Robert Vaughan Nelson of Fresno have set a July 6 wedding date. The couple's engagement has been announced by her mother, Mrs. William H. Caiati of San Anselmo.

Mary Ann is also the daughter of the late Mr. Caiati, and she is the sister of James P. Caiati of Novato and Helen Caiati of San Anselmo.

She is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and attended Healds Business College in San Francisco. She is employed by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway in San Francisco.

Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence V. Nelson of San Anselmo and the brother of Laurence A. Nelson of Mill Valley.

He is a graduate of Susan Miller Dorsey High School in Baldwin Hills and California State University, Long Beach. Robert is employed with Sears, Roebuck and Co. in Fresno.

New Soft Look

The new soft look to fashions makes the chunky, clunky shoe a no-no for spring. Look instead for light, delicate looking footwear with high, shapely heels.

Children To Learn The Performing Arts

A performance-oriented school for young boys and girls has opened in Petaluma and plans to present children's productions during the year.

The Petaluma Children's Theater, started by Mr. and Mrs. Lou Casazza and Marie Boyland, will hold classes each Saturday from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. in the Lan Mart Theater, 29 Petaluma Boulevard North, to introduce children to the performing arts of dance and dialogue to increase awareness of the art of form and encourage self-esteem, said the coordinators.

Courses planned are classical ballet, Royal Academy method; gymnastic movement, involving floor exercise, limbering, ballet technique and acrobatics; jazz and tap dancing; and musical comedy and acting technique; the art of stage presence, dialogue and improvisation.

A boys class will include dance movement, tap and tumbling combination.

Evening adult classes planned, will include exerjazz, a combination of jazz dance and exercise for fun and relaxation, and musical comedy for adults interested in local theatrical performance.

Mrs. Casazza, a native of England and a student of the Cecchetti and Royal Academy methods of classical ballet, lived and taught an adult class in movement and exercise in Mill Valley before she moved to Petaluma. X-Rays For Breast Cancer Urged

A new approach to the detection of breast cancer — the use of x-rays rather than manual self-examination — is being recommended by the American Cancer Society.

Increasing evidence shows that by the time a lump appears in the breast, the cancer may already have spread beyond the point of origin, according to a report in Today's Health. In the view of Dr. Benjamin F. Byrd J., chairman of the society's Commission on Cancer, "breast cancer probably preexists the lump by five to eight years."

Plans have been made to establish 20 dianostic centers throughout the country, and large-scale educational programs will be instituted to urge women to undergo screenings.

THIS IS an all-around good muscle toner and it will develop coordination and grace. Stand tall with your feet together, toes pointing forward. Raise your arms forward to shoulder height and shoulder width apart as you swing your right leg forward-upward as high as you can and still keep your torso erect.

Now swing your leg back and up as far as you can, as you move your arms to sideward shoulder height position. Lift your chin. Return arms and leg to place. Do the same thing but swing your left leg this time. Continue alternating left and right. Legs should be straight throughout, toe pointed.

IMPROVE YOUR BEAUTY

You Can Lose Weight By Easter

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN
(Seventh in a series of 15 articles.)

Soon Mother Nature will put on her new spring outfit and she will look lovely. How are you going to look in yours?

If you are overweight, there is still time to lose from 15 to 20 pounds before Easter. Even eight or ten pounds too many can make shopping a chore instead of a pleasure.

This is the seventh day of this course. If you have been following it, you have weighed and measured yourself and are well launched on the adventure of self improvement. A few weeks from now you can look and feel like a different person. Soon you will want to plan your own reducing menus. Let me help with some suggestions now.

In the first place, what you eat is as important as how much you eat. When your calorie intake is cut there is no room for junk foods.

For good results it is necessary to include all of the goods needed for best health. Let the four food groups guide you. They are: 1. dairy products, 2. fruits and vegetables, 3. meat, eggs, seafood, fish and poultry, 4. cereals and bread. A few simple rules will help and later on I will bring you some tricks to make reducing easier.

YOU SHOULD have a well rounded diet but take smaller servings than usual. Substitute skim or powdered fat-free milk for whole milk. Avoid fried foods. Eat more fish, poultry and veal than beef because of their lower fat content. Remove all visible fat from meat. Cut down on butter or margarine. Use consomme instead of gravy. Have the fat removed from meat before it is ground for a patty.

If you use canned fruit be sure it is water-packed. Use herbs generously for seasoning. More about that later. Be sure to have enough protein in your diet. Otherwise weight loss may come from lean tissues instead of extra fat.

These really are not such terrible restrictions, are they?

Stamp Is Asked In Honor Of Ayala's Landing

The Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society has requested the Stamp Advisory Board in Washington, D.C., to consider issuing a commemorative stamp honoring the 200th anniversary of Lt. Juan Manuel de Ayala's arrival in San Francisco Bay in 1775.

Ayala, commander of the San Carlos, is credited with opening the Golden Gate to world commerce and making the first nautical survey of San Francisco Bay.

Mrs. John Ericson of Larkspur, director of the society, originated the stamp idea.

Society president Charles Durrie of Tiburon has requested support from 40 individuals and groups who may be able to help save this stamp issued. Their letters will be forwarded by the Landmarks Society to Norman Halliday, assistant postmaster general, Washington, D.C.

X-Rays For Breast Cancer Urged

A new approach to the detection of breast cancer — the use of x-rays rather than manual self-examination — is being recommended by the American Cancer Society.

Increasing evidence shows that by the time a lump appears in the breast, the cancer may already have spread beyond the point of origin, according to a report in Today's Health. In the view of Dr. Benjamin F. Byrd J., chairman of the society's Commission on Cancer, "breast cancer probably preexists the lump by five to eight years."

Plans have been made to establish 20 dianostic centers throughout the country, and large-scale educational programs will be instituted to urge women to undergo screenings.

THIS IS an all-around good muscle toner and it will develop coordination and grace. Stand tall with your feet together, toes pointing forward. Raise your arms forward to shoulder height and shoulder width apart as you swing your right leg forward-upward as high as you can and still keep your torso erect.

Now swing your leg back and up as far as you can, as you move your arms to sideward shoulder height position. Lift your chin. Return arms and leg to place. Do the same thing but swing your left leg this time. Continue alternating left and right. Legs should be straight throughout, toe pointed.

IMPROVE YOUR BEAUTY

You Can Lose Weight By Easter

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN
(Seventh in a series of 15 articles.)

Soon Mother Nature will put on her new spring outfit and she will look lovely. How are you going to look in yours?

If you are overweight, there is still time to lose from 15 to 20 pounds before Easter. Even eight or ten pounds too many can make shopping a chore instead of a pleasure.

This is the seventh day of this course. If you have been following it, you have weighed and measured yourself and are well launched on the adventure of self improvement. A few weeks from now you can look and feel like a different person. Soon you will want to plan your own reducing menus. Let me help with some suggestions now.

In the first place, what you eat is as important as how much you eat. When your calorie intake is cut there is no room for junk foods.

For good results it is necessary to include all of the goods needed for best health. Let the four food groups guide you. They are: 1. dairy products, 2. fruits and vegetables, 3. meat, eggs, seafood, fish and poultry, 4. cereals and bread. A few simple rules will help and later on I will bring you some tricks to make reducing easier.

YOU SHOULD have a well rounded diet but take smaller servings than usual. Substitute skim or powdered fat-free milk for whole milk. Avoid fried foods. Eat more fish, poultry and veal than beef because of their lower fat content. Remove all visible fat from meat. Cut down on butter or margarine. Use consomme instead of gravy. Have the fat removed from meat before it is ground for a patty.

If you use canned fruit be sure it is water-packed. Use herbs generously for seasoning. More about that later. Be sure to have enough protein in your diet. Otherwise weight loss may come from lean tissues instead of extra fat.

These really are not such terrible restrictions, are they?

Demos Told Not To Ride Watergate

ATLANTA (UPI) — Florida Gov. Reubin Askew said last night that Democrats can "slide by" on a wave of Watergate anti-Republicanism next November, but the party should be more concerned with rebuilding the previously Democratic "solid South" that President Nixon swept in 1972.

"As one party member sees it, Democrats will probably slide by this fall simply by not being Republicans," Askew told 1,000 fellow party members at a Jefferson-Jackson dinner.

"That, to me, is not much to gloat over or write home about, nor is it much of a strategy on which to build for the future, for it will be a foundation built on sand, and any advantage would be shortlived."

Askew said southern Democrats should work toward rebuilding the Roosevelt era solid South with long-term economic and environmental programs, rather than taking political advantage of the passing Watergate scandal.

Actress Seeking Parliament Seat

LONDON (UPI) — Vanessa Redgrave is leading a double life.

At night, she dresses in glamorous evening gowns to star in a Noel Coward comedy. By day, she wears brown boots and white raincoat to tramp the streets as a Trotskyite candidate for Parliament.

The 6-foot-tall actress, who stands politically a shade to the left of Jane Fonda, is one of the nine candidates of the Trotskyite Workers' Revolutionary Party.

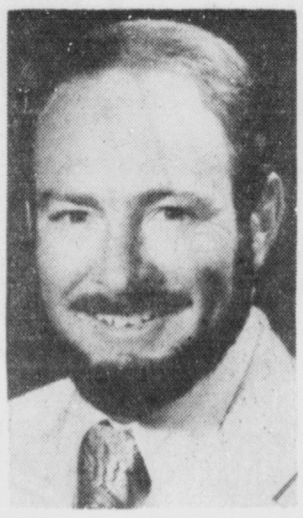
When not playing the fickle heroine in "Design for Living" at the Phoenix Theatre, she's walking through the shabby streets of Newham North East in search of votes among the polyglot population.

Her choice of constituency is no accident. The seat is held by Reg Prentice, a Labor Party critic of radicalism in the union movement.

For a woman who has spent most of her working life in show business, she surprisingly tells members of the press, "I don't want any publicity."

She prefers to rely on the statement she made at the press conference announcing her candidacy: "The economic crisis has compelled me to go into the conflict and stand with the people who are being exploited."

The 37-year-old daughter of Sir Michael Redgrave, a pillar of the acting establishment, tells voters her party will halt rising prices and end unemployment by nationalizing basic industries and banks, without compensation.



ASTRONAUT — Edgar Mitchell, an engineering test pilot and the sixth Apollo astronaut to walk on the moon, will speak on human awareness and the development of human potential on Thursday at 8 p.m. in the College of Marin gymnasium.

France, Libya Sign Bilateral Oil Pact

PARIS (UPI) — France and Libya signed an agreement today to exchange oil for industrial aid, the third such bilateral deal France has made since the energy crisis started.

Libyan Premier Abdel Sallam Jalloud said, "This agreement can be the first step toward a French-Arab cooperation that can build a bridge between the Arab countries and Europe."

A spokesman for Premier Pierre Messmer said the deal, which is the type that has provoked American criticism, excludes weapons.

Neither side mentioned the amount of oil or money involved.

Messmer and Jalloud signed the agreement in a white and gilt hall of the Hotel Matignon, the premier's official residence.

The spokesman said the document was "a declaration of cooperation" under which talks will be held to decide on specific projects.

Jalloud and his party flew to Budapest immediately after the signing.

The agreement follows one France has made with Saudi Arabia for the provision of oil and technical aid and a $5 billion deal with Iran for technical cooperation including the building of a pipeline to bring natural gas to Europe.

Dissidents At Concordia Plan To Open A Seminary In Exile

ST. LOUIS, Mo., (UPI) — Dissident students and faculty members at Concordia Seminary planned to open a seminary-in-exile today as an answer to the firing of 45 faculty and staff members yesterday in a dispute that has torn apart the seminary and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

The faculty and staff members were dismissed by the seminary board of control after they defied an ultimatum to return to classes and end a campus boycott that began Jan. 21 after the board voted to suspend the Rev. Dr. John H. Tietjen as seminary president.

The new seminary-in-exile will hold classes at the Jesuit-run St. Louis University and at Eden Technological Seminary, faculty spokesmen said, and also at the homes of professors and at other churches sympathetic to the faculty in their doctrinal dispute with the conservative Synod and seminary officials.

At the regular seminary, the Rev. Dr. Martin Scharelmann, acting seminary president since the suspension of Tietjen, said yesterday that 33 persons have been approved as possible guest lecturers to come to the campus and hopefully begin regular classes. Officials said registration for the third quarter of the academic year will be held March 2.

The dispute, centered around the question of strict interpretation of scripture as opposed to critical reading of biblical narratives, has brought two groups within the synod into sharp, sometimes bitter conflict. Tietjen is the leader of the moderate faction wishing to use the historical-critical method of reading scripture while the Rev. Dr. Jacob A. O. Preus, president of the synod, is the leader of the conservatives.

Most of the 700 students at the seminary, main teaching ground in the three-million-member synod, have stood firmly behind Tietjen and the moderates, boycotting classes. The faculty showed their solidarity yesterday as the noon deadline for their return to classes passed, standing shoulder-to-shoulder as they sang the hymn, "The Church's One Foundation."

The dispute centers around such biblical stories as Jonah and the Whale and Noah and the Ark. The moderate minority says such events can be interpreted as parables which can be applied to everyday situations; the conservative majority insists they are descriptions of actual events.

The minority says the Bible can err in matters of history, geography and sin, but cannot err in bringing the gospel to men. The majority says there is no error of fact of any kind in the Bible and apparent contradictions may be caused by copyists' errors or by a lack of understanding on the readers' part.

The boycott by all but two members of the seminary's faculty and all but 17 of the 700 students began after Tietjen was suspended from his position as seminary president for teaching false doctrine.

The seminary said the dismissed faculty members must vacate campus housing by Feb. 28. About 18 faculty members live with their families, including about 35 children, in campus housing.

The Rev. Dr. Robert Bertram, speaking for the faculty members, said, "This is one clean sweep. The air is clean, and it is easier to make decisions now."

The seminary board of control was divided on the dismissal action, and several board members asked that other solutions be explored before the faculty members be fired. However, the prevailing view was that the seminary, which is the nation's third-largest Protestant seminary, should be returned to normal operations as soon as possible.

Tugboat Rams Canal Lock, Causing Flood

HARVEY, La. (UPI) — A tugboat rammed through the Harvey canal lock today, unleashing a 15-foot high wall of Mississippi River water that capsized a second tug and flooded a 12-square block subdivision, the Coast Guard reported.

The captains of both vessels reported all crewmen accounted for, but a bridge tender reported to the Coast Guard he saw two bodies floating down the canal, a 12-foot deep channel across the river from New Orleans and used as a barge passage between the river and the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway.

Water overflowed the banks of the 200-foot wide canel and rose to as high as three feet in the streets. Residents were evacuated but returned to their homes several hours later after the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers stopped the flow by dropping huge 40-ton steel beams across the lock.

At the regular seminary, the Rev. Dr. Martin Scharelmann, acting seminary president since the suspension of Tietjen, said yesterday that 33 persons have been approved as possible guest lecturers to come to the campus and hopefully begin regular classes. Officials said registration for the third quarter of the academic year will be held March 2.

The dispute, centered around the question of strict interpretation of scripture as opposed to critical reading of biblical narratives, has brought two groups within the synod into sharp, sometimes bitter conflict. Tietjen is the leader of the moderate faction wishing to use the historical-critical method of reading scripture while the Rev. Dr. Jacob A. O. Preus, president of the synod, is the leader of the conservatives.

Most of the 700 students at the seminary, main teaching ground in the three-million-member synod, have stood firmly behind Tietjen and the moderates, boycotting classes. The faculty showed their solidarity yesterday as the noon deadline for their return to classes passed, standing shoulder-to-shoulder as they sang the hymn, "The Church's One Foundation."

The dispute centers around such biblical stories as Jonah and the Whale and Noah and the Ark. The moderate minority says such events can be interpreted as parables which can be applied to everyday situations; the conservative majority insists they are descriptions of actual events.

The minority says the Bible can err in matters of history, geography and sin, but cannot err in bringing the gospel to men. The majority says there is no error of fact of any kind in the Bible and apparent contradictions may be caused by copyists' errors or by a lack of understanding on the readers' part.

The boycott by all but two members of the seminary's faculty and all but 17 of the 700 students began after Tietjen was suspended from his position as seminary president for teaching false doctrine.

The seminary said the dismissed faculty members must vacate campus housing by Feb. 28. About 18 faculty members live with their families, including about 35 children, in campus housing.

The Rev. Dr. Robert Bertram, speaking for the faculty members, said, "This is one clean sweep. The air is clean, and it is easier to make decisions now."

The seminary board of control was divided on the dismissal action, and several board members asked that other solutions be explored before the faculty members be fired. However, the prevailing view was that the seminary, which is the nation's third-largest Protestant seminary, should be returned to normal operations as soon as possible.

Tugboat Rams Canal Lock, Causing Flood

HARVEY, La. (UPI) — A tugboat rammed through the Harvey canal lock today, unleashing a 15-foot high wall of Mississippi River water that capsized a second tug and flooded a 12-square block subdivision, the Coast Guard reported.

The captains of both vessels reported all crewmen accounted for, but a bridge tender reported to the Coast Guard he saw two bodies floating down the canal, a 12-foot deep channel across the river from New Orleans and used as a barge passage between the river and the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway.

Water overflowed the banks of the 200-foot wide canel and rose to as high as three feet in the streets. Residents were evacuated but returned to their homes several hours later after the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers stopped the flow by dropping huge 40-ton steel beams across the lock.

Marin Agencies Get Fund Grants

Nineteen Marin County schools, community betterment programs and charitable organizations received a total of $198,108 from the San Francisco Foundation in the fiscal year ending last June 30.

The foundation's 25th annual report yesterday revealed that the foundation's officers approved a total of $282,942 for the Marin County projects, not all of which has yet been turned over to the supported agencies.

The San Francisco Foundation voted $3.35 million in grants throughout the Bay Area, during the fiscal year.

Marin educational institutions receiving grants from the foundation included Dominican College, $59,300 for handicapped curriculum innovation; Katharine Branson School, $25,000 general support; College of Marin housing and counseling services for disadvantaged, $1,000, and Marin Country Day School, scholarships for poor and minority students, $5,000.

In the field of environmental and civic problems, grants were approved for:

Audubon Canyon Ranch, $3,342 for Tomales Bay study and general support; Ecumenical Housing Association, a second $15,000 grant for low income housing; Louise A. Welfare organization grants include: Catholic Social Service of Marin, $5,191 to house San Quentin visitors; Marin City Employment Service, $10,000 general support, and Planned Parenthood of Marin, $3,600 staff support.

The San Francisco Foundation is the fifth largest of the nation's 240 community foundations, and made the country's third largest total of grant payments last year.

War Hero's Trial To Start March 26

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Petaluma war hero Richard Allen Penry will stand trial March 26 in superior court here on charges of selling cocaine.

A motion seeking dismissal of the charges was rejected Friday by Sonoma Superior Court Judge Kenneth M. Eymann, according to court officials.

Penry's lawyer, Robert Mackey, had told the court the charges should be dropped because publicity surrounding the Oct. 4 arrest of the Vietnam veteran precluded a fair trial.

Shortly after Penry's arrest, the Sonoma County sheriff's department said he was a "major dealer" in illegal drugs in Sonoma County.

Penry, 24, received the Congressional Medal of Honor from President Nixon in June, 1971, for "conspicuous gallantry" in saving his wounded company commander and 18 wounded soldiers who were caught in an ambush in 1970 in Bihn Tuy Province, South Vietnam.

Reception Set By Artist Group

A public reception will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the California Room at the Civic Center library for members of the Terra Linda Art Association who are displaying their work at the library now through Feb. 28.

Clear Skies Forecast For Awhile

As quickly as stormy weather swept into Marin yesterday, clear skies reappeared today and forecasts call for fair weather through tomorrow.

Drizzle persisted in many parts of Marin yesterday afternoon and turned to much heavier precipitation last night. Rainfall figures ranged from .54 inch in Novato to 2.15 inches in Larkspur.

Other rainfall amounts reported were San Anselmo .69, Woodacre 1.01, Petaluma .56, Sausalito 1.35, Mill Valley 1.56, Tamalpais Valley 1.6, Corte Madera 1.57, San Rafael .62 and Bolinas 1.20.

Cloud cover yesterday and last night forced temperatures to remain relatively constant and in Sausalito yesterday's high reading of 50 degrees was only four degrees above last night's low reading of 46.

Colder temperatures are expected to accompany the clear skys tonight as low temperature readings could dip into the upper 30s. High temperatures will remain in the 50s with northwesterly winds from 15-30 miles per hour predicted.

Fire Report Clarified By Barrows

Marin County Administrator John F. Barrows said today that his office has made no recommendation for providing fire service to unincorporated areas around San Rafael but is still studying various options.

He said he didn't interpret a report prepared by his office, suggesting one or possibly two new fire stations be built in the area, to be a recommendation.

The report, prepared by Barrows' administrative analyst, Brian W. Dodd, concludes that expansion of the county fire department "would be a good value. . ." when compared to the proposed costs of contracting with the City of San Rafael.

Dodd's report outlined three fire department expansion options which vary in the number of new fire stations to be built and the amount of equipment and staffing to be provided.

It is to be considered tomorrow by the Local Agency Formation Commission when it decides whether to approve formation of a county service area to finance improved fire protection. Such a taxing agency must be approved by area voters.

Theft Prevention Seminar Topic

Burglary prevention will be the topic of a seminar Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of Henry C. Hall School in Larkspur.

Larkspur Police Chief Howard H. Clark and two community service officers from his department will lead the seminar for Larkspur residents as part of Project 459, a county-wide anti-burglary program.

"Invitation to Burglary," a film featuring Raymond Burr, will also be shown.

Public Hearing

Public hearing on the proposed Corte Madera general plan will continue before the Corte Madera Planning Commission tomorrow at 8 p.m. in town hall. The commission will continue hearing on the plan's housing element.

Sausalito Man Saved After Boat Capsizes

A Coast Guard spokesman reported that John Terence Ward of 26 Curry Avenue was in the water near his 15-foot cabin cruiser when a Coast Guard rescue craft arrived after being summoned by Tiburon police.

Another boat manned by a local resident towed Ward's cruiser to the Corinthian Island Yacht Club.

Neither the Coast Guard nor the police had information on what caused the boat to capsize.

Moratorium On Switching To Condominiums Sought

A moratorium on processing applications to switch from apartments to condominiums management was proposed last night by the Novato Planning Commission.

Zoning administrator Charles J. Linthicum recommended that the city hold up on accepting any applications for 120 days.

The intent of the delay is to give the staff time to come up with new standards to cover condominiums. The delay will not apply to applications now being processed.

Commissioner Daniel P. Donovan was absent.

Shopping Center Cost Study Asked

A Corte Madera couple has asked the town council for permission to form a committee to investigate the financial costs to the town of the proposed Hahn regional shopping center.

The request by Leo and Barbara Becker of 6 Council Crest Drive will be considered by the council tonight at 7:30 in town hall.

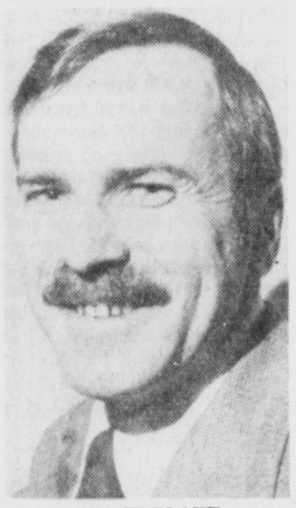
The council will also consider a request by Town Treasurer Frank Bigley that he be allowed to run for Marin County treasurer.

Town ordinances require that any employee seeking election to another position obtain council approval.

Bird Nesting Areas Will Be Open

The Audubon Canyon Ranch, nesting area for great egrets and great blue herons, will be open weekends and holidays from March 2 through July 30 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

April 15 to June 15 is the height of the nesting season for the birds, which can be viewed from lookout points on ranch trails. The ranch is on Bolinas Lagoon, three miles north of Stinson Beach on Shoreline Highway.



BRUCE BLAKE
New museum director

Blake Named As Director Of Museum

Bruce O. Blake, former executive director of the Oakland Museum Association, has been appointed executive director of the Boyd Science Museum in San Rafael, according to Anne H. Charles, president of the museum's board of trustees.

Blake, a San Anselmo resident for the past 10 years, most recently has been with the San Francisco Bay Area Council, where he served as director of governmental relations and research.

He was executive director of the Oakland Museum Association from 1967 to 1972, during which time he participated in the completion and opening of the museum in 1969. He also was responsible for many of the museum's volunteer education programs as well as other activities at the museum.

Previously he held positions as executive director of the San Francisco Youth Foundation and associate director of the Foreign Policy Association.

Blake also has participated in volunteer activities in Marin, including serving on the board of trustees of the Festival Theater and as its production state manager.

Blake replaces Stephen Siegel, who resigned in December, saying he thought it was time for a change.

Prosecutor In Agnew's Case To Leave Post

BALTIMORE (UPI) — George Beall, the chief federal prosecutor for Maryland who spearheaded the investigation of political corruption which led to the resignation of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, plans to resign from his post when his four-year term expires in August.

Beall, 36, said he will stay on if only if the corruption probe has not been concluded by that time.

Beall, a Republican and brother of Sen. J. Glenn Beall Jr., R-Md., was appointed U.S. attorney for Maryland by President Nixon in 1970.

He said he has received offers from some private firms but so far has made no decision.

Rezoning Eyed Of Peninsula

Rezoning of San Quentin Peninsula, requiring all landowners to submit development to the city at the same time, will be considered by the Larkspur City Council tomorrow at 8 p.m. in city hall.

Owners of small parcels have protested the rezoning because it requires them to wait until owners of larger holdings are ready to submit their plans.

The council will also consider extending its development moratorium on open space lands along the North Ridge.

Council To Study Speed Limit Hike

A proposal to increase speed limits on parts of Miller and East Blithedale avenues and Camino Alto in Mill Valley as a result of the findings of state required traffic surveys will be discussed by the Mill Valley City Council today at 8 p.m. at city hall.

According to Police Chief William A. Walsh, the survey results indicate that 85 per cent of the drivers are going from five to ten miles faster than the posted speed limit of 25 miles per hour on these streets. A new state law has asked cities to use the speed of these drivers as the standard in setting speed limits.

Sausalito Council Eyes Moratorium

A four-month moratorium on review of development applications for the waterfront will be considered by the Sausalito City council at 8 p.m. today in council chambers on Bridgeway.

The planning staff is asking for the ban to give it time to hire a consultant and complete traffic studies for Bridgeway and other streets in the waterfront area, according to planning director Herb Case.

Blake Named As Director Of Museum

Bruce O. Blake, former executive director of the Oakland Museum Association, has been appointed executive director of the Boyd Science Museum in San Rafael, according to Anne H. Charles, president of the museum's board of trustees.

Blake, a San Anselmo resident for the past 10 years, most recently has been with the San Francisco Bay Area Council, where he served as director of governmental relations and research.

He was executive director of the Oakland Museum Association from 1967 to 1972, during which time he participated in the completion and opening of the museum in 1969. He also was responsible for many of the museum's volunteer education programs as well as other activities at the museum.

Previously he held positions as executive director of the San Francisco Youth Foundation and associate director of the Foreign Policy Association.

Blake also has participated in volunteer activities in Marin, including serving on the board of trustees of the Festival Theater and as its production state manager.

Blake replaces Stephen Siegel, who resigned in December, saying he thought it was time for a change.

Prosecutor In Agnew's Case To Leave Post

BALTIMORE (UPI) — George Beall, the chief federal prosecutor for Maryland who spearheaded the investigation of political corruption which led to the resignation of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, plans to resign from his post when his four-year term expires in August.

Beall, 36, said he will stay on if only if the corruption probe has not been concluded by that time.

Beall, a Republican and brother of Sen. J. Glenn Beall Jr., R-Md., was appointed U.S. attorney for Maryland by President Nixon in 1970.

He said he has received offers from some private firms but so far has made no decision.

Rezoning Eyed Of Peninsula

Rezoning of San Quentin Peninsula, requiring all landowners to submit development to the city at the same time, will be considered by the Larkspur City Council tomorrow at 8 p.m. in city hall.

Owners of small parcels have protested the rezoning because it requires them to wait until owners of larger holdings are ready to submit their plans.

The council will also consider extending its development moratorium on open space lands along the North Ridge.

Council To Study Speed Limit Hike

A proposal to increase speed limits on parts of Miller and East Blithedale avenues and Camino Alto in Mill Valley as a result of the findings of state required traffic surveys will be discussed by the Mill Valley City Council today at 8 p.m. at city hall.

According to Police Chief William A. Walsh, the survey results indicate that 85 per cent of the drivers are going from five to ten miles faster than the posted speed limit of 25 miles per hour on these streets. A new state law has asked cities to use the speed of these drivers as the standard in setting speed limits.

Sausalito Council Eyes Moratorium

A four-month moratorium on review of development applications for the waterfront will be considered by the Sausalito City council at 8 p.m. today in council chambers on Bridgeway.

The planning staff is asking for the ban to give it time to hire a consultant and complete traffic studies for Bridgeway and other streets in the waterfront area, according to planning director Herb Case.

Who Pays For House Built On Dreams?

Suppose you had a great yearning for a country home, and you worked out a plan for just what you wanted, but found that your predictable income fell 'way short of financing it.

It would be nice, wouldn't it, if you could go ahead and start building that country home and depend on somebody unknown to bail you out?

THAT APPEARS to be what Baxter, McDonald and Smart have done in their $80,000 study of the economic impact of the Marin County general plan — at least, in their preliminary report.

When the plan was before county supervisors last year, objections were raised to lack of any data on its economic impact. How do we know we can afford it?

The supervisors adopted the plan anyhow, but hired Baxter et al to study and report on the economic impact.

TOTAL COSTS of implementing the plan were estimated by the county planning department in its "User's Guide" as $1.61 billion to $1.67 billion through 1990. The lower of these two figures is more than 21 times the total county budget for this year. In other words, the plan's cost would exceed the total cost of county government at the present level for the next two decades.

Mass transit alone was estimated at $515 million. And of this, $198 million was to come (the planning department wishfully hoped) from federal and state grants, and another $175 million from "new sources" which nobody could even imagine.

Baxter et al brushed this aside with, "We construe the mass transit system . . . to be that proposed by the Marin County Transit District."

Perhaps the consultants were unaware that the transit district is seeking to quintuple its tax rate to pay the county's share of deficits of the existing transit system, and the Golden Gate Bridge District has hiked tolls 50 per cent for the same purpose.

THE "USER'S GUIDE" estimated cost of open space lands at $69 million to $125 million, with $50 million to $85 million to come from federal and state grants, and $19 million to $40 million from "new sources" — unfound.

It estimated $244 million will be needed from state and federal grants and $125 million from undiscovered "new sources" for housing subsidies.

Baxter et al's preliminary report does not even cite any of these figures. But it has a recommendation: Go after more federal money. The county isn't aggressive enough in doing so, say Baxter, McDonald and Smart.

THIS IS CRYSTAL gazing with a vengeance. The state and federal money figured in the original plan are "iffy" in the extreme. The likelihood of those amounts from Uncle Sugar and Sacramento is not one that any person in his right mind would bet on. So the "solution" is to try to get more!

Such things as extensive revision of water, sewage and drainage systems, upgrading of residential streets to carry the proposed mass transit, etc., etc., aren't even touched on in the preliminary report. But all would have considerable economic impact.

We wonder, after reading the report, whether Baxter et al have been really studying the economic impact of the plan's proposals in the eight months since they got their $80,000 contract.

Or do they just propose to start building that country home — and maybe run out of money before the foundations are in?

Hard To Blow Whistle On Misuse Of Staffs

By EARL G. WATERS

It appears the whistle is about to be blown on at least part of the misuse of legislative employees.

Time was when the lawmakers had little or no staff. That was before the era of Jesse Unruh and the advent of the "fulltime professional legislator."

In other days when the legislature met in session only part of the year and devoted the rest of the time to interim committee work, competent researchers were engaged to develop facts pertaining to problems under study. The employees were apolitical and concerned themselves only with the legislative work, in the same manner as those in the legislative counsel and legislative analyst's offices.

A PROLIFERATION of personal aides has sprung up in the past few years. Not only does each member have his lieutenants at the capitol, all now have "field offices" in their districts. And, for the most part, these employees are political activists. As such they concern themselves with campaigns.

This would be bad enough if they limited their activities to the campaign of the member for whom they work, for there is a serious question of the legality of using a person on a public payroll for political campaign purposes. But many have injected themselves into the campaigns of others. They not only work against members of the opposite party but have been used in connection with ballot issues.

Rather than halt or discourage this improper activity, the leadership has encouraged it by establishing staffs for the minority and majority caucus groups of each house.

Both parties are guilty. By tacit consent they have permmited the caucus employees to engage in purely partisan activities which heretofore were always deemed the function of party central committees, using private funds.

Further, as it has developed, the caucus employees are more dedicated to the aggrandizement of the caucus chairmen than of all the party members equally.

IT IS THIS latter fact which seems to have rankled the members more than the questionable overall political activity of caucus and other legislative employees.

Sen. Lawrence E. Walsh, D-Commerce, is out to abolish the caucus staffs, if not the caucuses themselves. Walsh thinks it is dead wrong for the legislature to pay for employees to further the personal political ambitions of the caucus chairmen. He points to the fact that both Democratic caucus chairman Mervyn Dymally and Republican caucus chairman John Harmer are candidates for lieutenant governor.

While Dymally has resigned as chairman, Harmer has not. And it is this latter fact that appears to be blocking Walsh's move to eliminate the caucus employees. Although veteran Republican Sen. Donald L. Grunsky of Watsonville says he will support Walsh's effort, other Republicans are being prevailed upon by Harmer to oppose the move. Obviously, Harmer relishes the idea of having a publicly paid staff working in behalf of his political aspirations. It reduces his need for campaign funds.

Both political parties would be better served if Walsh prevailed in his goal to eliminate paid party workers.

Reasons For Shortage Of Gasoline In Marin

The letter to the editor of Feb. 5 was quite interesting to read. You see, I also am a Chevron dealer in Mill Valley (Tiburon side of 101) and I feel a portion of our gasoline problem we are faced with today is a lack of communication to the gasoline consumer.

The present-day fuel allocations are based on 1972 purchases by your service station. For the first 10 months of 1972 a major gas war was raging in San Francisco where the price of gasoline dropped as low as 25.9 cents per gallon. This was made possible by the oil companies by subsidizing the dealers involved. By our industry figures, a full 20 per cent of Marin County fuel consumption was purchased in San Francisco. This figure is not limited to Chevron, but to all major oil companies.

So we as station dealers in Marin County are not only faced with this loss from 1972, we have had no increase for the normal growth factor for the past two years, and we also have the allocation cut from those 1972 figures. For example, in January of 1974 Chevron Dealers received only 85 per cent of their 1972 purchases. This will perhaps explain why the supply of fuel in Marin County is far behind the demand of the customer.

Now for the other part of the problem. During the latter part of January there were many stations that had used up their allocation early and were either closed or open for service work only. The result was long lines of traffic at the pumps and the surrounding streets for those stations that had fuel. Panic buying had begun. As many as 50 per cent of the cars coming in here only taking four to seven gallons of gas. The situation still exists. At our particular station, we open at 7 a.m. and have our daily allotment sold by 11 a.m. If we pump one more car that day, that is one less car we can pump the following day. If we continue to do this for the first 20 days, we would not have gas for the latter part of the month.

Our business, and the services you have come to expect of it, are in grave economic jeopardy . . . We can only do the best we can with what we have.

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

A report shows some McGovern committeees had funds left over after the 1972 campaign. Everything considered, it was probably the best money they never spent.

There are some advantages to being president. Nixon had his medical exam in the time many of us spend in the doctor's office waiting to be told which lab to go to.

After the truckers' strike, Nixon looks more favorably toward trains. Ever hear of a locomotive blocking a gasoline station?

If you pronounce 'sheikh" as "shake," it's easy to see why a lot of people consider the oil crisis an Arab sheikhdown.

Now We're Getting Nostalgic For The Month Before Last

WASHINGTON — Everyone seems to agree that the United States is going through a nostalgia craze. What people are not aware of is that the nostalgia gap, which used to be 10 to 20 years, is closing fast, and now people talk about the good old days of a year or six months ago.

Cyrus Wankle, who runs a nostalgia store here in Georgetown, says that the biggest nostalgic items in his store are less than 12 months old.

"I GUESS THE ENERGY crisis is responsible," he said. "People talk about the good old days and they want something to remind them of the past. For example, here is some Tupperware. Remember when you used to get a plate every time you bought five gallons of gasoline? And here are some green stamps. It's hard for people to imagine the days when they got green stamps just for driving into a gas station."

"Those were great times," I said, wiping a tear from my eye.

"Here are some ashtrays with Spiro Agnew's photograph on them."

"Who?"

"Spiro Agnew. He was the 39th vice president of the United States."

"Under whom?"

"Richard M. Nixon."

"Oh yeah. I think I remember."

"What do people do with them?"

"They frame them and hang them on the wall. They make lovely decorations and bring back fond memories of an era we'll never see again."

"What are these photographs?" I asked.

"I think I remember the hearings. The faces look familiar, but I can't place the names."

"That's why the photos sell so well. No one can remember any of the witnesses, but they associate them with a past that was so much happier and simpler than it is today."

"WHAT ARE THESE Earth Day bumper stickers?"

"Well, a few years back environment was a big thing in this country and everyone talked about it. People used to put Earth Day stickers on their cars and hold rallies demanding clean air and water. It was quite a fad. Now the only people who are interested in environment are collectors."

"I hate to show my ignorance, but I see these Richard Kleindienst match covers. Who was Richard Kleindienst?"

"Wait a minute, I'll look it up in the Nostalgia History Catalogue," Wankel said. "Here it is: Richard Kleindienst was attorney general under Nixon, after John Mitchell and before Elliot Richardson and William Saxbe. He didn't last very long, so he didn't have many match covers made."

"That political poster over there is interesting. It says 'Taxpayers for Nixon' and it's signed "The Committee for the Re-Election of the President.' "

"People buy them as gags," Wankle said.

I WALKED DOWN the aisle and saw a glass case. Inside were cuts of sirloins, filet mignons and T-bone steaks with 1972 prices on them. My mouth watered.

"How much are these?" I asked Wankle.

"That's my private nostalgia collection of meat," he said. "It's not for sale."

JOSEPH C. HARSCH

Oil Conference Shows NATO Surviving — But Just Barely

WASHINGTON — Sec. of State Henry Kissinger called last week's meeting of oil consumers in Washington a "success," and indeed, in two respects, it was.

It did set up a continuing group to work cooperatively toward long-term solutions of the energy problem. And it did see the survival of the theory of West European cooperation with the United States. The concept of Atlantic community lives.

But to get this into proportion it needs to be noted that this survival of the Atlantic community concept was a "near thing." Not since Charles DeGaulle ordered American troops out of France in 1967 has the idea of that community been so hard pressed as during this conference.

THE FRENCH SAW the conference as an American device for attempting to reassert American dominance over Western Europe. Dr. Kissinger saw it as a cooperative attempt to apply the machinery of the Atlantic community to the problems of energy.

Twinned with this struggle by different names was the issue over French leadership of the Common Market group. In the end it was a determined struggle between French and Americans for the loyalty of the eight non-French members of the Common Market community who attended the conference. Were they to follow Jobert of France or Kissinger of the United States?

And in the end the eight stayed with the Americans, and the French took up an ambiguous position about oil and energy. Perhaps they will take part in some further conference. Perhaps they won't. They did not break totally or definitely with the eight, or with Washington.

One way of summarizing it all is to say that the French tried to lead their Common Market partners out of the Atlantic community — and failed. When the eight had to choose between Paris and Washington they found the choice painful. But they stayed with Kissinger.

As of this moment no one can be sure which is the true picture. As so often in war, diplomacy, and politics, the follow-up determines how great or illusory is the outcome of the immediate battle.

At the very least Kissinger, who for so long has been preoccupied with the Far East and Middle East and has neglected Europe, has a chance to try now to repair the years of neglect. It was indeed such a "near thing" here in Washington last week that he has been warned.

Many diplomats in Washington and NATO capitals see the policy of detente with Russia as being incompatible with NATO and the Atlantic community.

Kissinger insists that they are compatible. And yet he also talks about a five-power world in the future and about floating balances of power, which implies fluid relationships among the five. If all the relationships are to be fluid, then Western Europe floats by itself, no longer tied firmly by treaties of alliance to the United States.

Also, Kissinger is accustomed to speaking in highly critical terms of the European allies. There is a memorandum circulating around Harvard University these days on a meeting which Kissinger held last Dec. 6 with seven Jewish professors and writers. He is quoted in the memo as having described the behavior of the Europeans over the oil crisis as "craven," "contemptible" and "pernicious." The use of these words has not been denied. They rankle among the Europeans.

OF COURSE, this is by no means the first time a question has been raised about the applicability of NASO to some particular crisis. When tested over Korea, it did apply, but only just. When tested over the French at Dien-bienphu, it did not apply. When tested over an American role in Vietnam it did not apply.

Events have proved that NATO is certainly valid over a Russian threat to Western Europe. But they also show that an extension outside Europe is highly doubtful. The Europeans no more backed Kissinger over the Arab oil issue than they did over Vietnam.

But the fact remains that the French have resumed what amounts to a major offensive against American leadership of the NATO alliance. We are back to the days of DeGaulle. How serious is it and how tenacious? And will the other Europeans continue to choose Washington whenever Paris tempts them to pull away?

The fact is that the detente policy is washing away at the foundations of the alliance and is testing them. The meeting in Washington is a jolting reminder that NATO will not survive automatically. Positive effort is needed to keep it sturdy and in line with the times. To many, it already seems to belong to the past.

Maginot Line Myopia Still Rules France In Oil Crisis

WASHINGTON — As the old saying goes: with allies like France, who needs enemies? Reluctantly attending the 13-nation energy conference, French foreign minister Michel Jobert did what his government expected of him. That was to run the conference down to the lowest common denominator of a talk session.

His European partners, fed up with French go-it-alone policies, will determine whether the disruption goes beyond this ephemeral conference. In the long run isolation is likely to be self-defeating for France, but it can also be a disaster for a Europe that seemed on the verge of unification.

Jobert was born in 1921 in Meknes, Morocco, which was then a French colony. At 26, he was a student in the Ecole Libre Science Politique. He must have a memory of the terrible winter of 1947. Hunger, disease, economic breakdown, that was the order of the day with the Communists threatening to take over the ruin.

THE MARSHALL PLAN came into being with an awareness of Western Europe's desperate plight. Whether the total provided under that plan was $50 billion or closer to $100 billion — figures vary depending on what elements are included in the computation — Europe turned the corner.

France and Germany became two of the world's most prosperous nations, their currency putting the dollar to shame.

Gratitude? Heaven forbid! A whole generation has grown up since 1947 and 1948 with only a textbook knowledge of how close total breakdown came. All Washington asked at this point was a minimum of harmony for a closer look at the threat of the oil shortage and the tripling and quadrupling of prices.

The tragedy of France is that for all her great achievements, and they are very great indeed, go-it-alone has so often been self-defeating.

"WE ARE A NATION of individualists." What visitor to France has not heard that?

The record of the years is grim. Take these dates that are like a series of epitaphs for the grandeur that was:

1870 — The defeat of France by a Germany, with the small states united in a powerful militarist nation bent on conquest.

1914 — The beginning of trench warfare and the slaughter of the best and the bravest; and 1917 when the Yanks did come and contributed greatly to a "victory" that had cost the West so much in blood and treasure that recovery was frustrated in the great depression.

1940 — The Maginot Line and the belief that France could wall off the enemy with a fixed fortified position facing the East; and 1941, the Nazi occupation and the toll it took.

France is now making individual go-it-alone oil deals trying to get the jump on the rest of Europe. The largest of these is the widely heralded $5-billion deal with Iran. Others with oil-producing Arab states call for what is in effect the barter of military equipment such as the Mirage plane for oil.

In this is clearly a Maginot-Line psychology. Ignoring the likelihood that it may shatter the barter of military equipment such as the Mirage plane for oil.

FRENCH HOSTILITY toward the United States is understandable. It comes of the bubbling and arrogance of American diplomacy from time to time during the past 25 years.

It comes out of the passionate conviction that given the grandeur of the past, France, a nation of 51 million people, must be a superpower; must have its own nuclear striking force, however tiny.

For example, in January of 1974 Chevron Dealers received only 85 per cent of their 1972 purchases. This will perhaps explain why the supply of fuel in Marin County is far behind the demand of the customer.

Now for the other part of the problem. During the latter part of January there were many stations that had used up their allocation early and were either closed or open for service work only. The result was long lines of traffic at the pumps and the surrounding streets for those stations that had fuel. Panic buying had begun. As many as 50 per cent of the cars coming in here only taking four to seven gallons of gas. The situation still exists. At our particular station, we open at 7 a.m. and have our daily allotment sold by 11 a.m. If we pump one more car that day, that is one less car we can pump the following day. If we continue to do this for the first 20 days, we would not have gas for the latter part of the month.

Our business, and the services you have come to expect of it, are in grave economic jeopardy . . . We can only do the best we can with what we have.

Rapport With School Benefits Community

I would like to thank the Independent-Journal for its generous coverage of San Rafael High School activities over the past year. Our image has definitely been improved, and the community is better informed as to the good aspects about our school. Many thanks also to Nels Johnson, my Independent-Journal contact. He was always ready to help and definitely made my job easier. Let us hope that the good rapport between San Rafael High School and the Independent-Journal will continue to be of benefit both to the school and the community.

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

A report shows some McGovern committeees had funds left over after the 1972 campaign. Everything considered, it was probably the best money they never spent.

There are some advantages to being president. Nixon had his medical exam in the time many of us spend in the doctor's office waiting to be told which lab to go to.

After the truckers' strike, Nixon looks more favorably toward trains. Ever hear of a locomotive blocking a gasoline station?

If you pronounce 'sheikh" as "shake," it's easy to see why a lot of people consider the oil crisis an Arab sheikhdown.

Now We're Getting Nostalgic For The Month Before Last

WASHINGTON — Everyone seems to agree that the United States is going through a nostalgia craze. What people are not aware of is that the nostalgia gap, which used to be 10 to 20 years, is closing fast, and now people talk about the good old days of a year or six months ago.

Cyrus Wankle, who runs a nostalgia store here in Georgetown, says that the biggest nostalgic items in his store are less than 12 months old.

"I GUESS THE ENERGY crisis is responsible," he said. "People talk about the good old days and they want something to remind them of the past. For example, here is some Tupperware. Remember when you used to get a plate every time you bought five gallons of gasoline? And here are some green stamps. It's hard for people to imagine the days when they got green stamps just for driving into a gas station."

"Those were great times," I said, wiping a tear from my eye.

"Here are some ashtrays with Spiro Agnew's photograph on them."

"Who?"

"Spiro Agnew. He was the 39th vice president of the United States."

"Under whom?"

"Richard M. Nixon."

"Oh yeah. I think I remember."

"What do people do with them?"

"They frame them and hang them on the wall. They make lovely decorations and bring back fond memories of an era we'll never see again."

"What are these photographs?" I asked.

"I think I remember the hearings. The faces look familiar, but I can't place the names."

"That's why the photos sell so well. No one can remember any of the witnesses, but they associate them with a past that was so much happier and simpler than it is today."

"WHAT ARE THESE Earth Day bumper stickers?"

"Well, a few years back environment was a big thing in this country and everyone talked about it. People used to put Earth Day stickers on their cars and hold rallies demanding clean air and water. It was quite a fad. Now the only people who are interested in environment are collectors."

"I hate to show my ignorance, but I see these Richard Kleindienst match covers. Who was Richard Kleindienst?"

"Wait a minute, I'll look it up in the Nostalgia History Catalogue," Wankel said. "Here it is: Richard Kleindienst was attorney general under Nixon, after John Mitchell and before Elliot Richardson and William Saxbe. He didn't last very long, so he didn't have many match covers made."

"That political poster over there is interesting. It says 'Taxpayers for Nixon' and it's signed "The Committee for the Re-Election of the President.' "

"People buy them as gags," Wankle said.

I WALKED DOWN the aisle and saw a glass case. Inside were cuts of sirloins, filet mignons and T-bone steaks with 1972 prices on them. My mouth watered.

"How much are these?" I asked Wankle.

"That's my private nostalgia collection of meat," he said. "It's not for sale."

Oil Conference Shows NATO Surviving — But Just Barely

WASHINGTON — Sec. of State Henry Kissinger called last week's meeting of oil consumers in Washington a "success," and indeed, in two respects, it was.

It did set up a continuing group to work cooperatively toward long-term solutions of the energy problem. And it did see the survival of the theory of West European cooperation with the United States. The concept of Atlantic community lives.

But to get this into proportion it needs to be noted that this survival of the Atlantic community concept was a "near thing." Not since Charles DeGaulle ordered American troops out of France in 1967 has the idea of that community been so hard pressed as during this conference.

THE FRENCH SAW the conference as an American device for attempting to reassert American dominance over Western Europe. Dr. Kissinger saw it as a cooperative attempt to apply the machinery of the Atlantic community to the problems of energy.

Twinned with this struggle by different names was the issue over French leadership of the Common Market group. In the end it was a determined struggle between French and Americans for the loyalty of the eight non-French members of the Common Market community who attended the conference. Were they to follow Jobert of France or Kissinger of the United States?

And in the end the eight stayed with the Americans, and the French took up an ambiguous position about oil and energy. Perhaps they will take part in some further conference. Perhaps they won't. They did not break totally or definitely with the eight, or with Washington.

One way of summarizing it all is to say that the French tried to lead their Common Market partners out of the Atlantic community — and failed. When the eight had to choose between Paris and Washington they found the choice painful. But they stayed with Kissinger.

As of this moment no one can be sure which is the true picture. As so often in war, diplomacy, and politics, the follow-up determines how great or illusory is the outcome of the immediate battle.

At the very least Kissinger, who for so long has been preoccupied with the Far East and Middle East and has neglected Europe, has a chance to try now to repair the years of neglect. It was indeed such a "near thing" here in Washington last week that he has been warned.

Many diplomats in Washington and NATO capitals see the policy of detente with Russia as being incompatible with NATO and the Atlantic community.

Kissinger insists that they are compatible. And yet he also talks about a five-power world in the future and about floating balances of power, which implies fluid relationships among the five. If all the relationships are to be fluid, then Western Europe floats by itself, no longer tied firmly by treaties of alliance to the United States.

Also, Kissinger is accustomed to speaking in highly critical terms of the European allies. There is a memorandum circulating around Harvard University these days on a meeting which Kissinger held last Dec. 6 with seven Jewish professors and writers. He is quoted in the memo as having described the behavior of the Europeans over the oil crisis as "craven," "contemptible" and "pernicious." The use of these words has not been denied. They rankle among the Europeans.

OF COURSE, this is by no means the first time a question has been raised about the applicability of NASO to some particular crisis. When tested over Korea, it did apply, but only just. When tested over the French at Dien-bienphu, it did not apply. When tested over an American role in Vietnam it did not apply.

Events have proved that NATO is certainly valid over a Russian threat to Western Europe. But they also show that an extension outside Europe is highly doubtful. The Europeans no more backed Kissinger over the Arab oil issue than they did over Vietnam.

But the fact remains that the French have resumed what amounts to a major offensive against American leadership of the NATO alliance. We are back to the days of DeGaulle. How serious is it and how tenacious? And will the other Europeans continue to choose Washington whenever Paris tempts them to pull away?

The fact is that the detente policy is washing away at the foundations of the alliance and is testing them. The meeting in Washington is a jolting reminder that NATO will not survive automatically. Positive effort is needed to keep it sturdy and in line with the times. To many, it already seems to belong to the past.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Maginot Line Myopia Still Rules France In Oil Crisis

WASHINGTON — As the old saying goes: with allies like France, who needs enemies? Reluctantly attending the 13-nation energy conference, French foreign minister Michel Jobert did what his government expected of him. That was to run the conference down to the lowest common denominator of a talk session.

His European partners, fed up with French go-it-alone policies, will determine whether the disruption goes beyond this ephemeral conference. In the long run isolation is likely to be self-defeating for France, but it can also be a disaster for a Europe that seemed on the verge of unification.

Jobert was born in 1921 in Meknes, Morocco, which was then a French colony. At 26, he was a student in the Ecole Libre Science Politique. He must have a memory of the terrible winter of 1947. Hunger, disease, economic breakdown, that was the order of the day with the Communists threatening to take over the ruin.

THE MARSHALL PLAN came into being with an awareness of Western Europe's desperate plight. Whether the total provided under that plan was $50 billion or closer to $100 billion — figures vary depending on what elements are included in the computation — Europe turned the corner.

France and Germany became two of the world's most prosperous nations, their currency putting the dollar to shame.

Gratitude? Heaven forbid! A whole generation has grown up since 1947 and 1948 with only a textbook knowledge of how close total breakdown came. All Washington asked at this point was a minimum of harmony for a closer look at the threat of the oil shortage and the tripling and quadrupling of prices.

The tragedy of France is that for all her great achievements, and they are very great indeed, go-it-alone has so often been self-defeating.

"WE ARE A NATION of individualists." What visitor to France has not heard that?

The record of the years is grim. Take these dates that are like a series of epitaphs for the grandeur that was:

1870 — The defeat of France by a Germany, with the small states united in a powerful militarist nation bent on conquest.

1914 — The beginning of trench warfare and the slaughter of the best and the bravest; and 1917 when the Yanks did come and contributed greatly to a "victory" that had cost the West so much in blood and treasure that recovery was frustrated in the great depression.

1940 — The Maginot Line and the belief that France could wall off the enemy with a fixed fortified position facing the East; and 1941, the Nazi occupation and the toll it took.

France is now making individual go-it-alone oil deals trying to get the jump on the rest of Europe. The largest of these is the widely heralded $5-billion deal with Iran. Others with oil-producing Arab states call for what is in effect the barter of military equipment such as the Mirage plane for oil.

In this is clearly a Maginot-Line psychology. Ignoring the likelihood that it may shatter the barter of military equipment such as the Mirage plane for oil.

FRENCH HOSTILITY toward the United States is understandable. It comes of the bubbling and arrogance of American diplomacy from time to time during the past 25 years.

It comes out of the passionate conviction that given the grandeur of the past, France, a nation of 51 million people, must be a superpower; must have its own nuclear striking force, however tiny.

More Pay For Less Work Primary Inflation Cause

In your editorial of Feb. 7, you wrote that government debt is the primary cause of inflation, and this makes pay raises meaningless.

I'm no defender of excessive spending and certainly not of deficit financing, but — taxes spent by government do supply something to somebody. So it's not a total loss.

On the other hand, when higher wages are paid without added production, they produce nothing, except the ability to consume more of what is not produced.

As I see it, our "price system" is the balancing mechanism between production and consumption, and anything that disturbs this equilibrium, such as higher wages, without added production are a loss to the general economy, and this, rather than government spending is the primary cause of inflation.

Lincoln's Strength Based On Compassion

"In remembrance of Abraham Lincoln."

Nobody else could have borne the weight of care and pain as the president of a country divided by thought and purposes leading to a full scale war — the "Civil War."

President Lincoln was able to save the nation, partly because he saw that unity was not to be sought by the way of base concession.

. . .Abraham Lincoln was a man with natural wealth of tender compassion, which became richer and more tender while in the stress of deadly conflict. He developed an astounding strength.

. . .No political theory stands out from his words or actions, but they show a most unusual sense of the possible dignity of common men and common things. He faced the difficulties and terrors of his high office with that same mind with which he had paid his way as a poor man. If he had a theory of democracy it was contained in this condensed note which he wrote, a year before his presidency: "As I would not be a slave, so I would not be a master. This expresses my idea of democracy. Whatever differs from this, to the extent of the difference, is no democracy."

High School Journalists Defend New Relevance

In response to your Feb. 5 editorial, "The 'Relevant' Decline of Pride in School," we offer opposing view to your unfounded statements.

First, the role of the high school paper is not necessarily to report in-school activities. A student newspaper should enrich, educate and report on news in general, particularly things which affect the students. The I-J has often pointed out that an informed public needs a free press. High school education of today is of little value unless a student can apply it to the outside world. For example, an article on the president is as justifiable as would be a discussion in the classroom.

Second, you justifiably point out in your paper that the community needs to be involved with its schools. Yet you would rather not have the problems of the community openly and intelligently discussed in a high school paper. . .

Third, pride in one's school is not easily expressed. At one time we were vocal and told to be mature. Now that we're quiet and don't "squeal with delight" at every accomplishment, we're castigated. It seems you'll never be satisfied. . .

Police, Neighbors, Nurse All Helpful

How often each of us has passed by the scene of an automobile accident and the sight has sent chills throughout our bodies. We have felt for the nameless persons involved and perhaps even breathed a sigh of relief that it was no one we knew. Yet, how many of us have actually stopped to try and help?

On Feb. 2, our daughter was involved in an accident on San Pedro Road. These are two wonderful, responsible teen-agers who simply had the misfortune of having the car go out of control —an accident which could happen to anyone. They were both injured, but thanks to many helpful people, our story has a happy ending. The San Rafael Police Department couldn't have been more efficient, helpful or kind. In their phone call informing me that my daughter had been in an accident, the police officer made certain to tell me he thought she would be all right. This helped a lot at this time. As I passed by the scene of the accident on the way to the hospital, the policeman diverting traffic managed to reassure me in calling out, "I helped take care of her and she'll be all right. Drive carefully!" Kind, humane people! How much it means at a time like that!

And how often we have all read of the amount of people who refuse to become involved in times of need. Well, not the wonderful people of San Rafael —especially on that particular Saturday! Gary Ghilotti and his brother —who live near where the accident occurred. They came running out of their house to quickly remove these two helpless teen-agers from the potentially flammable car. Jean Noble — an R.N. who stopped to offer her services. The young San Rafael police officer who had this tremendous responsibility on his shoulders, who turned to Jean Noble and said, "Yes. Please help me stop the bleeding on these two kids."

To Gary Ghilotti and his brother, to Jean Noble, R.N., and to anyone else who stopped to help — to the speedy ambulance drivers (arrived within 10 minutes) to the compassionate, efficient staff at Marin General Hospital, and above all, to the wonderful San Rafael Police Department, our deepest, most grateful appreciation!

Words Of Appreciation For City Councilman

Marin County and San Rafael have had many excellent public officials. Some of these people have been praised in this section of the paper.

I would like to add to this list the name of San Rafael City Councilman Larry Mulryan. To many people Larry is a true friend. Since friends sometimes take each other for granted it is easy to forget to express appreciation for consistency in excellence.

Larry Mulryan, as his campaign literature said, listens — and so he is quiet most of the time. But when he speaks he is pertinent. When he votes, he is fair. He has almost infinite patience and utmost personal consideration for anyone and everyone. He welcomes citizen comment. He is incredibly well informed.

It is no wonder that people of all shades of opinion respect Larry Mulryan.

Follow Jefferson Rather Than Hitler

It is interesting that Louise Gulick (I-J, Feb. 11) should select Hitler to lend emphasis to her rationalization of abortion. It is well known that Hitler killed millions of people he claimed were "subhuman" in his pursuit of a master race. Let us hope that our nation would rather follow the guideline of the Declaration of Independence: "We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men are created equal (not born) equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these rights are life.

If Ms. Gulick has found it difficult to find the scientific data on fetal growth, I invite her or any interested person to contact Voice for the Unborn. This organization has slides and printed material on the physical growth and behavior pattern of the unborn. Should a pregnant woman have any problem and need a helping hand, Birthright is your friend.

LIBBY HARRISON THOMAS

Corte Madera

Life Begins Long Before Birth Of Baby

I would like to reply to Louise Gulick's statement (I-J, Feb. 11) that a fertilized egg is not a baby. Six hours after conception a multiplication of cells is in progress which results in living tissue containing everything the child will need for life in his mother's womb — as well as an entire blueprint of the coloring, sex, temperament and abilities of the future mature person. As Dr. Margaret Liley, a pediatrician and director of a pre-natal clinic, states: "The world of the unborn and newborn baby is a world we have all known and all forgotten."

I would also like to mention the services Birthright offers to any woman with problems heightened by pregnancy or a previous abortion. Reader Gulick's allegation that we are self-righteous and have no concern for a woman suffering from an illegal abortion is simply not true. In no way do we judge anyone; we are here to provide help for both mother and child in a sympathetic and unemotional atmosphere.

Life has too great a value to be easily set aside. As a community of concerned people we should be looking within ourselves for better solutions to difficult pregnancies than abortion.

'Baby' Is Only A Stage In Human Life

Unfortunately, abortion advocates such as Louise A. Gulick (I-J, Feb. 11) are substantially misinformed regarding the Right-To-Life Movement. No claim has ever been made that a fertilized human egg is indeed a "baby" as she states but rather that it is a human life — a new, unique human being. The term "baby" expresses a stage of human development in the continuum of human life, as do the terms infant, child, teen-ager, adult, etc.

Consequently, any society which legalizes the taking of human life at any stage, along the continuum of human development can justify the taking of all life at all stages of development. Such was the experience of the German Jew.

Those who cite the tragic cases of women dying in agony from back room abortions are justifiably horrified. Among those so concerned are the nation's Right-To-Life groups who have donated generously of both their time and money to establish organizations such as Birthright and Right-To-Life lines which provide 24-hour services to the expectant mother in distress, i.e., counseling, maternity and baby clothes, transportation, shelter, financial help and medical care to name a few.

However, just as each of us can sympathize with the unemployed father of eight who steals to feed his starving family, we can not legalize stealing to provide for his case in his hour of need. . . So too, to legalize the taking of human life for any reason, no matter how tragic, lays legal ground work for social conduct which parallels Nazism. . .

Hitler Set Pattern For Killing 'Unwanted'

Apparently Louise Gulick (Letters to the Editor, Feb. 11) was on the right track when she mentioned Hitler, but perhaps she and her cohorts have forgotten one of the greatest travesties of our time. Hitler killed six million people, unwanted by his regime, to create a perfect race. Is this what these pro-abortionists want? Unwanted? Hogwash! There are countless thousands of couples who are aching for one of the unwanted.

Any woman who does not want to conceive a child should take steps to prevent conception. There is no excuse for carelessness or accidents that ultimately result in the killing of a human life, and no matter how you word it, you can not right a wrong. Perhaps you have never heard the heartbeat of an unborn baby or seen the perfectly formed body of an 11-week-old fetus. I take personal offense to those who call my unborn three-month baby a "glob of undifferentiated tissue" or even worse "a growth." What on earth do you people think? That a fetus is a thing — until nine months have passed and out pops a polaroid person?

Let us now be honest with ourselves. Yes, women have a choice with their own bodies, but for God's sake, let us have some respect for life. Any woman who is so quick to even consider killing an unborn child has no respect for life, hers or anyone's.

All Is Harmonious Regarding General Plan

I do not believe it useful or productive for me, Mayor Bettini, any member of the planning commission or any member of the city staff to be characterized as at odds with each other over the preliminary general plan report prepared by Duncan and Jones. While a recent article in the Independent-Journal attempted to paint a picture of vast disagreements and even hostility between various city officials and ourselves, I don't believe this is at all an accurate representation of the current situation, and I regret that the recent article seemed to convey otherwise.

The events of the past few weeks clearly demonstrate that all of us are working cooperatively, productively, and constructively to produce a general plan for San Rafael which will reflect the very best all of us can contribute. This very favorable climate prevails today.

At the first public hearing, it became clear that the very constructive process of reshaping our preliminary report is already well underway. I look forward to working with the staff, commission, and council to produce a good general plan. There is no doubt in my mind that this job can be done in a constructive manner.

Several Were Heard On Impact Report

I found your Feb. 12 article on the rejection of the environmental impact report for the expansion of the Corte Madera Shopping Center to be confusing and unfactual. The 13th paragraph stated, "an audience of about 30 persons attended the public hearing on the impact report but none commented as the council unanimously rejected the report."

Several people made comments at this hearing, among them Mrs. Lubamersky and myself and Messrs. Higgins, Holtzinger, Kostelic and Sasso. While it may have been the reporter's opinion that these comments were not germane, the fact remains that many comments were presented regarding the expansion of the Corte Madera Shopping Center.

Prehistory Museum Guild Seeks Members

On behalf of the Novato Prehistory Museum Guild, I would like to thank the Independent-Journal for its recent article on the museum. Your enerous coverage has been very helpful in making people aware of this cultural and educational facility, unique in Marin County.

The museum guild is less than a year old and has 15 members. Membership is open to all interested women in the county. We are holding a coffee for new and prospective members on March 27 at 10:30 a.m. at the museum. All are welcome.

JUST CHANGE OF CONQUERORS? — The smile on the face of this Vietnamese villager is deceptive. Many villagers feel they are in limbo between peace and war, with occupation by Saigon forces little to be preferred to the former Viet Cong rulers.

For Vietnamese, Merely New Occupying Force

By DANIEL SOUTHERLAND

BONG SON, Vietnam — A year and a half has passed since Saigon government troops retook this shattered town, but little rebuilding has been done.

Many here feel that they are suspended between a shaky peace and a full-scale war which could erupt again at any moment.

Some of the town's original 35,000 inhabitants returned here after the fighting died down in mid-1972. But why should we rebuild, they ask, when bombs and artillery fire might suddenly tear it all down again?

THE GOVERNMENT'S man in charge here, a district chief and army major named Nguyen Van Bang, argues that the Communists will not launch another big offensive "because they're afraid that Nixon will bomb North Vietnam again."

But the major is not totally sure of this assessment.

"If they do attack again, our infantry is strong enough to hold them for a few days," he said. "But then we will need American bombing."

This theme is echoed by the South Vietnamese Rangers stationed near Bong Son.

THE RANGERS are better trained, equipped, and paid than the local government forces. But many of them are from as far away as Mekong Delta, and they were not particularly happy to be sent to this small, half ruined town in the middle of nowhere (290 miles north of Saigon).

They consider the province of Binh Dinh, in which Bong Son is located, to be less than hospitable. Binh Dinh is known throughout Vietnam as one of those areas which provided strong support to the Vietminh against the French and later to the Communist-led movement against the Americans and their Vietnamese allies.

The Rangers, who are the real rulers of Bong Son at the moment because of their firepower, are doing little to win anyone over to Saigon's side.

Because they consider many of the people in this area to be "Communists," they seem to think that anything goes. People complain that the Rangers have been stealing everything they can lay their hands on.

AT ONE HAMLET on the south of Bong Son, the district chief, Major Bang, advised hamlet officials to organize a system of alert against the depredations of the Rangers. Later, when several Rangers demanded money and rice from the hamlet chief's deputy, he refused and gave the alert.

One of the rangers hit the man and a fight started between the hamlet militiamen and the Rangers. The militiamen arrested three of the Rangers, but Ranger reinforcements arrived and started firing their rifles in the air. The lightly armed militiamen fled.

Hamlet residents drew up a petition to the government demanding an end to the looting. A Ranger commander promised punishment for the offenders, but the looting has continued.

The continued looting makes life difficult for the government propaganda cadres who are trying to tell the people in and around Bong Son how much the government cares for them. The people sometimes point out that after the North Vietnamese occupied Bong Song in 1972, life was harsh but the Communist-led troops did not steal.

Public Is The Loser In An Oil Wrangle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three major oil companies and the State Department ganged up on the New England Petroleum Co., which supplies electric utilities in New York and New Jersey, in a squeeze play that may eventually cost power consumers in that area at least $50 million, two Senators said yesterday.

The statement, by Sens. Frank Church, D-Idano, and Clifford Case, R-N.J., was based on secret testimony from Edward Carey Sr., president of New England Petroleum (Nepco). Carey's testimony last Nov. 27, to a senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee, was made public along with the statement.

The squeeze play, involved threats, lawsuits, and State Department pressure to stop Nepco from importing oil produced in a joint concession of Standard Oil of California (Socal) and Texaco nationalized last August by Libya.

Carey said Nepco signed a long-term contract with Socal for Libyan crude in 1967, and the two then built a refinery in the Bahamas to distill it into petrochemical feedstocks and residual oil for three New York area utilities: Consolidated Edison of New York City, Long Island Lighting Co., and the Public Service Corp. of New Jersey.

Nepco owned 65 per cent of the refinery and Socal 35 per cent. Carey said Socal agreed to provide tankers to get the oil to the refinery.

Libya nationalized the Socal-Texaco concession last August because the two companies refused to "negotiate" sale of a 51 per cent share in it to the Libyan national oil monopoly. Deprived of its crude, Socal advised Nepco it was terminating the entire contract.

Carey, fearing failure to deliver oil could result in major New York area blackouts, first offered to buy out Socal's interest in Libya and negotiate the nationalization himself. When Socal refused, he said, he arranged to buy the oil direct from Libya.

At that point, he said, Socal and Texaco officials threatened to sue and finally did so. They claimed the oil belonged to them. Mobil Oil Co. also threatened to sue on grounds its dock in Libya was used illegally to load it.

In addition, Carey said, Socal cut his credit, forcing the utilities to ante up about $40 million to replace it.

A State Department official, Frank Mau, threatened to support Socal in court unless Nepco stopped buying the "hot" oil, Carey said.

The major cost, however, came because Nepco had to "spot" charter tankers at $1.93 per barrel, $1.50 above the price Socal had charged.

In all, said Carey, the delivered price in the Bahamas went from $3.50 a barrel to $6.80, and the extra cost to consumers ultimately will run to $50 million.

Church and Case, said they would ask State Department witnesses who gave authority to back Socal, whether possible effect on East Coast power supplies were considered, and whether there was not "what appears to have been a failure to perceive the national interest."

It Wasn't Really A Robbery But It Was Sure-'Nough Holdup

Consider the strange case of I-J sportswriter Paul Dworen, who got held up outside a bank last Tuesday — by the cops.

As he walked out of the Exchange Bank in Cotati after cashing a check, he was halted by several policemen, including one armed with a shotgun.

They told Dworen to face the wall and stand still.

With one nervous eye on the shotgun, he did as he was told.

After a minute he was told he was free to go and he was offered an apology for being inconvenienced.

Totally freaked out by this time, Dworen asked why he had been detained. The policemen said they were looking for a bank robber.

As it turned out, there wasn't really a robbery. A teller had accidentally set off an alarm in the bank.

"It happens about once a week," I was told when I asked the Cotati Police Department about it.

Dworen, meanwhile, is firing off an irate letter to City Hall.

THERE'S A GAS WAR of sorts going on in Santa Rosa.

Subject of the dispute is an estimated 20,000 gallons of gasoline which was discovered one day in storage tanks at the Sonoma County Fairgrounds.

The tanks are part of what used to be a Union Oil Co. station, and the fact that they were full surprised everyone, it seems.

When discovered earlier this month, no one seemed to know where the gas came from or who owned it.

Last week, though, Union Oil Co. said it owns the fuel, claiming it had been left behind a year ago when Union gave up its lease on the station.

The county isn't sure Union is entitled to the gas, and a court fight may result.

Meanwhile, Sonoma is probably the only countly in the nation which has thousands of gallons of extra gasoline lying around and doesn't know what to do with it.

A PLANNED PUPPYHOOD program has been initiated in southern Sonoma County by the Redwood Empire Veterinary Association.

Under the plan, dog owners can have their bitches fitted with an intra-uterine device called the ABCD animal contraceptive. The device is removable and can be inserted without surgery, drugs or anesthetics, according to the association.

After the device is fitted it remains in place permanently, or until the owner wishes the animal bred.

THE GASOLINE CRUNCH has done wonders for the people who manufacture gasoline cans — or for thier wallets, to be more precise.

I saw one the other day for $5.95. It was a very ordinary can, and I am positive I saw one just like it for $2 less before the shortage.

I had been shopping around for a can to strap to the roof of my car for week end trips and I was dismayed by the quality of virtually all the cans I saw.

When Consumer Reports magazine reviewed gasoline cans several months ago, it found that most cans are poorly made and dangerous.

Generally, according to the magazine, either the cans leak through badly-soldered seams and joints or their caps leak.

As it turned out, the slightly flimsy $5.95 job was the best I could find. So I bought one and tried it out. It exuded a small amount of gasoline from a seam. Not enough to form a big puddle, but just enough to keep the lower end of the can damp. And enough to blow everything to bits.

The can went back to the store and I'm still looking.

The best and safest gas cans money can buy are the military jerry cans, or jeep cans as the surplus trade calls them. But just try to find one for sale anywhere.

Ash Still Sees Energy Solution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Budget director Roy Ash, insisting there are still longterm energy problems, has nevertheless predicted the administration will "break the back" of the energy crisis this year.

Ash made his remarks yesterday at a holiday meeting of the Joint Economic Committee, attended only by Democratic critics of the administration.

"I think you will find during the course of this year we will break the back of the energy crisis," Ash said, and the "trauma" of the shortage, characterized by long lines at service stations, will end.

But he said the nation would have to change its habits of energy consumption. "We're going to have to live with 95 per cent of the energy we had before although our economy is growing."

Last Wednesday, Ash said the energy crisis "is manageable, it's one-time and it's short term." Those comments brought a swift reaction from energy chief William E. Simon and other energy officials to assure Americans that the energy crisis was real and would last for a number of years.

"A mountain is being made out of a semantic mole hill," Ash said yesterday, adding that his remark had been generally misinterpreted and misrepresented. He said he had gone on to say that long-range problems would remain and his statement was based on the provision that consumers made the necessary adjustments to reduce consumption.

Proxmire, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Wis., and Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., grilled Ash about the administration's economic policies, saying that the average man in the street was worse off under the administration's policies than he had been a year ago.

Ash replied that "using any measurement you want," the average man is better off today than he was five, 10 or 20 years ago even though the past year had been a hard one.

Buyers Can Pick From A Bunch Of Big Buggies

DETROIT (UPI) — The gasoline shortage scare has left U.S. car dealers with an 80-day supply of unsold cars—the highest in history and enough to last until early May even if all auto plants were closed until late April.

What that means for the average buyer is the best deal in a long time on standard-size cars, the kind the automakers say are built for mom, dad, a couple of kids and their luggage. On some of those models, the auto plants have already built enough to last until July if sales don't pick up.

All models wouldn't be available into May since the hot-selling small cars are in extremely short supply. A 40- day supply is considered low and there are only enough Vegas on hand to last 21 days with Gremlin standing at 27 days and Pinto 31 days.

Fully loaded standard-size cars are selling for hundreds of dollars less than the sticker price for a basic model. Hotselling small cars, on the other hand, are usually going out the door for the full sticker price and a low trade-in on the old car.

"Right now, I can get a customer any big car he wants without any wait and usually give him a price way below what the sticker says," said Joe Girard, the salesman who has sold more cars than any other for the past eight years.

The 1,704,921 cars in automaker and dealer inventories on Feb. 1 was one big reason for continuing big-car assembly plant shutdowns. This week, 27,000 U.S. auto workers were on one-week furlough in addition to the more than 100,000 which the United Auto Workers says have been trimmed permanently from industrial payrolls.

All the layoffs have come in plants that build the big cars.

More Pay For Less Work Primary Inflation Cause

In your editorial of Feb. 7, you wrote that government debt is the primary cause of inflation, and this makes pay raises meaningless.

I'm no defender of excessive spending and certainly not of deficit financing, but — taxes spent by government do supply something to somebody. So it's not a total loss.

On the other hand, when higher wages are paid without added production, they produce nothing, except the ability to consume more of what is not produced.

As I see it, our "price system" is the balancing mechanism between production and consumption, and anything that disturbs this equilibrium, such as higher wages, without added production are a loss to the general economy, and this, rather than government spending is the primary cause of inflation.

Lincoln's Strength Based On Compassion

"In remembrance of Abraham Lincoln."

Nobody else could have borne the weight of care and pain as the president of a country divided by thought and purposes leading to a full scale war — the "Civil War."

President Lincoln was able to save the nation, partly because he saw that unity was not to be sought by the way of base concession.

. . .Abraham Lincoln was a man with natural wealth of tender compassion, which became richer and more tender while in the stress of deadly conflict. He developed an astounding strength.

. . .No political theory stands out from his words or actions, but they show a most unusual sense of the possible dignity of common men and common things. He faced the difficulties and terrors of his high office with that same mind with which he had paid his way as a poor man. If he had a theory of democracy it was contained in this condensed note which he wrote, a year before his presidency: "As I would not be a slave, so I would not be a master. This expresses my idea of democracy. Whatever differs from this, to the extent of the difference, is no democracy."

High School Journalists Defend New Relevance

In response to your Feb. 5 editorial, "The 'Relevant' Decline of Pride in School," we offer opposing view to your unfounded statements.

First, the role of the high school paper is not necessarily to report in-school activities. A student newspaper should enrich, educate and report on news in general, particularly things which affect the students. The I-J has often pointed out that an informed public needs a free press. High school education of today is of little value unless a student can apply it to the outside world. For example, an article on the president is as justifiable as would be a discussion in the classroom.

Second, you justifiably point out in your paper that the community needs to be involved with its schools. Yet you would rather not have the problems of the community openly and intelligently discussed in a high school paper. . .

Third, pride in one's school is not easily expressed. At one time we were vocal and told to be mature. Now that we're quiet and don't "squeal with delight" at every accomplishment, we're castigated. It seems you'll never be satisfied. . .

Police, Neighbors, Nurse All Helpful

How often each of us has passed by the scene of an automobile accident and the sight has sent chills throughout our bodies. We have felt for the nameless persons involved and perhaps even breathed a sigh of relief that it was no one we knew. Yet, how many of us have actually stopped to try and help?

On Feb. 2, our daughter was involved in an accident on San Pedro Road. These are two wonderful, responsible teen-agers who simply had the misfortune of having the car go out of control —an accident which could happen to anyone. They were both injured, but thanks to many helpful people, our story has a happy ending. The San Rafael Police Department couldn't have been more efficient, helpful or kind. In their phone call informing me that my daughter had been in an accident, the police officer made certain to tell me he thought she would be all right. This helped a lot at this time. As I passed by the scene of the accident on the way to the hospital, the policeman diverting traffic managed to reassure me in calling out, "I helped take care of her and she'll be all right. Drive carefully!" Kind, humane people! How much it means at a time like that!

And how often we have all read of the amount of people who refuse to become involved in times of need. Well, not the wonderful people of San Rafael —especially on that particular Saturday! Gary Ghilotti and his brother —who live near where the accident occurred. They came running out of their house to quickly remove these two helpless teen-agers from the potentially flammable car. Jean Noble — an R.N. who stopped to offer her services. The young San Rafael police officer who had this tremendous responsibility on his shoulders, who turned to Jean Noble and said, "Yes. Please help me stop the bleeding on these two kids."

To Gary Ghilotti and his brother, to Jean Noble, R.N., and to anyone else who stopped to help — to the speedy ambulance drivers (arrived within 10 minutes) to the compassionate, efficient staff at Marin General Hospital, and above all, to the wonderful San Rafael Police Department, our deepest, most grateful appreciation!

Words Of Appreciation For City Councilman

Marin County and San Rafael have had many excellent public officials. Some of these people have been praised in this section of the paper.

I would like to add to this list the name of San Rafael City Councilman Larry Mulryan. To many people Larry is a true friend. Since friends sometimes take each other for granted it is easy to forget to express appreciation for consistency in excellence.

Larry Mulryan, as his campaign literature said, listens — and so he is quiet most of the time. But when he speaks he is pertinent. When he votes, he is fair. He has almost infinite patience and utmost personal consideration for anyone and everyone. He welcomes citizen comment. He is incredibly well informed.

It is no wonder that people of all shades of opinion respect Larry Mulryan.

Follow Jefferson Rather Than Hitler

It is interesting that Louise Gulick (I-J, Feb. 11) should select Hitler to lend emphasis to her rationalization of abortion. It is well known that Hitler killed millions of people he claimed were "subhuman" in his pursuit of a master race. Let us hope that our nation would rather follow the guideline of the Declaration of Independence: "We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men are created equal (not born) equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these rights are life.

If Ms. Gulick has found it difficult to find the scientific data on fetal growth, I invite her or any interested person to contact Voice for the Unborn. This organization has slides and printed material on the physical growth and behavior pattern of the unborn. Should a pregnant woman have any problem and need a helping hand, Birthright is your friend.

LIBBY HARRISON THOMAS

Life Begins Long Before Birth Of Baby

I would like to reply to Louise Gulick's statement (I-J, Feb. 11) that a fertilized egg is not a baby. Six hours after conception a multiplication of cells is in progress which results in living tissue containing everything the child will need for life in his mother's womb — as well as an entire blueprint of the coloring, sex, temperament and abilities of the future mature person. As Dr. Margaret Liley, a pediatrician and director of a pre-natal clinic, states: "The world of the unborn and newborn baby is a world we have all known and all forgotten."

I would also like to mention the services Birthright offers to any woman with problems heightened by pregnancy or a previous abortion. Reader Gulick's allegation that we are self-righteous and have no concern for a woman suffering from an illegal abortion is simply not true. In no way do we judge anyone; we are here to provide help for both mother and child in a sympathetic and unemotional atmosphere.

Life has too great a value to be easily set aside. As a community of concerned people we should be looking within ourselves for better solutions to difficult pregnancies than abortion.

'Baby' Is Only A Stage In Human Life

Unfortunately, abortion advocates such as Louise A. Gulick (I-J, Feb. 11) are substantially misinformed regarding the Right-To-Life Movement. No claim has ever been made that a fertilized human egg is indeed a "baby" as she states but rather that it is a human life — a new, unique human being. The term "baby" expresses a stage of human development in the continuum of human life, as do the terms infant, child, teen-ager, adult, etc.

Consequently, any society which legalizes the taking of human life at any stage, along the continuum of human development can justify the taking of all life at all stages of development. Such was the experience of the German Jew.

Those who cite the tragic cases of women dying in agony from back room abortions are justifiably horrified. Among those so concerned are the nation's Right-To-Life groups who have donated generously of both their time and money to establish organizations such as Birthright and Right-To-Life lines which provide 24-hour services to the expectant mother in distress, i.e., counseling, maternity and baby clothes, transportation, shelter, financial help and medical care to name a few.

However, just as each of us can sympathize with the unemployed father of eight who steals to feed his starving family, we can not legalize stealing to provide for his case in his hour of need. . . So too, to legalize the taking of human life for any reason, no matter how tragic, lays legal ground work for social conduct which parallels Nazism. . .

Hitler Set Pattern For Killing 'Unwanted'

Apparently Louise Gulick (Letters to the Editor, Feb. 11) was on the right track when she mentioned Hitler, but perhaps she and her cohorts have forgotten one of the greatest travesties of our time. Hitler killed six million people, unwanted by his regime, to create a perfect race. Is this what these proabortionists want? Unwanted? Hogwash! There are countless thousands of couples who are aching for one of the unwanted.

Any woman who does not want to conceive a child should take steps to prevent conception. There is no excuse for carelessness or accidents that ultimately result in the killing of a human life, and no matter how you word it, you can not right a wrong. Perhaps you have never heard the heartbeat of an unborn baby or seen the perfectly formed body of an 11-week-old fetus. I take personal offense to those who call my unborn three-month baby a "glob of undifferentiated tissue" or even worse "a growth." What on earth do you people think? That a fetus is a thing — until nine months have passed and out pops a polaroid person?

Let us now be honest with ourselves. Yes, women have a choice with their own bodies, but for God's sake, let us have some respect for life. Any woman who is so quick to even consider killing an unborn child has no respect for life, hers or anyone's.

All Is Harmonious Regarding General Plan

I do not believe it useful or productive for me, Mayor Bettini, any member of the planning commission or any member of the city staff to be characterized as at odds with each other over the preliminary general plan report prepared by Duncan and Jones. While a recent article in the Independent-Journal attempted to paint a picture of vast disagreements and even hostility between various city officials and ourselves, I don't believe this is at all an accurate representation of the current situation, and I regret that the recent article seemed to convey otherwise.

The events of the past few weeks clearly demonstrate that all of us are working cooperatively, productively, and constructively to produce a general plan for San Rafael which will reflect the very best all of us can contribute. This very favorable climate prevails today.

At the first public hearing, it became clear that the very constructive process of reshaping our preliminary report is already well underway. I look forward to working with the staff, commission, and council to produce a good general plan. There is no doubt in my mind that this job can be done in a constructive manner.

Several Were Heard On Impact Report

I found your Feb. 12 article on the rejection of the environmental impact report for the expansion of the Corte Madera Shopping Center to be confusing and unfactual. The 13th paragraph stated, "an audience of about 30 persons attended the public hearing on the impact report but none commented as the council unanimously rejected the report."

Several people made comments at this hearing, among them Mrs. Lubamersky and myself and Messrs. Higgins, Holtzinger, Kostelic and Sasso. While it may have been the reporter's opinion that these comments were not germane, the fact remains that many comments were presented regarding the expansion of the Corte Madera Shopping Center.

Prehistory Museum Guild Seeks Members

On behalf of the Novato Prehistory Museum Guild, I would like to thank the Independent-Journal for its recent article on the museum. Your enerous coverage has been very helpful in making people aware of this cultural and educational facility, unique in Marin County.

The museum at 2200 Novato Boulevard is open on Saturday from 10 to 4 and on Sunday from 12 to 4. Tours are available during the week by calling the educational director, Martha Heidinger.

The museum guild is less than a year old and has 15 members. Membership is open to all interested women in the county. We are holding a coffee for new and prospective members on March 27 at 10:30 a.m. at the museum. All are welcome.

JUST CHANGE OF CONQUERORS? — The smile on the face of this Vietnamese villager is deceptive. Many villagers feel they are in limbo between peace and war, with occupation by Saigon forces little to be preferred to the former Viet Cong rulers.

For Vietnamese, Merely New Occupying Force

By DANIEL SOUTHERLAND

BONG SON, Vietnam — A year and a half has passed since Saigon government troops retook this shattered town, but little rebuilding has been done.

Many here feel that they are suspended between a shaky peace and a full-scale war which could erupt again at any moment.

Some of the town's original 35,000 inhabitants returned here after the fighting died down in mid-1972. But why should we rebuild, they ask, when bombs and artillery fire might suddenly tear it all down again?

THE GOVERNMENT'S man in charge here, a district chief and army major named Nguyen Van Bang, argues that the Communists will not launch another big offensive "because they're afraid that Nixon will bomb North Vietnam again."

But the major is not totally sure of this assessment.

"If they do attack again, our infantry is strong enough to hold them for a few days," he said. "But then we will need American bombing."

This theme is echoed by the South Vietnamese Rangers stationed near Bong Son.

THE RANGERS are better trained, equipped, and paid than the local government forces. But many of them are from as far away as Mekong Delta, and they were not particularly happy to be sent to this small, half ruined town in the middle of nowhere (290 miles north of Saigon).

They consider the province of Binh Dinh, in which Bong Son is located, to be less than hospitable. Binh Dinh is known throughout Vietnam as one of those areas which provided strong support to the Vietminh against the French and later to the Communist-led movement against the Americans and their Vietnamese allies.

The Rangers, who are the real rulers of Bong Son at the moment because of their firepower, are doing little to win anyone over to Saigon's side.

Because they consider many of the people in this area to be "Communists," they seem to think that anything goes. People complain that the Rangers have been stealing everything they can lay their hands on.

AT ONE HAMLET on the south of Bong Son, the district chief, Major Bang, advised hamlet officials to organize a system of alert against the depredations of the Rangers. Later, when several Rangers demanded money and rice from the hamlet chief's deputy, he refused and gave the alert.

One of the rangers hit the man and a fight started between the hamlet militiamen and the Rangers. The militiamen arrested three of the Rangers, but Ranger reinforcements arrived and started firing their rifles in the air. The lightly armed militiamen fled.

Hamlet residents drew up a petition to the government demanding an end to the looting. A Ranger commander promised punishment for the offenders, but the looting has continued.

The continued looting makes life difficult for the government propaganda cadres who are trying to tell the people in and around Bong Son how much the government cares for them. The people sometimes point out that after the North Vietnamese occupied Bong Song in 1972, life was harsh but the Communist-led troops did not steal.

Public Is The Loser In An Oil Wrangle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three major oil companies and the State Department ganged up on the New England Petroleum Co., which supplies electric utilities in New York and New Jersey, in a squeeze play that may eventually cost power consumers in that area at least $50 million, two Senators said yesterday.

The statement, by Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Clifford Case, R-N.J., was based on secret testimony from Edward Carey Sr., president of New England Petroleum (Nepco). Carey's testimony last Nov. 27, to a senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee, was made public along with the statement.

The squeeze play, involved threats, lawsuits, and State Department pressure to stop Nepco from importing oil produced in a joint concession of Standard Oil of California (Socal) and Texaco nationalized last August by Libya.

Carey said Nepco signed a long-term contract with Socal for Libyan crude in 1967, and the two then built a refinery in the Bahamas to distill it into petrochemical feedstocks and residual oil for three New York area utilities: Consolidated Edison of New York City, Long Island Lighting Co., and the Public Service Corp. of New Jersey.

Nepco owned 65 per cent of the refinery and Socal 35 per cent. Carey said Socal agreed to provide tankers to get the oil to the refinery.

Libya nationalized the Socal-Texaco concession last August because the two companies refused to "negotiate" sale of a 51 per cent share in it to the Libyan national oil monopoly. Deprived of its crude, Socal advised Nepco it was terminating the entire contract.

Carey, fearing failure to deliver oil could result in major New York area blackouts, first offered to buy out Socal's interest in Libya and negotiate the nationalization himself. When Socal refused, he said, he arranged to buy the oil direct from Libya.

At that point, he said, Socal and Texaco officials threatened to sue and finally did so. They claimed the oil belonged to them. Mobil Oil Co. also threatened to sue on grounds its dock in Libya was used illegally to load it.

In addition, Carey said, Socal cut his credit, forcing the utilities to ante up about $40 million to replace it.

A State Department official, Frank Mau, threatened to support Socal in court unless Nepco stopped buying the "hot" oil, Carey said.

The major cost, however, came because Nepco had to "spot" charter tankers at $1.93 per barrel, $1.50 above the price Socal had charged.

In all, said Carey, the delivered price in the Bahamas went from $3.50 a barrel to $6.80, and the extra cost to consumers ultimately will run to $50 million.

Church and Case, said they would ask State Department witnesses who gave authority to back Socal, whether possible effect on East Coast power supplies were considered, and whether there was not "what appears to have been a failure to perceive the national interest."

WHY PAY EXTRA FOR A CAR WHEN YOU GET MORE FOR YOUR MONEY IN MARIN?

If you're tempted to buy a car in the City or East Bay, put on the brakes and consider: Marin dealers, with much lower overhead, pass you the saving. They're local, you're local. They want your business and will prove it to you both in price and service. Lower sales tax, too! More convenience, a better deal. Makes sense?

WHY PAY EXTRA FOR A CAR WHEN YOU GET MORE FOR YOUR MONEY IN MARIN?

If you're tempted to buy a car in the City or East Bay, put on the brakes and consider: Marin dealers, with much lower overhead, pass you the saving. They're local, you're local. They want your business and will prove it to you both in price and service. Lower sales tax, too! More convenience, a better deal. Makes sense?

Knievel Plans A Final Jump

GRAPEVINE, Tex. (UPI) — Evel Knievel, resting because of a painful "impression fracture" of his lower back during a weekend motorcycle jump, left Texas today to return to Montana and prepare for what he said will be the last jump of his career.

Knievel made public the injury to his back yesterday. He said he entered the hospital at midnight Sunday and was released yesterday morning and needed only to "rest" to cure the ailment.

The injury apparently occurred Sunday in a jump over 11 trucks at a suburban dragstrip. He almost lost balance, but recovered.

Monterey Officials Man Gas Pumps

MONTEREY (UPI) — Mayor Peter Coniglio and other city officials manned gas pumps yesterday to help the Washington's Birthday holiday travelers.

"It was a lot fun—for a while anyway," Coniglio said. "Some people were thrilled to have their windshields washed by the mayor although one little girl told me I did a lousy job."

Knievel Plans A Final Jump

GRAPEVINE, Tex. (UPI) — Evel Knievel, resting because of a painful "impression fracture" of his lower back during a weekend motorcycle jump, left Texas today to return to Montana and prepare for what he said will be the last jump of his career.

Knievel made public the injury to his back yesterday. He said he entered the hospital at midnight Sunday and was released yesterday morning and needed only to "rest" to cure the ailment.

The injury apparently occurred Sunday in a jump over 11 trucks at a suburban dragstrip. He almost lost balance, but recovered.

Monterey Officials Man Gas Pumps

MONTEREY (UPI) — Mayor Peter Coniglio and other city officials manned gas pumps yesterday to help the Washington's Birthday holiday travelers.

"It was a lot fun—for a while anyway," Coniglio said. "Some people were thrilled to have their windshields washed by the mayor although one little girl told me I did a lousy job."

Dancer Warned To Exit Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Ballet dancer Valery Panov has been warned to leave the Soviet Union immediately or face "tough administrative measures," Mrs. Galina Panov said.

But the former star character dancer with Leningrad's Kirov Ballet has repeated his refusal to abandon her, Panov's wife added yesterday.

"They are trying to split us up," she said by telephone from Leningrad. "But we love each other."

The Soviet officials did not spell out what kind of measures they had in mind, she said.

Panov, a Jew, was fired from the Kirov troupe nearly two years ago when he informed the directors he wanted to emigrate. He has been deprived of work and the opportunity to dance since his dismissal.

Reagan Offered Job In Film

Producers William Alexander and Bill Shiffrin yesterday offered the governor a role as a reporter in a film titled "The Klansman" being shot here.

They said they didn't expect the governor to accept.

Actress Elizabeth Taylor and her husband, Richard Burton, have flown to the United States from Switzerland so Burton can work in the film.

Reagan abandoned a career as a movie and television actor seven years ago to run for governor.

Solzhenitsyn Working On Manuscripts

ZURICH (UPI) — Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn has begun working on manuscripts and answering letters while considering a host of offers for a permanent home.

The exiled writer received a hand-carried message yesterday from his wife, whom he left behind in Moscow Wednesday when Soviet authorities deported him to West Germany.

At the end of a busy morning, an American newsman based in Moscow told Solzehentisyn he had a message from his wife and personally delivered it to the author.

Solzhenitsyn's lawyer, Fritz Heeb, with whom he has stayed since arriving here Friday, said the author was "getting his manuscripts in order."

An Austrian friend of Solzhenitsyn said he was answering letters and "is considering offers from all over the world, including Ireland and Norway." He did not specify if the offers were from individuals or official bodies.

The friend, identifying himself only as a writer, said Solzhenitsyn "has been overwhelmed, he needs rest. He so badly wants to be a human being, to ride a tram and to walk through town."

Solzhenitsyn spent yesterday morning shopping in downtown Zurich, buying a brown leather purse, a notebook and a roll of tape, and visiting a bank. He went to the home where Vladimir I. Lenin lived from February 1916 to April 1917.

On his return to his lawyer's suburban home from his trip into Zurich, newsmen asked Solzhenitsyn when his family would join him. "No comment" he said in English. After a pause, he added, "I don't know."

Soviet authorities expelled Solzhenitsyn following the publication of his "The Gulag Archipelago," a documentation of life in Stalinist prison camps. They have said his family would be allowed to join him in exile.

Son Nabbed At Funeral For Evasion

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (UPI) — Allen E. Kelly, 28, returned from Canada to attend his father's funeral last week. Today he was ordered into court for arraignment on charges of evading the draft in 1969.

Kelly was taken into custody Friday night after attending a funeral mass for his father, Thomas J. Kelly, 52. He was released on $5,000 bond and attended his father's burial at Fort Dodge, Iowa, yesterday.

The elder Kelly, a lieutenant in the Army Air Corps in World War II and a father of three sons, died last Tuesday when he suffered a massive heart attack while recovering from recent open heart surgery. He was the residential and commercial sales supervisor for Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric Co.

Allen Kelly and his brother John J. Kelly came to Rock Island for the funeral services from Prince George, B.C. Allen has been working with the mentally retarded in Prince George since he left the United States.

He was taken into custody by FBI Agent Robert Wickwire, head of the Rock Island FBI office, and a very close friend of the Kelly family.

"Naturally I'm sorry I had to arrest him because he was a friend," Wickwire said. "I was a very close friend of his father's."

Kelly was arrested on the basis of an indictment returned by a federal grand jury in Springfield, Ill., Aug. 10, 1970.

TV IN REVIEW

Specials Make This Week One Of Television Season's Best

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A number of special broadcasts will be bringing added interest to network television during the next week.

Tomorrow, for instance, the non-commercial network offers "King Lear," with James Earl Jones starring in the production performed by Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival Company.

The same night, ABC-TV presents the highly praised movie "The Hellstrom Chronicle," which deals with insects and suggests a future in which they might inherit the earth.

Also tomorrow, ABC-TV's late-night "Wide World of Entertainment" series pays tribute to well-known monster movies, with Vincent Price as the host.

Entitled "The Horror Hall of Fame—A Monster Salute," the broadcast scans some of the memorable films by offering excerpts.

And there are also some guests scheduled to appear with Price, including John Carradine, John Astin, Frank Gorshin, makeup artist William Tuttle and Raymond McNally, coauthor of "In Search of Dracula."

Yet another presentation tomorrow will be the NBC-TV teleplay "A Case of Rape," with Elizabeth Montgomery portraying a middle class housewife who is an assault victim.

According to the network summary, the housewife is, after reporting the crime, "subjected to embarrassing and sometimes degrading questioning and treatment."

On Thursday, Dick Cavett will have Carol Burnett as his sole guest on one of his periodic "Wide World of Entertainment" outings.

Friday, meanwhile, CBS-TV presents a teleplay about Roy Campanella, the great Brooklyn Dodger catcher whose baseball career was ended by an automobile accident in 1958.

This production is entitled "It's Good to be Alive," and is based on Campanella's autobiography of the same name.

Starring in the video adaptation are Paul Winfield, Ruby Dee and Lou Gossett. The director is Michael Landon, former "Bonanza" star who has a number of writing and directing credits.

Campanella will appear briefly in the production in an introduction and epilogue.

Also on Friday, Jack Benny will be the target of a "roast session" on NBC-TV's Dean Martin series.

And another Friday broadcast is an ABC-TV rerun of "Goodnight, My Love," an excellent, affectionate, tongue-in-cheek teleplay inspired by the private detective tales of the 1930s and '40s.

Headlining this delightful outing are Richard Boone and Michael Dunn as a pair of unlikely private eyes.

The production is set for the "Wide World of Entertainment" series, and the cast also includes Barbara Bain and Victor Buono.

On Saturday, ABC-TV has a documentary entitled "Women in Prison."

And the same day, CBS-TV will offer a presentation called "Today Is Ours," in which a landlord "is swept up by the exuberant spirits of a group of underprivileged children who want to hold a block party on his vacant lot, with the ultimate hope of turning it into a playground."

This program stars Ozzie Davis, Ruby Dee and Harry Belafonte, and is an entry of the periodic series named "CBS Festival of the Lively Arts for Young People."

Still another weekend outing is "Johnny Cash's Music Country," an NBC-TV country music broadcast that is scheduled for Saturday in some cities and Sunday in others.

NBC-TV will also have a Saturday presentation of "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," a movie version of Jules Verne's tale with the cast including Kirk Douglas, James Mason, Peter Lorre and Paul Lukas.

And Sunday, the same network has another rerun of the movie "The Wizard of Oz."

An Electric Plug-In Car Is Planned

SEBRING, Fla. (UPI) — Sebring Vanguard, Inc. announced plans yesterday for the mass production of an electric automobile that can be recharged by plugging it into a wall socket.

Vanguard said it hopes to build 2,000 od the cars this year. It will be the first electric car since World War I.

The Vanguard is eight feet long and can travel at top speed of 30 miles per hour for 50 miles before it needs recharging, company officials said. It is priced at $2,200.

Robert Stone, marketing director for the firm, said the electric vehicle is designed as a second car for urban driving and not as a competitor for internal combustion engine cars. Stone said he has been driving one for several weeks.

Dancer Warned To Exit Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Ballet dancer Valery Panov has been warned to leave the Soviet Union immediately or face "tough administrative measures," Mrs. Galina Panov said.

Reagan Offered Job In Film

Producers William Alexander and Bill Shiffrin yesterday offered the governor a role as a reporter in a film titled "The Klansman" being shot here.

They said they didn't expect the governor to accept.

Actress Elizabeth Taylor and her husband, Richard Burton, have flown to the United States from Switzerland so Burton can work in the film.

Reagan abandoned a career as a movie and television actor seven years ago to run for governor.

Solzhenitsyn Working On Manuscripts

ZURICH (UPI) — Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn has begun working on manuscripts and answering letters while considering a host of offers for a permanent home.

The exiled writer received a hand-carried message yesterday from his wife, whom he left behind in Moscow Wednesday when Soviet authorities deported him to West Germany.

At the end of a busy morning, an American newsman based in Moscow told Solzehentisyn he had a message from his wife and personally delivered it to the author.

Solzhenitsyn's lawyer, Fritz Heeb, with whom he has stayed since arriving here Friday, said the author was "getting his manuscripts in order."

An Austrian friend of Solzhenitsyn said he was answering letters and "is considering offers from all over the world, including Ireland and Norway." He did not specify if the offers were from individuals or official bodies.

The friend, identifying himself only as a writer, said Solzhenitsyn "has been overwhelmed, he needs rest. He so badly wants to be a human being, to ride a tram and to walk through town."

Solzhenitsyn spent yesterday morning shopping in downtown Zurich, buying a brown leather purse, a notebook and a roll of tape, and visiting a bank. He went to the home where Vladimir I. Lenin lived from February 1916 to April 1917.

On his return to his lawyer's suburban home from his trip into Zurich, newsmen asked Solzhenitsyn when his family would join him. "No comment" he said in English. After a pause, he added, "I don't know."

Soviet authorities expelled Solzhenitsyn following the publication of his "The Gulag Archipelago," a documentation of life in Stalinist prison camps. They have said his family would be allowed to join him in exile.

Son Nabbed At Funeral For Evasion

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (UPI) — Allen E. Kelly, 28, returned from Canada to attend his father's funeral last week. Today he was ordered into court for arraignment on charges of evading the draft in 1969.

Kelly was taken into custody Friday night after attending a funeral mass for his father, Thomas J. Kelly, 52. He was released on $5,000 bond and attended his father's burial at Fort Dodge, Iowa, yesterday.

The elder Kelly, a lieutenant in the Army Air Corps in World War II and a father of three sons, died last Tuesday when he suffered a massive heart attack while recovering from recent open heart surgery. He was the residential and commercial sales supervisor for Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric Co.

Allen Kelly and his brother John J. Kelly came to Rock Island for the funeral services from Prince George, B.C. Allen has been working with the mentally retarded in Prince George since he left the United States.

He was taken into custody by FBI Agent Robert Wickwire, head of the Rock Island FBI office, and a very close friend of the Kelly family.

"Naturally I'm sorry I had to arrest him because he was a friend," Wickwire said. "I was a very close friend of his father's."

Kelly was arrested on the basis of an indictment returned by a federal grand jury in Springfield, Ill., Aug. 10, 1970.

TV IN REVIEW

Specials Make This Week One Of Television Season's Best

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A number of special broadcasts will be bringing added interest to network television during the next week.

Tomorrow, for instance, the non-commercial network offers "King Lear," with James Earl Jones starring in the production performed by Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival Company.

The same night, ABC-TV presents the highly praised movie "The Hellstrom Chronicle," which deals with insects and suggests a future in which they might inherit the earth.

Also tomorrow, ABC-TV's late-night "Wide World of Entertainment" series pays tribute to well-known monster movies, with Vincent Price as the host.

Entitled "The Horror Hall of Fame—A Monster Salute," the broadcast scans some of the memorable films by offering excerpts.

And there are also some guests scheduled to appear with Price, including John Carradine, John Astin, Frank Gorshin, makeup artist William Tuttle and Raymond McNally, coauthor of "In Search of Dracula."

Yet another presentation tomorrow will be the NBC-TV teleplay "A Case of Rape," with Elizabeth Montgomery portraying a middle class housewife who is an assault victim.

According to the network summary, the housewife is, after reporting the crime, "subjected to embarrassing and sometimes degrading questioning and treatment."

This production is entitled "It's Good to be Alive," and is based on Campanella's autobiography of the same name.

Starring in the video adaptation are Paul Winfield, Ruby Dee and Lou Gossett. The director is Michael Landon, former "Bonanza" star who has a number of writing and directing credits.

Campanella will appear briefly in the production in an introduction and epilogue.

Also on Friday, Jack Benny will be the target of a "roast session" on NBC-TV's Dean Martin series.

And another Friday broadcast is an ABC-TV rerun of "Goodnight, My Love," an excellent, affectionate, tongue-in-cheek teleplay inspired by the private detective tales of the 1930s and '40s.

The production is set for the "Wide World of Entertainment" series, and the cast also includes Barbara Bain and Victor Buono.

On Saturday, ABC-TV has a documentary entitled "Women in Prison."

And the same day, CBS-TV will offer a presentation called "Today Is Ours," in which a landlord "is swept up by the exuberant spirits of a group of underprivileged children who want to hold a block party on his vacant lot, with the ultimate hope of turning it into a playground."

This program stars Ozzie Davis, Ruby Dee and Harry Belafonte, and is an entry of the periodic series named "CBS Festival of the Lively Arts for Young People."

Still another weekend outing is "Johnny Cash's Music Country," an NBC-TV country music broadcast that is scheduled for Saturday in some cities and Sunday in others.

NBC-TV will also have a Saturday presentation of "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," a movie version of Jules Verne's tale with the cast including Kirk Douglas, James Mason, Peter Lorre and Paul Lukas.

And Sunday, the same network has another rerun of the movie "The Wizard of Oz."

An Electric Plug-In Car Is Planned

SEBRING, Fla. (UPI) — Sebring Vanguard, Inc. announced plans yesterday for the mass production of an electric automobile that can be recharged by plugging it into a wall socket.

Vanguard said it hopes to build 2,000 od the cars this year. It will be the first electric car since World War I.

The Vanguard is eight feet long and can travel at top speed of 30 miles per hour for 50 miles before it needs recharging, company officials said. It is priced at $2,200.

Robert Stone, marketing director for the firm, said the electric vehicle is designed as a second car for urban driving and not as a competitor for internal combustion engine cars. Stone said he has been driving one for several weeks.

A 'BUG' IN THE FIELD

Bill Peters, a farmer in the Red Bluff area, has one "bug" in his field that he is not anxious to get rid of. Peters found recently that with the rising cost of fuel, it was much more economical to disc his fields using his Volkswagen to pull the farm equipment rather than his tractors. He said he worked 10 acres two straight days and used only two gallons of gasoline.

Californians Take The Initiative

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Some Californians are once more bypassing their representatives in Sacramento and endeavoring to enact new laws themselves with politics, morality and energy the leading issues.

Through the initiative process, anyone who can gather enough signatures from fellow voters can put virtually whatever they want on the ballot. Frequently the topics are among the most fiercely contested and emotional in the election.

They range this year from renewed efforts to legalize marijuana smoking to a measure lowering the drinking age to a proposal revamping the state's pornography laws. There is a drive to put oil companies under state regulation and even an effort to reduce the legislature to a single house.

There will be one initiative on the June 4 primary ballot. Seven similar efforts are underway in hopes of making the Nov. 5 general election. At least one other drive is in the planning stage. The number of initiatives is about average.

At the primary, voters will decide the fate of the "Political Reform Initiative of 1974"—Prop. 9—a multi-sponsored effort to clamp the tightest restriction ever on politicians and their benefactors, plus imposing limits on how much candidates may spend seeking office.

Backed by Common Cause, People's Lobby and Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., the proposal has yet to attract open and organized opposition. Its supporters claim Watergate and related scandals have set the stage for passage.

Less publicized are other initiative drives that still must qualify for a November ballot position. Some are facing life-or-death deadlines.

State Senate President Pro Tem James R. Mills, D-San Diego, announced plans for an initiative to place the oil industry under regulation of the Public Utilities Commission.

Similar efforts to put a government grip on the petroleum industry during the energy crisis have failed in the legislature.

Mills says he will rely heavily on environmental and consumer groups in gathering the 325,504 valid signatures for a ballot spot. The deadline is May 28.

A coalition of pro-marijuana groups is struggling to meet a Feb. 25 closing date for submitting the same number of signatures for a slightly altered version of the marijuana legalization proposition that voters soundly rejected in November 1972.

The measure would wipe out California's laws against private use, possession or cultivation of marijuana by adults, the same as the 1972 effort, but also would allow communities to fine persons up to $100 for smoking it in public.

Gordon Brownell of San Francisco, statewide coordinator for the five-month-old drive, says just over half the required number of signatures have been obtained. He calls it "iffy" whether the remainder can be gathered in the few days left.

The legislature has turned back all efforts to remove criminal sanctions from marijuana.

Another drive is underway to amend California's constitution and reduce the drinking age from 21 to 18. It is called the "Full Rights Initiative" and is sponsored by a San Francisco-based committee.

Jerry Stone, Bay Area coordinator for the drive, says about 250,000 signatures have been gathered. A total of 529,806 is needed. The committee has until April 19 to submit them.

The legislature at least four times has killed efforts to put the issue before voters.

Just beginning to organize is an initiative effort to rewrite California's pornography laws, removing criminal penalties for the sale of obscene matter to adults and enacting new restriction on the display or sale of explicit matter to youths.

Ms. Judith Raskin of West Hollywood, proponent of the measure, says the campaign has been slowed because of disputes with the attorney general's office over wording of the official initiative summary and title.

One of the most politically sensitive issues is a proposed constitutional amendment to condense the state's two-house, 120-member legislature into a unicameral body with 99 members.

The initiative is sponsored by the San Francisco-based committee, "One for All." The legislature defeated a similar measure and the initiative has secured big-name endorsements from former Gov. Edmund G. Brown and former Assembly Speaker Jess Unruh.

Coordinated by Bill Dean and Margaret V. Lang of San Francisco, the drive is just beginning. A petition campaigning relying heavily on direct mailings to voters is planned with the aid of such groups as the California Homeowners Association, the committee says. The deadline for signatures is May 28.

A wide-ranging coalition of organizations is sponsoring an initiative to make it easier for new or small political parties to get on the ballot.

It takes signatures of 10 per cent of the electorate to gain official recognition of a new political party. The initiative would cut the number to one per cent.

Victoria Mercado, Northern California coordinator for the drive, says it is being aided by labor unions and various groups, including the Communist Party, the Black Teachers Council and La Rosa Unida.

The campaign has until May 28 to submit the needed 325,504 valid signatures if it is to appear on the November ballot.

Another initiative drive is underway to add portions of the main Stanislaus River to the state's Wild and Scenic River System, with the aim of limiting intrusion of the proposed New Melones Dam project on an upriver stretch of rapids popular with sportsmen.

The effort is being headed by Berkeley environmentalist Jerry Meral and faces a May 28 deadline or else it will be put over to a later election.

A final initiative drive was begun late last year by a group of Southern Californians to make government financially liable for any decline in property values caused by environmental or land-use restrictions. It has since been shelved.

'The Exorcist' Just Too Much For A Marinite

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A strapping 6-foot-2, 195-pound man who fainted during a showing of the movie, "The Exorcist," was recovering in San Francisco General Hospital today from three broken ribs, one of which punctured and collapsed his right lung.

"I must have fallen onto the edge of an aisle seat. That's the only logical explanation for what I did to myself," said Mark Reuben, 27, of Mill Valley. He came to San Francisco last Saturday to see the movie, which has been playing to capacity crowds.

"It was near the end," he said. "I read the book so I knew what was coming and I knew I couldn't watch it.

"I was nauseous, so I left my seat and started toward the lobby. I got maybe 20 feet up the aisle when I fainted."

The Price Of Success

The A's owner has been spending much of his time lately at the bargaining table, trying to swing baseball arbitrators into his way of thinking when it comes to the topic of what a ball player is worth. Charlie is coming out second best.

Ken Holtzman, left-handed pitcher who won 21 games for the A's last year, was the first of the A's to come out of the arbitration hearings and he was all smiles, announcing that he had won his case.

THE WAY THIS arbitration thing works, there is no compromise. The owner of the ballclub sets a figure he thinks the player is worth and the player sets his own price. The two get together with a third party, the arbitrator, a man who is supposedly impartial, neither friend or foe. After both sides present their cases, the arbitrator takes all the facts, studies them, and within 72 hours rules for either the player or owner. The figure on the player's contract will be either the one he demanded — as was the case with Holtzman — or the one the owner offered.

Next A's to go before the arbitration panel were relief pitchers Rollie Fingers and Darold Knowles and speculation is that they also won their pay battles.

All this hassling over money cannot be good for Finley, a man who has suffered a heart attack and been instructed by doctors to sell his sporting teams. He has already sold the California Golden Seals and said he planned to sell the Memphis Tams of the American Basketball Association by March 1. But he seems to be clinging to the A's.

THE A'S ARBITRATION cases are being held in San Francisco and other players' cases are being held in Chicago and New York. More than 50 players in the major leagues had submitted their names for arbitration. Of that number, nine are from the A's, a very disproportionate figure. The other six A's who feel they are worth more than Finley is offering are Reggie Jackson, Sal Bando, Joe Rudi, Gene Tenace, Ted Kubiak and Jack Heidemann.

Jackson has plenty of ammunition to take into the arbitration chambers. Most Valuable Players don't come cheaply and Finley will probably have to pay the price. It will be somewhat tougher for someone like Heidemann who has only his .283 batting average and no home runs at Tucson (Pacific Coast League) to argue with. Finley will have more of a chance with him.

It wasn't too long ago Finley had perhaps the smallest payroll in baseball, the top salary being in the $25,000 range. The key players are the same but their price comes higher. When you help a team win back to back world championships, you should earn more than the average ball player.

THE IDEA OF arbitration on baseball salaries, I think, is a good thing. It makes the reserve clause binding a player to a team easier to swallow. Because of this clause, if a player was dissatisfied with his contract, he could choose to hold out through spring training or the season itself. He could refuse to play, but it would cost him. He couldn't go off to another team because baseball's reserve clause made him a property of the particular team he had signed with — for life.

With arbitration now in effect, the player has a chance to get his demands. It will help put a stop to the tremendous number of holdouts that have been cropping up each year.

But in Charles O. Finley's case, the arbitration procedure might prove costly. He's going to pay — and pay heavily — for having the best team in baseball.

MISADVENTURES IN BASKETBALL

It was billed as a basketball extravaganza when the six and seven-year-old students from Laketown Grade School in Springfield, Ill. put on a benefit game for their parents and teachers club yesterday. One of the first items was learning to position for a jump ball (top left) while the referee gave some instructions. When only four-feet tall, it was a long push to launch the ball to the basket (top right). Passing the ball in bounds was also a problem (lower left) with so many hands beckoning for the ball, but none of this bothered the cheerleaders (lower right) who yelled all the same. UCLA Drops To Third In Cage Ratings

NEW YORK (UPI) — If there was an energy shortage in Oregon last weekend, it was UCLA that suffered from it.

After being upset by Oregon State and Oregon, the Bruins were spilled from the No. 1 perch in the United Press International Board of Coaches' major college basketball ratings by North Carolina State, the third team to hold the top spot this season.

Another former No. 1, Notre Dame, also climbed past the sliding Bruins into the second position in the ratings.

N.C. State's Wolfpack was soundly trounced by UCLA in St. Louis Dec. 15, but since then has scored a pair of impressive victories over each North Carolina and Maryland, ranked fourth and sixth, respectively, this week.

North Carolina State's point total was 334 to the Irish's 318.

Notre Dame also has been the victim of a 19-point defeat at the hands of the Bruins, but it was the Irish who ended UCLA's record 88-game winning streak at South Bend earlier this season.

The North Carolina Tar Heels survived a loss at Maryland last week to hang onto their No. 4 rating, while Vanderbilt remained fifth with a 20-1 mark.

Maryland was sixth, followed by Marquette and Pittsburgh.

Southern California advanced to ninth in the rankings with a pair of victories last weekend, but, more important, tied UCLA for the Pacific-8 lead.

Alabama was 11th with Providence 12th and Long Beach State 13th.

Kansas and Kansas State, fighting it out for the Big Eight crown, captured 14th and 15th, respectively, with South Carolina and Creighton in a tie for 16th.

Utah, New Mexico and Louisville closed out the top 20.

New Grid Loop Signs Flowers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The new World Football League today announced the signing of its first active National Football League player, Richmond Flowers of the New York Giants, and said it also had signed a $5 million national television contract for its initial season.

Flowers, the Giants' starting strong safety and a five-year veteran, said he would play out his option this year and join the WFL's Honolulu franchise in 1975.

But, he said, his new contract hardly makes him an instant millionaire like some of the basketball players who have switched leagues.

"I think I have a very fair contract (with Honolulu), but I'm not a wealthy man now, not six figures," said Flowers who played in college at Tennessee and is also a world-class hurdler.

Flowers made his announcement at a news conference where officials also said they had signed the $5 million television contract with TVS, an independent network.

That figure is nearly three times the $1.785 million the American Football League received from NBC for television rights in its first season, 1960, but presumably inflation is responsible for much of the rise.

The TVS network will televise 23 games beginning Thursday night, July 18. The TV deal is broken into two packages with the "A" package consisting of 13 games telecast nationally over an anticipated network of more than 130 stations. The 13 telecasts will include eight prime-time games on Thursday nights, four late night games from the West Coast and the championship game on Friday afternoon, Nov. 29, the day after Thanksgiving.

The "B" package will be limited to stations in top markets, according to Eddie Einhorn, TVS president. It will consist of 10 games telecast each Thursday night from Sept. 12 to Nov. 14.

WFL President Gary Davidson said the league would hold a draft "solely for negotiating rights" of NFL and Canadian League players March 18 and 19 in New York.

The 12-team league plans to begin its first season in July.

However, Davidson revealed that the Memphis franchise owned by Steve Arnold of Corte Madera has been moved to Houston, and that after a trade of coaching and player personnel between Boston and New York, the Boston franchise will be moved.

Secretariat's First Mare Is My Card

PARIS, Ky. (UPI) — My Card became yesterday the first thoroughbred mare to be bred to 1973 Triple Crown winner Secretariat at Clairborne Farm.

Secretariat, whose fertility has been questioned by a panel of veterinarians, previously was bred to several test mares, and one is presently in foal.

My Card is owned by Walter Jeffords, a utilities investment consultant who owns a farm near Lexington.

My Card by My Babu-Ace Card is a half sister of One Count, winner of the 1952 Belmont Stakes and has won $98,404 in seven races.

The question of Secretariat's fertility came up recently when a panel of veterinarians certifying him for a $6.08 million syndicate found the horse had a form of immature sperm.

However, veterinarians said they believe Secretariat could get a normal amount of mares in foal.

Last week, Claiborne Farm President Seth Hancock said the farm in this southeastern Kentucky community hoped to breed the colt to a full book of mares this year under revised syndicate agreements.

A SMILING WINNER

Oklahoma Assistant In Recruiting Controversy

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Oklahoma University assistant football coach Jim Helms said today he encouraged a Texas prep star to sign with two schools but denied he told the youth to lie about the procedure.

Linebacker David Smith of Beaumont, Tex., signed conference letters of intent to attend Oklahoma of the Big Eight and Southern Methodist of the Southwest Conference.

"I didn't lie to the kid or anything like that," said Helms, a former University of Texas assistant. "I just told him it would be okay if he signed with both schools. That way it would take the pressure off him from places like Texas, Texas Tech and Houston.

"It was just a normal double signing. I didn't tell him to lie. There was nothing unusual about the thing. I'm not afraid to compete with SMU. I think this whole thing has been blown out of proportion.

Seals' Johnston Not Disappointed

CHICAGO (UPI) — New California Golden Seals Coach Marshall Johnston admits his team played poorly in their first games under his leadership last weekend but he isn't discouraged.

"No, we didn't look good," Johnston admitted following back-to-back losses to Pittsburgh (7-3) and Minnesota (7-1), "but it wasn't my objective to win a game. I saw them playing a lot more aggressively than ever before on the road. Everybody was coming back, talking on the bench, in the dressing room and patting backs."

Players constantly complained during the reign of the recently-resigned Fred Glover that there was no game plan and an absence of communication.

Johnston, 32-year-old former school teacher, says, "I want to establish a game plan. I don't want it to get too sophisticated. It's merely to send in one forechecker with the two wingers coming back and picking up their men to cut down the goals against. If we lose we'll know why. If we win we'll know what we did correctly.

"If you say to a winger, 'your responsibility is the point man on the blue line' and if that man scores, we can identify who was supposed to be on him and we'll talk about it."

Johnston, whose National Hockey League Seals call on Chicago tomorrow night in pursuit of their elusive second road win of the season, doesn't plan to play the match-up game in the lineup change department.

He'll frequently use his premier line of Ivan Boldirev, Joey Johnston and Reggie Leach, but otherwise promises every other player a good dose of playing time.

This should mean more action for center Stan Weir and wing Pete Laframboise, who saw little ice time under Glover.

"I really can't see, with our schedule, some player sitting on the bench for four or five games and never seeing the ice. We can use everybody."

He said he and new player personnel director Garry Young would have a long talk with each player in an attempt to reopen the communication gap that was the most frequently heard complaint about Glover.

"I think we can turn it around," he said. "If there was any doubt in my mind about this club becoming a contender and drawing crowds, I'd never have accepted the job. Going from player to coach, I'll be taking a pay cut next year."

He said he is only working on a verbal contract for the rest of this season and has no commitment for the next when the teams are likely to be under new ownership. But Johnston admits that coaching has been a lifelong goal.

The injury-ridden Seals are taking a long look at a group of youngsters up from the farm teams, mainly Salt Lake City.

Defenseman Barry Cummins was returned to Salt Lake City but centers Ron Huston and Lyle Bradley, brought up last week, this week were joined by defenseman Barry Meeke and Paul Shakes, center Larry Pattey and wing Wayne King.

San Diego Signs Posedel As Pitching Coach

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Former Oakland A's coach and scout Bill Posedel yesterday has signed as pitching coach with the San Diego Padres.

Posedel, 67, had been in retirement after serving as a scout for the A's last year. He was pitching coach for the Oakland team from 1968 to 1972 and is credited with developing Jim Hunter, John "Blue Moon" Odom and Vida Blue.

Padres' Manager John McNamara said upon joining the club earlier this month that Posedel was the pitching coach he wanted if he could lure him out of retirement.

Posedel pitched 16 years but only five in the majors—with the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Boston Braves.

"I tried it and it's true."

The Price Of Success

The A's owner has been spending much of his time lately at the bargaining table, trying to swing baseball arbitrators into his way of thinking when it comes to the topic of what a ball player is worth. Charlie is coming out second best.

Ken Holtzman, left-handed pitcher who won 21 games for the A's last year, was the first of the A's to come out of the arbitration hearings and he was all smiles, announcing that he had won his case.

THE WAY THIS arbitration thing works, there is no compromise. The owner of the ballclub sets a figure he thinks the player is worth and the player sets his own price. The two get together with a third party, the arbitrator, a man who is supposedly impartial, neither friend or foe. After both sides present their cases, the arbitrator takes all the facts, studies them, and within 72 hours rules for either the player or owner. The figure on the player's contract will be either the one he demanded — as was the case with Holtzman — or the one the owner offered.

MARILYN MOXLEY

Boy Cagers Like Coach

By DOUGLAS STANGLIN

DALLAS (UPI) — Marilyn Moxley tied her dark brown hair behind her back and marched her skeptical bunch of gangly seventh grade basketball players to the bench.

"I sat the boys down and talked to them and told them I was a lady and I wasn't going to act like a man," she said. "And if they did not react to the way I did things, we could adjust and get another coach—because I wasn't going to change and cuss at them because that's not the way I operate."

Marilyn's methods are working. Her band of long-legged, pudgy, long-haired boys from W. H. Gaston Junior High has won five of its first six games.

"We like Miss Moxley because she runs us harder," said Eric Lewis, 13, a forward. "As long as we get to play and have a basketball team, we don't care if she's a woman."

Marilyn, 27, said she had to frown a lot the first day to establish a tough image, but has since slacked off.

"The unavoidable physical differences have been handled through a lot of talking and a lot more laughing," she said. "The physical problems have been laughed about so much, it's been real open. Like when we play shirts against skins, they'd ask if I was on the skins team.

"One of them just looked at me, and he was dead serious, and the rest of the team just died laughing—just on the floor."

Sometimes Marilyn does the readjusting.

"Of course boys get hurt and I just say, well, alright, they're hurt, and I turn around and face the other way and everyone laughs," she said. "It's a real easy situation, they know there are certain limitations both ways."

Marilyn, a slim, bright-eyed woman who divides her time among teaching, waterskiing and needlepoint, played basketball in Clinton, Tenn., for school and church teams and developed a stinging pass and steady dribbling hand that helped win over her freckle-faced skeptics.

"At first it was hard until they found out I knew what I was talking about and then after that they began to take me seriously," she said.

She was offered the coaching job after her girls team won the city basketball championship last year but she said she turned down an offer to coach football because, "I don't think that's any place for a lady."

She was initially a bit skeptical of her principal's offer.

"My first thought was if you're doing this because of women's lib, you can forget it, and he said, 'I want you to do it because you win and I want a winner,' so I said okay."

The other coaches drift by often to watch the workouts.

"They'll drop in and not say anything and I'll always ask them if there is anything they see that needs correcting and they'll say, 'No, no, looks good, they're better than you think they are.'"

Marilyn said she has seen a definite attitude change about girls in athletics in the last ten years.

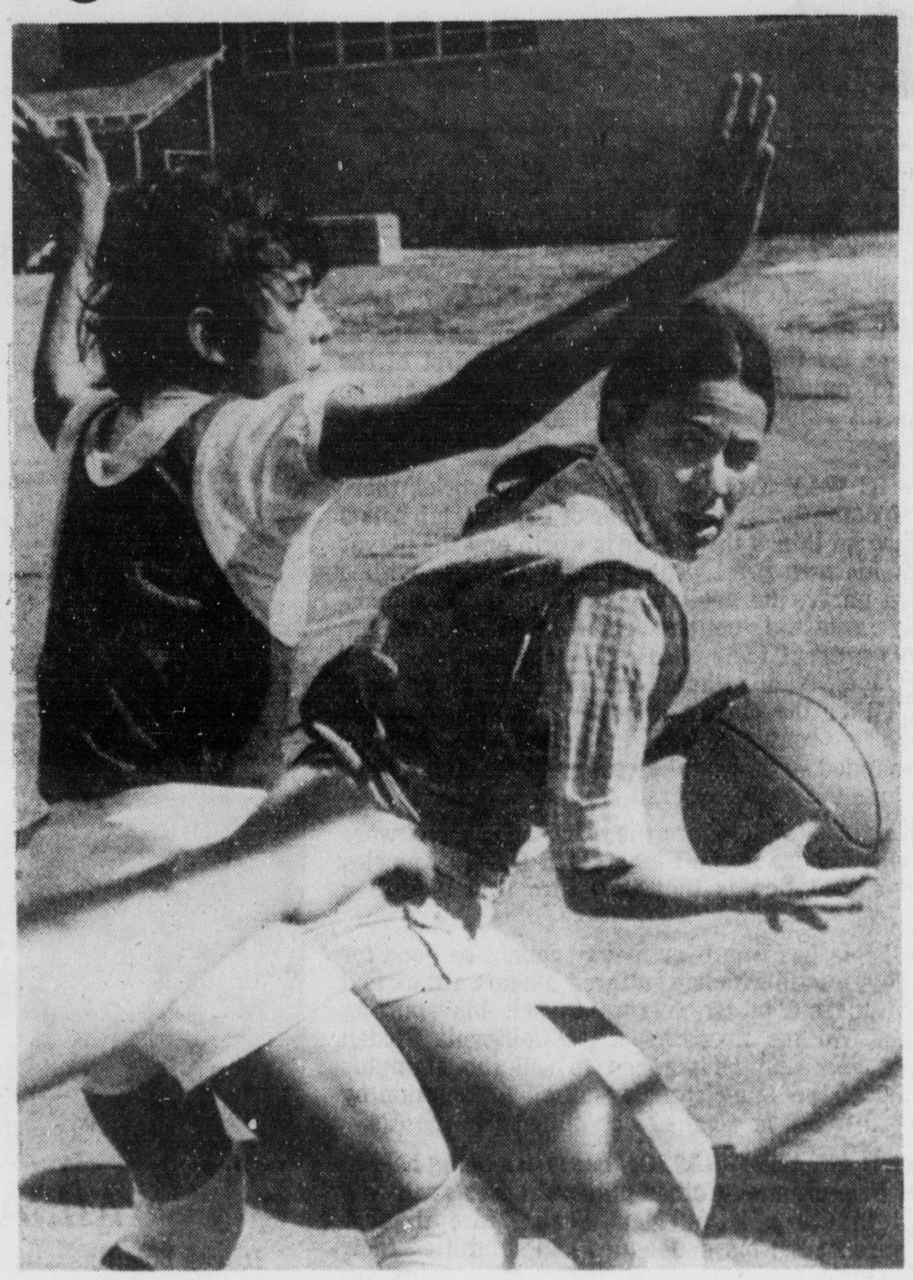
"When I moved here in 1960, if you had any athletic ability they looked down on you and wondered why you weren't sitting home talking on the telephone," she said. "Now you have the popular girls out for basketball and the guys come to watch.

"The basic grace and possibility of grace in a girl lends itself to basketball because they can be beautiful on the basketball court."

Marilyn said, however, some people still can't believe a girl can be both feminine and athletic.

"When I tell people I do needlepoint, they say, you can't do needlepoint, you're supposed to be athletic," she said.

"I tell them, sure I can—I do what I want to do."



SHOWING THE BOYS — Marilyn Moxley, 27, coach of a boys seventh grade basketball team in Dallas, Tex., worked out with her charges at a scrimmage. She pointed out that the job is a challenge and fun. Whatever the players' motivation, they've won five out of six games under her coaching. (UPI Telephoto)

JERRY 'TOO SMALL' JONES

He Wants A Chance In NFL

PAMPA, Tex. (UPI) — Jerry "Too Small" Jones thinks he deserves a shot in the National Football League. After all the 5-foot-4, 140-pound machinist can catch a football and he's hell on knees.

"I caught the ball pretty good, I never dropped it," Jones said yesterday about his tryout with the Houston Oilers. "One time on the hook pattern, the ball hit me right in the eye and it swelled up and got bloody, but I held onto the ball."

Jones, 24, who last played football in the ninth grade when he was one inch shorter, packed up his family and trekked 600 miles across Texas to spend the weekend at the Oilers' tryout camp.

Jones said when he first thought of trying out with the Oilers, he wrote a letter to General Manager and Coach Sid Gillman.

"I told him that the Oilers are better than a last place team and that I thought I could help him. Then he mailed me a card and told me when the tryout was."

Jones darted in and around the Oilers practice field wearing a worn jersey with the words "Too Small" stitched on the back. He came to camp as a running back but was shifted to wide receiver. All he got to show for the ordeal was the Oilers' edition of the rejection slip:

"It is the judgment of our coaches that you do not have the potential to help us at this time. We want to wish you success in your future activities."

But Jones still hopes his future activities involve the NFL. He has the special desire to take a crack at the league's No. 1 draft choice this year— Ed "Too Tall" Jones, the defensive behemoth drafted by the Dallas Cowboys.

"I could knock him down," Jones said. "I'm built so low to the ground that I can bearwalk a bigger man and knock him to the ground. I'm right there at his knees so he's going to fall on top of me.

"Lookout 'Too Tall,' you better not have weak knees."

A 'Teacher' Can Assist Warriors

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors could make it to the National Basketball Association playoffs yet. As long as their teacher stays healthy, that is.

"I went to school today," said third-year center Clifford Ray of Chicago after the Warriors beat the Bulls 108-105 Sunday before more than 17,000. "Nate just took control of the game."

After the Warriors had lost Saturday at New York 117-107 with Thurmond out with an ankle injury, Coach Al Attles was not even sure Thurmond could start Sunday. It turned out he played his best game of the season with 31 points, 19 rebounds, six assists and three blocked shots.

Now the Warriors call on Cleveland tonight, trying to hold or fatten their one game lead over Los Angeles. It would be a good one to win for the Warriors, who have to play three games in three nights and figure to be pooped tomorrow at Kansas City and Thursday back at Cleveland.

That schedule, strange even by NBA standards, results from the Warriors and Cavs having to make up the season opener, postponed when water seeped up from the hockey ice floor onto the basketball floor of Cleveland Arena.

Thurmond is keeping his injured ankle in ice and should be ready. Symbolic of his recent improved play that fact he has hit 29 of his last 32 free throws to hike his average from .609 to .661.

Rick Barry continues his hot scoring pace, too. His 34.7 average over the past six games has hiked him to 24.2 for the season. Cazzie Russell is next at 20.6.

Hill: NFL Strike Is Possible

DALLAS (AP) — Star Dallas Cowboy running back Calvin Hill says many National Football League players agree with him when he says, "I will not be taken for granted any longer."

Hill, who is the Cowboys' player representative, said yesterday he and hundreds of NFL players are considering a strike of training camps next summer if NFL management does not change the standard player's contract.

He did not specify which parts of the contract will be the target of representatives at the NFL Players Association convention at Chicago March 2-6.

Hill was quoted in Baltimore by WFAA-TV of Dallas as saying he believes he is being "watched" by the Cowboys because he told a New York reporter he wanted to be traded.

He said Cowboy officials heard about the New York interview and sent to New York for a copy of the tape.

Tar Baseballers Turn It Around

SAN BRUNO — It was the difference between day and night for College of Marin's baseball team.

After committing seven miscues in the first two games of the Chabot Baseball Tournament, both losses, Marin played errorless ball in the next two games yesterday for two wins.

Marin earned third place in the four-team tournament by taking a pair from Skyline College, 6-2 and 9-8. The Tars had lost their first two tourney games Friday, 10-1, to San Joaquin Delta (Stockton) and, 17-1, to Chabot (Hayward).

Ray Stratford was the star in the first game, becoming the first pitcher for Marin (4-2) to go nine innings. He allowed five hits, seven walks and struck out 11. He's a freshman from Novato High School.

In the second game, the Tars scored six last-inning runs to win it. Key hits were a bases loaded single by Jeff Fanfelle, and a single by Al Garza to set up the winning blow by Don Bianchini. Bianchini's big hit was a single that scored Fanfelle. Garza came all the way around to score when a Skyline outfielder bobbled the ball.

Bianchini was five-for-five with three runs batted in in that game. Mark Ruggles won his third game in relief, all three against Skyline. In addition to playing errorless ball, Marin made three doubleplays in the nightcap.

BELANDER CO-PLAYER OF WEEK

DAVIS (AP) — Sonoma State's Bill Belander and University of California at Davis' Tom Henderson, who will meet Friday night, were named Far Western Conference Players of the Week today for their performances in basketball games last weekend.

Belander, leading scorer in the conference, totaled 52 points in victories over Hayward and San Francisco State which helped the Cossacks clinch at least a tie for the championship. Henderson scored a career-high 27 points and made 13 of 17 field goal attempts in a Davis victory over Sacramento State.

The governors approved a 20 game schedule starting in July and ending in a championship game the Friday after Thanksgiving.

The league will be divided into three divisions of four teams each and each divisional champion plus the second place team with the highest won-lost percentage will qualify for the playoffs. FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

A Good Start For Salmon Anglers

The Saturday salmon season opener was a good one. It was calm outside the Golden Gate and the fish were cooperative. The first crew I checked at Loch Lomond Harbor was the Joe Garbarino Gang. The five of them had 14 salmon. I weighed the largest in at six and one-half pounds.

Then Mickey Locki and his gang of five came along. They also had 14 fish, with Eleanor Locki proudly holding up her top fish of 10 pounds. You've got to watch that Eleanor. She's always getting a big fish.

SAM CRAWFORD and his crew of five also came in with 14 fish. I don't know why everyone had 14, but it sure was an improvement over the opener last year when the same boats averaged about three each. Crawford sent my wife Mary two of those fish and invited himself and his wife to dinner. What could I do? So everybody had salmon.

Sunday the winds were up so it was a rough cookie out there. An estimated 10 per cent of the boats made it out Sunday. (Most of the party boats made it okay). Fishing was considered fair.

I talked to the Lord of the Sea crew at Lock Lomond. There were no changes logged in the derby, though some bass and sturgeon were taken. I tried the fishing Sunday with Howard Leach of Sacramento. We went with Crawford and company. Leach caught the only bass — a six-pounder. We also took about 10 flounder fishing at the shell bank above China Camp, using live ghost shrimp. The crabs took most of the bait for a frustrating day.

San Rafael firemen Mike Angeli and Kevin Meiswinkel netted a 32-inch, 10-pound steelhead at Whitehouse Pool. Angeli first hooked the steelie by the tail, playing it for 10 minutes and then lost it. Meiswinkel cast out a pink fluorescent flat fish and soon had a fish on. Angeli assisted in netting. The steelie had fresh marking in the tail indicating it was the same fish Angeli had hooked earlier. The firemen at Station 3 were treated to a gourmet dinner Sunday, courtesy of firemen Meiswinkel and Angeli.

AN "EARLY WARNING" radio network set up by two Lakeport men to help them poach an overlimit of abalones at Navarro Bluffs in Mendocino County recently failed when two wardens intercepted the "lookout" who had a two-way radio and was stationed on a high bluff overlooking the beadh.

Wardens Richard Fredricks and Reed Smith, on a routine patrol, noticed two divers in the water using inner tube floats which appeared to be unusually full. There were three other persons on the beach and one, a woman, appeared to be using a "walkie talkie" radio.

Sweeping their binoculars over the bluffs, the wardens discovered another person standing on top with a similar radio. Warden Smith approached the man on the bluff and took his radio away before he had a chance to sound a warning.

Meanwhile, Warden Fredricks ran down the trail to the beach. As he passed the woman with the radio, she called to her friend on the bluffs to ask who he was. By then, Fredricks had reached the diver, and Smith advised her that they were game wardens. Fredricks found the divers had taken 15 abalone over the limit.

The two men, Jesse J. Stevenson, 52, and Chester J. Pluth, 58, both of Lakeport, forfeited $95 bail each in the Point Arena Justice Court of Judge L. Slavins.

San Rafael Goes After Cage Title

San Rafael High School will make another attempt to nail down the Marin County Athletic League basketball championship Wednesday afternoon when the Bulldogs journey to Novato High for a 4 p.m. game.

Other MCAL games tomorrow find Tamalpais at San Marin, 4 p.m., Terra Linda at Redwood, 4 p.m., and Drake at Marin Catholic, 7 p.m.

San Rafael won its first 11 games and clinched at least a co-championship, but its plans for capturing the title outright were thwarted last Friday by Drake, 75-61.

"Now the pressure is off," said Bulldog coach Bret Tovani afterwards. "For a while, we had to worry about going undefeated. Now we can just concentrate on winning the championship."

The Bulldogs will have two chances as the season enters its final week. If they fail at Novato, they can still wrap it up by winning at San Marin Friday.

Only if they lose both games, and if Drake (9-3) defeats Marin Cathlic and Redwood, will the race end in a tie, forcing a playoff to determine the MCAL representative to the Tournament of Champions March 7-9 in the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

San Rafael's opponent Novato (5-7) is a good team with a 14-9 overall record, and already has one major upset to its credit this year, a 56-52 shocking of Redwood Feb. 1. The Hornets have lost their last two, however, including a 54-59 defeat at the hands of Tamalpais Friday.

Drake is hoping against hope for another shot at San Rafael after beating the Bulldogs decisively twice in three meetings, including a 65-51 triumph in the Drake Tournament in December.

Wtih five straight lopsided victories, the defending champions are the hottest team in the league right now, and they have a score to settle with Marin Catholic.

The Wildcats have lost six straight, ever since a stunning 68-62 upset of the Pirates Jan. 25. That loss, perhaps more than any other, was the one which ruined Drake's season, since Marin Catholic is only 3-9.

Redwood (8-4), which fell from the race with three losses in four games, recouped against Marin Catholic Friday, 91-80, as Neil Hennessy scored 36 points.

The Giants rolled over Terra Linda last time, 96-80, but face a rejuvenated Trojan team (3-9) which has won its last two games and is looking forward to a chance to test itself against one of the league leaders.

Tamalapis (6-6) has won four of its last six to climb up to the middle of the standings, and is hoping to repeat the 58-41 defeat it handed San Marin (3-9) the last time the teams played.

Marin Tar Quintet Is In Role Of Spoiler Tonight

The spoiler.

This is the role College of Marin hopes to play tonight at 8 o'clock when De Anza College visits the Kentfield gym.

The Cupertino invaders lead the Camino Norte Conference basketball race at 12-0 and may be looking past the Tars (9-3). De Anza hosts runnerup Foothill (11-1) Thursday at 8 p.m. in a game which could decide the eventual CNC titlist.

Marin is still smarting from the Dons' 67-62 overtime victory Jan. 19 in Cupertino. "We may not win the championship," Tars' coach John Panagakis said, "but we can help determine who does."

The defending CNC champions would like nothing better than to avenge the heartbreaking setback. To do so, the Tars will have to contain returning All-Conference forward Dan Perry and guard Mitch Plaat. Panagakis rates Plaat as an excellent outside shooter with a penchant for driving.

Marin counters with the redoubtable Wil Garner, the conference's leading scorer at forward. Garner produced 27 points Saturday night when the Tars whipped visiting Solano, 100-81.

Harry Norman has also proven to be very effective. "Norman has been playing awfully well in the last two games," said Panagakis. "Len Smith gives needed consistency. (John) Channell and (Bill) Donnellan have done well lately. Jared McFerrin has played extremely well in the last couple of games.

"If we get good performances out of our people, it should be a real good game."

Cagers Nearing Records

Presumably, Byron Stewart is more worried about bringing his team the championship, but the fact is there nonetheless: if he scores 62 points in his remaining two games, he will break the Marin County Athletic League single-season basketball scoring record.

The 6-foot-7 senior center from league-leading San Rafael High School scored 26 and 29 points in two games last week, and has 271 points after 12 contests, according to statistics compiled by the Independent-Journal.

RECORD

The record is 332 points, set in 1970 by Dana La Ferriere of San Marin. Ironically, Stewart's final game this year will be against San Marin Friday.

Stewart holds a 24-point lead over Mike Dinehart of Tamalpais, who is himself in line for a prestigious school record. Sixty-one points in two games will erase Wil Garner's total of 307, which led the league in 1970.

It is virtually certain that Stewart and Dinehart will finish the season with averages above 20 points a game, becoming the 11th and 12th men in MCAL history to do so.

TEAM

In the team figures, Drake High took over the scoring lead by averaging 75.2 during a five-game winning streak to bring its seasonal mark up to 63.8. Marin Catholic and Redwood are also over the 60 plateau.

Drake also made itself felt in the defensive statistics, bombarding co-leaders Tamalpais (65) and San Rafael (75) so badly that both teams' averages rose above the 50 mark to 50.7.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

A Good Start For Salmon Anglers

The Saturday salmon season opener was a good one. It was calm outside the Golden Gate and the fish were cooperative. The first crew I checked at Loch Lomond Harbor was the Joe Garbarino Gang. The five of them had 14 salmon. I weighed the largest in at six and one-half pounds.

Then Mickey Locki and his gang of five came along. They also had 14 fish, with Eleanor Locki proudly holding up her top fish of 10 pounds. You've got to watch that Eleanor. She's always getting a big fish.

SAM CRAWFORD and his crew of five also came in with 14 fish. I don't know why everyone had 14, but it sure was an improvement over the opener last year when the same boats averaged about three each. Crawford sent my wife Mary two of those fish and invited himself and his wife to dinner. What could I do? So everybody had salmon.

Sunday the winds were up so it was a rough cookie out there. An estimated 10 per cent of the boats made it out Sunday. (Most of the party boats made it okay). Fishing was considered fair.

I talked to the Lord of the Sea crew at Lock Lomond. There were no changes logged in the derby, though some bass and sturgeon were taken. I tried the fishing Sunday with Howard Leach of Sacramento. We went with Crawford and company. Leach caught the only bass — a six-pounder. We also took about 10 flounder fishing at the shell bank above China Camp, using live ghost shrimp. The crabs took most of the bait for a frustrating day.

San Rafael firemen Mike Angeli and Kevin Meiswinkel netted a 32-inch, 10-pound steelhead at Whitehouse Pool. Angeli first hooked the steelie by the tail, playing it for 10 minutes and then lost it. Meiswinkel cast out a pink fluorescent flat fish and soon had a fish on. Angeli assisted in netting. The steelie had fresh marking in the tail indicating it was the same fish Angeli had hooked earlier. The firemen at Station 3 were treated to a gourmet dinner Sunday, courtesy of firemen Meiswinkel and Angeli.

AN "EARLY WARNING" radio network set up by two Lakeport men to help them poach an overlimit of abalones at Navarro Bluffs in Mendocino County recently failed when two wardens intercepted the "lookout" who had a two-way radio and was stationed on a high bluff overlooking the beadh.

Wardens Richard Fredricks and Reed Smith, on a routine patrol, noticed two divers in the water using inner tube floats which appeared to be unusually full. There were three other persons on the beach and one, a woman, appeared to be using a "walkie talkie" radio.

Sweeping their binoculars over the bluffs, the wardens discovered another person standing on top with a similar radio. Warden Smith approached the man on the bluff and took his radio away before he had a chance to sound a warning.

Meanwhile, Warden Fredricks ran down the trail to the beach. As he passed the woman with the radio, she called to her friend on the bluffs to ask who he was. By then, Fredricks had reached the diver, and Smith advised her that they were game wardens. Fredricks found the divers had taken 15 abalone over the limit.

The two men, Jesse J. Stevenson, 52, and Chester J. Pluth, 58, both of Lakeport, forfeited $95 bail each in the Point Arena Justice Court of Judge L. Slavins.

San Rafael Goes After Cage Title

San Rafael High School will make another attempt to nail down the Marin County Athletic League basketball championship Wednesday afternoon when the Bulldogs journey to Novato High for a 4 p.m. game.

Other MCAL games tomorrow find Tamalpais at San Marin, 4 p.m., Terra Linda at Redwood, 4 p.m., and Drake at Marin Catholic, 7 p.m.

The Bulldogs will have two chances as the season enters its final week. If they fail at Novato, they can still wrap it up by winning at San Marin Friday.

Only if they lose both games, and if Drake (9-3) defeats Marin Cathlic and Redwood, will the race end in a tie, forcing a playoff to determine the MCAL representative to the Tournament of Champions March 7-9 in the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

San Rafael's opponent Novato (5-7) is a good team with a 14-9 overall record, and already has one major upset to its credit this year, a 56-52 shocking of Redwood Feb. 1. The Hornets have lost their last two, however, including a 54-59 defeat at the hands of Tamalpais Friday.

Drake is hoping against hope for another shot at San Rafael after beating the Bulldogs decisively twice in three meetings, including a 65-51 triumph in the Drake Tournament in December.

Wtih five straight lopsided victories, the defending champions are the hottest team in the league right now, and they have a score to settle with Marin Catholic.

The Wildcats have lost six straight, ever since a stunning 68-62 upset of the Pirates Jan. 25. That loss, perhaps more than any other, was the one which ruined Drake's season, since Marin Catholic is only 3-9.

Redwood (8-4), which fell from the race with three losses in four games, recouped against Marin Catholic Friday, 91-80, as Neil Hennessy scored 36 points.

The Giants rolled over Terra Linda last time, 96-80, but face a rejuvenated Trojan team (3-9) which has won its last two games and is looking forward to a chance to test itself against one of the league leaders.

Tamalapis (6-6) has won four of its last six to climb up to the middle of the standings, and is hoping to repeat the 58-41 defeat it handed San Marin (3-9) the last time the teams played.

Marin Tar Quintet Is In Role Of Spoiler Tonight

The spoiler.

This is the role College of Marin hopes to play tonight at 8 o'clock when De Anza College visits the Kentfield gym.

The Cupertino invaders lead the Camino Norte Conference basketball race at 12-0 and may be looking past the Tars (9-3). De Anza hosts runnerup Foothill (11-1) Thursday at 8 p.m. in a game which could decide the eventual CNC titlist.

Marin is still smarting from the Dons' 67-62 overtime victory Jan. 19 in Cupertino. "We may not win the championship," Tars' coach John Panagakis said, "but we can help determine who does."

The defending CNC champions would like nothing better than to avenge the heartbreaking setback. To do so, the Tars will have to contain returning All-Conference forward Dan Perry and guard Mitch Plaat. Panagakis rates Plaat as an excellent outside shooter with a penchant for driving.

Marin counters with the redoubtable Wil Garner, the conference's leading scorer at forward. Garner produced 27 points Saturday night when the Tars whipped visiting Solano, 100-81.

Harry Norman has also proven to be very effective. "Norman has been playing awfully well in the last two games," said Panagakis. "Len Smith gives needed consistency. (John) Channell and (Bill) Donnellan have done well lately. Jared McFerrin has played extremely well in the last couple of games.

"If we get good performances out of our people, it should be a real good game."

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Tax-Sheltered Dividend Bonus

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. The dividend for Public Service Electric & Gas (NYSE) is $1.72 a share (61.7 per cent nontaxable in 1973). My broker tells me the stock yields about 9 per cent at its current trading price. My cost on 200 shares is $22 and according to my way of figuring the yield is closer to 3 per cent. I am considering selling this stock. What is your opinion? — P.A.

A. Assuming you sold your shares now you would net about $3,900. You are currently receiving $344 in dividends annually on this capital, regardless of the fact that a sizable portion of this is considered a return of capital for income tax purposes. From a tax standpoint this is advantageous, in that only $132 of the total payment is taxable as ordinary income. Furthermore, if this is your only stock holding, the $100 dividend exclusion reduces the taxable amount to $32. Upon sale of the stock, your cost basis would be lowered from $22 to $20.94 per share, giving you a $300 rather than a $500 capital loss at the present selling price of the stock.

The most important consideration, however, is the rate of return you would be able to realize from an alternative investment, should you carry through on your inclination to sell. In order to replace this income you would have to find an investment returning 8.8 per cent annually. Your broker quoted the current yield on Public Service E&G because it provides a standard for comparison with other income issues. Evidently you reduced the dividend by the nontaxable portion in order to figure your return, while you apparently failed to reduce your cost basis proportionately.

While 50 per cent of the company's generating capacity is oil fired, half can be converted to coal power. Rate relief in the amount of $70 million annually was granted effective early in January, too late to aid 4th quarter operating results. Nonetheless, earnings provide ample dividend coverage and shares should be held for their generous yield.

Stock Market Records Rally

Saudi Arabian foreign ministers, after meetino with secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger last weekend, were reported ready to give President Nixon "good news" concerning disengagement of Israeli and Syrian troops at a meeting set for this morning. Wall Street was hopeful a break in the Middle East tension could result in an easing or lifting of the oil embargo against the United States.

Oil, oil field service and energy stocks reacted upward to the news. Murphy Oil rose 4 ⅞, Halliburton 3 ⅝, Schlumberger 2 ½, Natomas 2 ¼, Atlantic Richfield 1 ⅞, and Phillips Petroleum 1 ¼.

Among stocks constituting the Dow industrials, Dupont added 2 ¼, Union Carbide a point, Allied Chemical 1 ⅛, Eastman Kodak 3 ¾, Exxon 1 ⅞, and Sears 1 ¾.

Redman Industries led the actives, up ½ to 4 on 109,400 shares.

Stocks also rose sharply on the American Exchange. Total Petroleum (North America) Ltd. was the volume leader, up ½ to 8 ⅝ on 27,200 shares.

On the Big Board, Polaroid fell 2 ⅛, after reporting a modest gain in profits during 1973. In other Big Board glamors, IBM rose 3 ¼, Burroughs 4, and Texas Instruments, Xerox, McDonald's Corp., Merck and ARA Services advanced two or more points each.

Gold mining stocks bucked the general market trend as usual, with ASA Ltd., Dome Mines and Campbell Red Lake declining a point or more apiece.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By WAT TAKESHITA

Fast Foods, Inc., Will Open Headquarters In San Rafael

Fast Foods, Inc., a new corporation headed by 26-year-old Oscar G. Guerrero of Novato, will open its corporate headquarters in the Reynold C. Johnson Building in San Rafael (Fourth and C Streets) about March 1, with plans to establish a chain of fast food restaurants this summer.

The fast food outlets will be similar to the two Jimbo restaurants which Guerrero already operates. Last November he bought Jimbo's Sandwich Shop at 4288 Redwood Highway in the Northgate area of San Rafael and Fred's Deli at 1131 Fourth Street in San Rafael, across from the Rafael Theater. He remodeled Fred's Deli and reopened it in January as Jimbo's Hotdog and Sandwich Shop.

Guerero is also the franchise operator of the International House of Pancakes at 1825 Fourth Street in San Rafael. By July of this year, Guerrero hopes to open about four more fast food outlets in Marin and Sonoma Counties. They would be similar to Jimbo's, or perhaps coffee houses with specialties like pancakes.

"I like fast foods which more people can afford," said Guerrero. "The main thing is fast service, because workers need to get back to their offices fast." He is catering to the office workers who have only 30 or 40 minutes for lunch.

Guerrero has been acquainted with the food business since a child because his father has been in the restaurant business in San Francisco for 45 years. At age 22, young Guerrero tried franchising, taking over the former Copper Penny restaurant in Corte Madera, which he sold three years ago to buy the franchise for the International House of Pancakes in San Rafael.

ROBERT C. KEEFE of Larkspur, an executive with the Barient Company in San Carlos, a subsidiary of Narco Scientific Industries, won the company's James E. Riddle Memorial Award for outstanding management. The award was presented last month at the annual dinner in Valley Forge, Pa.

Keefe joined the Barient Company, producer of winches and other sail-handling equipment, in 1963 and has been executive vice president and general manager since 1970. Active in yacht racing, Keefe is a member of the Marin Yacht Club and a vice commodore of the St. Francis Yacht Club.

Keefe

Smith

JOSEPH J. SMITH of Novato has been elected an assistant vice president of Gibraltar Savings and Loan Association. He is manager of Gibraltar Savings' Monterey Boulevard office in San Francisco.

Before entering the financial field 12 years ago, Smith was a Russian linguist with the United States Security Agency from 1958 to 1961 and was stationed for two years at the U.S. Army Language School in Monterey.

ZIM'S restaurants in Kentfield and in Corte Madera will be remodeled and renamed The Hungry House within the next two months.

Owner Joseph Vitale of Greenbrae will continue operating the two restaurants as coffee houses but will add a few items such as a house lasagne to the menu. The interior decor will be toned down in color, with the use of more natural shades.

The Kentfield Zim's at the Kent Woodlands Shopping Center will be closed for remodeling on March 3 and will re-open on March 13 as The Hungry House. The same process will be followed at Zim's in Corte Madera Center about a month later.

Both of the Hungry House restaurants will be open seven days a week from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Vitale, who had been general manager of Zim's in San Francisco for 23 years, bought the two Zim's in Marin from Arthur Zimmerman of Kent Woodlands in June of 1972. Jon Kondra of Novato will continue to manage the two Hungry House restaurants for Vitale.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Tax-Sheltered Dividend Bonus

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. The dividend for Public Service Electric & Gas (NYSE) is $1.72 a share (61.7 per cent nontaxable in 1973). My broker tells me the stock yields about 9 per cent at its current trading price. My cost on 200 shares is $22 and according to my way of figuring the yield is closer to 3 per cent. I am considering selling this stock. What is your opinion? — P.A.

A. Assuming you sold your shares now you would net about $3,900. You are currently receiving $344 in dividends annually on this capital, regardless of the fact that a sizable portion of this is considered a return of capital for income tax purposes. From a tax standpoint this is advantageous, in that only $132 of the total payment is taxable as ordinary income. Furthermore, if this is your only stock holding, the $100 dividend exclusion reduces the taxable amount to $32. Upon sale of the stock, your cost basis would be lowered from $22 to $20.94 per share, giving you a $300 rather than a $500 capital loss at the present selling price of the stock.

The most important consideration, however, is the rate of return you would be able to realize from an alternative investment, should you carry through on your inclination to sell. In order to replace this income you would have to find an investment returning 8.8 per cent annually. Your broker quoted the current yield on Public Service E&G because it provides a standard for comparison with other income issues. Evidently you reduced the dividend by the nontaxable portion in order to figure your return, while you apparently failed to reduce your cost basis proportionately.

While 50 per cent of the company's generating capacity is oil fired, half can be converted to coal power. Rate relief in the amount of $70 million annually was granted effective early in January, too late to aid 4th quarter operating results. Nonetheless, earnings provide ample dividend coverage and shares should be held for their generous yield.

Stock Market Records Rally

Saudi Arabian foreign ministers, after meetino with secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger last weekend, were reported ready to give President Nixon "good news" concerning disengagement of Israeli and Syrian troops at a meeting set for this morning. Wall Street was hopeful a break in the Middle East tension could result in an easing or lifting of the oil embargo against the United States.

Oil, oil field service and energy stocks reacted upward to the news. Murphy Oil rose 4 ⅞, Halliburton 3 ⅝, Schlumberger 2 ½, Natomas 2 ¼, Atlantic Richfield 1 ⅞, and Phillips Petroleum 1 ¼.

Among stocks constituting the Dow industrials, Dupont added 2 ¼, Union Carbide a point, Allied Chemical 1 ⅛, Eastman Kodak 3 ¾, Exxon 1 ⅞, and Sears 1 ¾.

Redman Industries led the actives, up ½ to 4 on 109,400 shares.

Stocks also rose sharply on the American Exchange. Total Petroleum (North America) Ltd. was the volume leader, up ½ to 8 ⅝ on 27,200 shares.

On the Big Board, Polaroid fell 2 ⅛, after reporting a modest gain in profits during 1973. In other Big Board glamors, IBM rose 3 ¼, Burroughs 4, and Texas Instruments, Xerox, McDonald's Corp., Merck and ARA Services advanced two or more points each.

Gold mining stocks bucked the general market trend as usual, with ASA Ltd., Dome Mines and Campbell Red Lake declining a point or more apiece.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

Fast Foods, Inc., Will Open Headquarters In San Rafael

Fast Foods, Inc., a new corporation headed by 26-year-old Oscar G. Guerrero of Novato, will open its corporate headquarters in the Reynold C. Johnson Building in San Rafael (Fourth and C Streets) about March 1, with plans to establish a chain of fast food restaurants this summer.

The fast food outlets will be similar to the two Jimbo restaurants which Guerrero already operates. Last November he bought Jimbo's Sandwich Shop at 4288 Redwood Highway in the Northgate area of San Rafael and Fred's Deli at 1131 Fourth Street in San Rafael, across from the Rafael Theater. He remodeled Fred's Deli and reopened it in January as Jimbo's Hotdog and Sandwich Shop.

Guerero is also the franchise operator of the International House of Pancakes at 1825 Fourth Street in San Rafael. By July of this year, Guerrero hopes to open about four more fast food outlets in Marin and Sonoma Counties. They would be similar to Jimbo's, or perhaps coffee houses with specialties like pancakes.

"I like fast foods which more people can afford," said Guerrero. "The main thing is fast service, because workers need to get back to their offices fast." He is catering to the office workers who have only 30 or 40 minutes for lunch.

Guerrero has been acquainted with the food business since a child because his father has been in the restaurant business in San Francisco for 45 years. At age 22, young Guerrero tried franchising, taking over the former Copper Penny restaurant in Corte Madera, which he sold three years ago to buy the franchise for the International House of Pancakes in San Rafael.

ROBERT C. KEEFE of Larkspur, an executive with the Barient Company in San Carlos, a subsidiary of Narco Scientific Industries, won the company's James E. Riddle Memorial Award for outstanding management. The award was presented last month at the annual dinner in Valley Forge, Pa.

Keefe joined the Barient Company, producer of winches and other sail-handling equipment, in 1963 and has been executive vice president and general manager since 1970. Active in yacht racing, Keefe is a member of the Marin Yacht Club and a vice commodore of the St. Francis Yacht Club.

Keefe

Smith

JOSEPH J. SMITH of Novato has been elected an assistant vice president of Gibraltar Savings and Loan Association. He is manager of Gibraltar Savings' Monterey Boulevard office in San Francisco.

Before entering the financial field 12 years ago, Smith was a Russian linguist with the United States Security Agency from 1958 to 1961 and was stationed for two years at the U.S. Army Language School in Monterey.

ZIM'S restaurants in Kentfield and in Corte Madera will be remodeled and renamed The Hungry House within the next two months.

Owner Joseph Vitale of Greenbrae will continue operating the two restaurants as coffee houses but will add a few items such as a house lasagne to the menu. The interior decor will be toned down in color, with the use of more natural shades.

The Kentfield Zim's at the Kent Woodlands Shopping Center will be closed for remodeling on March 3 and will re-open on March 13 as The Hungry House. The same process will be followed at Zim's in Corte Madera Center about a month later.

Both of the Hungry House restaurants will be open seven days a week from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Vitale, who had been general manager of Zim's in San Francisco for 23 years, bought the two Zim's in Marin from Arthur Zimmerman of Kent Woodlands in June of 1972. Jon Kondra of Novato will continue to manage the two Hungry House restaurants for Vitale.

Rapozo

Sherer

RICHARD B. RAPOZO of Corte Madera and RALPH SHERER of San Anselmo were promoted to trust officers in Crocker Bank's trust tax division in San Francisco.

Rapozo, who joined Crocker Bank in 1965, had been an assistant trust officer. Sherer, a 13-year veteran with Crocker Bank, was also an assistant trust officer before the promotion.

NOVATO REALTORS — Commercial and industrial development of the Hanna Ranch will be discussed tomorrow at the regular breakfast meeting of the Novato Realty Group. The meeting starts at 8:30 a.m. at Sambo's Restaurant.

Speaker will be Paul Frank, vice president of Novato Center Inc., which owns the Hanna Ranch at the northeast corner of Highway 101 and Black Point cutoff. Plans for the ranch include a golf course, motel-convention center, industrial and commercial areas.

MEL RUPP REALTY at 1780 Grant Avenue in Novato announced the addition of Betty Harrington and Susan Gendel as realtor associates, and James F. Vann as office manager and investment specialist.

Mrs. Harrington has lived in Novato with her family for the last 15 years. Mrs. Gendel, a native Californian who has lived in various areas, is a former airline stewardess. Vann, a retired U.S. Air Force officer, holds securities and insurance salesman's licenses and has competed in national and international trap and rifle shooting.

JAMES E. HARREND, salesman at Francisco Dodge Center Inc. in San Rafael, won the Diamond Chapter membership in this year's Delta Sales Club of the Dodge Division, Chrysler Motor Corp. It recognizes outstanding sales achievement and is the highest award given to Dodge salesmen.

ROBERT F. OHRENSCHALL of Greenbrae, president of Soyster & Ohrenschall Inc. in San Francisco, has moved up to vice chairman of the board of directors.

Succeeding him as president is James G. Shennan Jr. of Menlo Park, who joined the firm in 1971 as executive vice president. Huntley H. Soyster remains as chairman of the board.
